THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

CHAPTER 145. TRAFFIC

43. Section 10.4 is hereby amended as follows:

A. Section 2.5 and Section 2.5a are hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 2.5 and new Sections 2.5a through 2.5g which shall read in its entirety as follows:

Sec. 2.5. Reports of stolen and recovered vehicles.

A police agency, upon receiving reliable information that any vehicle registered under this act has been stolen, shall immediately report the theft through the law enforcement information network. Upon receiving information that a vehicle previously reported as stolen has been recovered, the police agency shall immediately report the fact of the recovery through the law enforcement network.

Sec. 2.5a. Abandoned vehicle procedures.

(1) As used in this section, "abandoned vehicle" means a vehicle which has remained on public property or private property for a period of 48 hours after a police agency or other governmental agency designated by the police agency has affixed a written notice to the vehicle.

(2) If a vehicle has remained on public or private property for a period of time so that it appears to the police agency to be abandoned, the police agency shall do all of the following:

(a) Determine if the vehicle has been reported stolen.

(b) Affix a written notice to the vehicle. The written notice shall contain the following information:

(i) The date and time the notice was affixed.
(ii) The name and address of the police agency taking the action.
(iii) The name and badge number of the police officer affixing the notice.
(iv) The date and time the vehicle may be taken into custody and stored at the owner's expense or scrapped if the vehicle is not removed.
(v) The year, make, and vehicle identification number of the vehicle, if available.

(3) If the vehicle is not removed within 48 hours after the date the notice was affixed, the vehicle is deemed abandoned and the police agency may have the vehicle taken into custody.

(4) A police agency which has a vehicle taken into custody shall do all of the following:

(a) Recheck to determine if the vehicle has been reported stolen.

(b) Within 24 hours after taking the vehicle into custody, enter the vehicle as abandoned into the law enforcement information network.

(c) Within 7 days after taking the vehicle into custody, send to the registered owner and secured party, as shown by the records of the secretary of state, by first-class mail or personal service, notice that the vehicle has been deemed abandoned. The form for the notice shall be furnished by the secretary of state. Each notice form shall contain the following information:

(i) The year, make, and vehicle identification number of the vehicle if available.
(ii) The location from which the vehicle was taken into custody.
(iii) The date on which the vehicle was taken into custody.
(iv) The name and address of the police agency which had the vehicle taken into custody.
(v) The business address of the custodian of the vehicle.
(vi) The procedure to redeem the vehicle.
(vii) The procedure to contest the fact that the vehicle has been deemed abandoned or the reasonableness of the towing fees and daily storage fees.
(viii) A form petition which the owner may file in person or by mail with the specified court which requests a hearing on the police agency's action.

(5) The registered owner may contest the fact that the vehicle has been deemed abandoned or the reasonableness of the towing fees and daily storage fees by requesting a hearing. A request for a hearing shall be made by filing a petition with the court specified in the notice within 20 days after the date of the notice. If the owner requests a hearing, the matter shall be resolved after a hearing conducted pursuant to sections 2.5e and 2.5f. An owner who requests a hearing may obtain release of the vehicle by posting a towing and storage bond in an amount equal to the accrued towing and storage fees with the court. The owner of a vehicle who requests a hearing may obtain release of the vehicle by paying the towing and storage fees instead of posting the towing and storage bond. If the court finds that the vehicle was not properly deemed abandoned, the police agency shall reimburse the owner of the vehicle for the accrued towing and storage fees.

(6) If the owner does not request a hearing, he or she may obtain the release of the vehicle by paying the accrued charges to the custodian of the vehicle.

(7) If the owner does not redeem the vehicle or request a hearing within 20 days after the date of the notice, the secured party may obtain the release of the vehicle by paying the accrued charges to the custodian of the vehicle and the police agency for its accrued costs.

(8) Not less than 20 days after the disposition of the hearing described in subsection (5) or, if a hearing is not requested, not less than 20 days after the date of the notice, the police agency shall offer the vehicle for sale at a public sale pursuant to section 2.5g.

(9) If the ownership of a vehicle which has been deemed abandoned under this section cannot be determined either because of the condition of the vehicle identification numbers or because a check with the records of the secretary of state does not reveal ownership, the police agency may sell the vehicle at public sale pursuant to section 2.5g, not less than 30 days after public notice of the sale has been published.

(4) Each driver of a motor vehicle transporting a child 4 years of age or more but less than 16 years of age in a motor vehicle shall secure the child in a properly adjusted and fastened safety belt. If the motor vehicle is transporting more children than there are safety belts available for use, all safety belts available in the motor vehicle are being utilized in compliance with this section, and the driver and all front saat passengers comply with subsection (3), then the driver of a motor vehicle transporting a child 4 years of age or more but less than 16 years of age for which there is not an available safety belt is in compliance with this subsection, if that child is seated in other than the front seat of the motor vehicle. However, if that motor vehicle is a pickup truck without an extended cab or jump seats, and all safety belts in the front seat are being used, the driver may transport such a child in the front seat without a safety belt.

(5) Enforcement of this section by state or local law enforcement agencies shall be accomplished only as a secondary action when a driver of a motor vehicle has been detained for a suspected violation of another section of this act.

(6) Failure to wear a safety belt in violation of this section may be considered evidence of negligence and may reduce the recovery for damages arising out of the ownership, maintenance, or operation of a motor vehicle. However, such negligence shall not reduce the recovery for damages by more than 5%.

(7) A person who violates this section is responsible for a civil infraction.

(8) Points shall not be assessed for a violation of this section.

E. Section 5.97 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 5.83 shall read in its entirety as follows:

Sec. 5.97 School Buses; overtaking, meeting, or passing.

(1) The driver of a vehicle overtaking or meeting a school bus which has stopped and is displaying 2 alternately flashing red lights located at the same level shall bring the vehicle to a full stop not less than 20 feet from the school bus and shall not proceed until the school bus resumes motion or the visual signals are no longer actuated. At an intersection where traffic is controlled by an officer or a traffic stop-and-go signal a vehicle need not be brought to a full stop before pessing a stopped school bus, but may proceed past the school bus at a speed not greater than is reasonable and proper but not greater than 10 miles an hour and with due caution for the safety of passengers being received or discharged from the school bus. The driver of a vehicle who fails to stop for a school bus as required by this subsection, who passes a school bus in violation of this subsection, or who fails to stop for a school bus in violation of an ordinance that complies with this subsection, is responsible for a civil infraction.

(2) The driver of a vehicle upon a highway which has been divided into 2 roadways by leaving an intervening space, or by a physical berrier, or clearly indicated dividing sections so constructed as to impede vehicular traffic, need not stop upon meeting a school bus which has stopped across the dividing space, barrier, or section.

(3) In a proceeding for a violation of subsection (1), proof that the particular vehicle described in the citation was in violation of subsection (1), together with proof that the defendant named in the citation was, at the time of the violation, the registered owner of the vehicle, shall constitute in evidence a presumption that the registered owner of the vehicle was the driver of the vehicle at the time of the violation.

(4) In addition to a civil fine and costs, the judge, district court referee, or district court magistrate may order a person who violates this section to perform not to exceed 100 hours of community service at a school.

44. Section 10.91 is hereby repealed and replaced with a new Section 10.91 which shall read in its entirety as follows:

10.91 Penalty.

Any person violating Sections 10.84, 10.85 or any traffic-control order issued pursuant to Section 10.89 of this Chapter shall be responsible for a civil infraction. Any person violating Sections 10.86, 10.87 or 10.90 of this Chapter shall be responsible for municipal civil infraction pursuant to Section 1.12 of this Code.

Apple Festival celebrates 20th anniversary

Charlevoix's 20th Annual Apple Festival provides an excellent opportunity for visitors to see, to sample, and to purchase apples, crafts, and fall produce from area orchards and farmers. This year's Apple Festival will be Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, October 8-10.

The Applefest, started in 1980, originated to bring attention to the agricultural community in Charlevoix, Antrim, and Emmet counties. Residents and visitors alike often ask what is being grown locally and how to find area orchards and farm markets.

As a result, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce decided that at least once a year they would bring the harvest to the people. So, each year on the 2nd weekend in October the Apple Festival takes place in downtown Charlevoix.

The park is lined with farm market booths selling over 30 different types of apples including the hard to find "antique varieties." The ever-popular eating apples will be plentiful. Also available will be MacIntosh, Spartan, Cortland and Jonathan, all excellent for pie baking. For perfect stuffed baked apples remember to take home some Red Rome Apples and the crunchy Northern Spy is ideally suited for strudel, pie or cobbler. Other fall harvest items available will be pumpkins, squash, apple butter, jam, honey and cider.

Service clubs and other local organizations also man booths along the park to sell apple delicacies.

Of special interest is the annual Apple Festival Craft Show, comprised of outstanding craftspeople. This is a high quality show featuring unique items and special "holiday gifts."

Throughout the weekend, music and other events provide fun for the whole family. On Saturday, there will be a petting farm with a wide variety of farm animals.

"Free" horse drawn carriage rides will be offered for the whole family on Friday evening and on Saturday from 1:00 p.m. until dark. The rides will be provided by Cedar Valley Farms and will leave from Park Avenue in downtown Charlevoix.

All of this, at a wonderful time of the year — a time when fall colors peak in Northern Michigan.

Cheri Hoffman, chairperson of the 1999 Chamber of Commerce car raffle, presents keys to a new Dodge Durango to grand prize winner Rick Trudell of Petoskey. Petoskey man wins chamber's car raffle

A Petoskey man is the grand-prize winner in the 1999 car raffle sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Rick Trudell drove home a new Dodge Durango SLT 4x4 sport utility vehicle after his name was drawn first from 400 entries in the 10th annual fund-raiser. The drawing was held Sept. 7 aboard the Emerald Isle.

Jim Uhrick of Charlevoix won $500. Don Haywood of Chelsea and Robert Dutcher of Haslett each won $250.

Trudell, a Michigan Department of Corrections officer for 16 years, is no stranger to Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce fund-raising activities. In fact, he has purchased tickets for other car and boat raffles and several other chamber promotions in recent years. Proceeds from raffle ticket sales are dedicated towards capital improvements at the chamber.

This summer, several of the $100 tickets remained unsold just a few weeks before the planned drawing date. The Chamber of Commerce maintains a data base complete with the names of past raffle ticket-purchasers. A staff member telephoned and asked if Trudell was interested in buying a ticket for the 1999 new car raffle.

"I really wasn't interested," Trudell said. "I had been negotiating a deal on a new truck at Crown Motors in Charlevoix for a couple of weeks. I was going to trade in my old truck for a new one. A hundred dollars (the price of a raffle ticket) was more than I felt I could handle at the time."

Trudell had second thoughts — just in time.

At 3:30 p.m. on Saturday before the Tuesday drawing aboard the Emerald Isle Trudell phoned the chamber office to inquire if tickets were still available. Three remained. The office would close at 4 p.m.

Rick ran to his truck, drove from Petoskey to Charlevoix, arrived at the office at 3:55 p.m. just in time to pick the eventual winning ticket from the hand of chamber president Jacqueline Merta.

As you might expect, Trudell could not believe he had actually won the new vehicle with a sticker price of nearly $30,000.

A couple of days earlier, Trudell decided against trading in his old van and buying a new truck. "I couldn't afford the payments on a new truck, so I decided to buy out the lease option on the one I was driving."

Some guys have all the luck.

Conservation groups plan Charlevoix watershed trolley tour

Several local conservation organizations, civic leaders, and grassroots "friends" will team up to present a unique educational program, and a tour of the Lake Charlevoix watershed from aboard the Charlevoix County Trolley.

The first Fall Lake Charlevoix Watershed Ramble will take place Saturday, Oct. 9, 1999 starting at 10 a.m. at the Wolverine Dilworth Hotel in downtown Boyne City.

The free event will begin with bagels and doughnuts followed by four 10-minute presentations by Charlevoix County conservation leaders.

Tom Sheets, president of Friends of the Boyne River will speak about restoring the cold water fishery of the river. A Friends of the Jordan spokesperson will discuss the State Land Reserve Act and will introduce tour participants to the new Jordan River Watershed Center.

Jo Anne Beemon will speak on new conservation and land protection opportunities. Steve Hansen, president of the Lake Charlevoix Association will address the basics of riparian rights and provide an update on the DME project, and the status of buoys in the Ironton narrows.

The Charlevoix County Trolley will tour the Lake Charlevoix watershed with stops at the Boyne River and the Mill Ponds, upland tributaries of Deer Creek and the Jordan River, the new Jordan River Watershed Center, the Jordan River Sedge Marsh Preserve, and the Ironton Ferry.

The tour will stop for lunch at Darleen's restaurant in East Jordan, continue around Lake Charlevoix and return to Boyne City.

There is no charge to participate. Donations to the conservation organization of your choice are welcome.

Please reserve your place on the tour by Friday, Oct. 1, by calling Tom Sheets at 582-5824 or Jo Anne Beemon at 237-9335.

Township to flush water lines

The Charlevoix Township Water Department will flush water lines Oct. 4-6.

The process may cause temporary discoloration of water.

Water users are advised not to drink, cook or do laundry with cloudy or yellowed water.

Such water should be run for several minutes until clear water runs through the lines, according to Carol Martin, Charlevoix Township clerk.

SCRAPBOOK

COLONIAL CLUB GUTTED BY FIRE

Its season brought to untimely close

Most of damage done by water — Fittings and furniture was saved--A mean fire

The elegant Colonial Club, located at Meech and Cherry streets and also known as Kock's, caught fire and may have burned to the ground if not for fast action by the local fire department. (Photo courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society)

(Editor's note: The following Scrapbook feature was compiled by Cynthia Postmus, with help from the Charlevoix Public Library, from old Courier news stories. This story is reprinted in its entirety, exactly as it appeared on September 5, 1923.)

The summer season of the Colonial Club, of this city, was brought to an untimely close last Saturday morning, when the wall caught fire, just back of the kitchen range, the flames rapidly working their way up between the partitions to the roof.

The alarm sounded at twenty minutes past eleven and at half past, a fair proportion of the town's population was assembled to view the proceedings.

The work of fighting the flames was delayed a trifle on account of the necessity of removing one of the French cooks from a third story bedroom window.

This gentleman had gone to his room at the time the fire was discovered to gather up his belongings and found his escape cut off by smoke. It was thought for a while that he would jump, but he kept his nerve and managed to tie a rope that was thrown to him around one of the bathroom fixtures and, by the aid of this and a long ladder, he finally made his way safely to the ground.

Holes were chopped in the kitchen roof and the sides of the building on the second and third floors and through these openings streams of water and chemicals were turned onto the blaze. The fire was a mean one to handle, on account of its being confined to partitions and between floor and ceiling spaces.

In the meantime, employees of the Club were engaged in carrying out the furniture, fixtures and hangings, assisted by a number of volunteers from the ranks of the spectators.

Most of the stuff was carried into the dining room annex of the club, next door, and some of it to the Meech cottage, corner of Dixon and Prospect.

Most of the damage, as is usual in this kind of a fire, was done by water. At one-thirty p.m., the firemen were still working on isolated spots between the flooring and in the upstairs walls where the flames still stubbornly threatened to break out afresh.

On the second and first floors, water streamed from the ceilings like a spring rain and the carpets and cotton filled pads that are laid underneath were as the sodden surface of a marsh, oozing water under one's feet.

Much credit is due the fire department for the masterly way in which they handled a difficult situation. There was a great deal of roof and siding to cover and as most of it was burning simultaneously it meant some tall scrambling on the part of the fire lads to keep all parts of it in check.

The building was completely redecorated this spring and now, almost all this work will have to be done over. It will probably be some little time before the club will be open again to patrons. We understand that the loss was fully covered by insurance, although its extent cannot, at this time, be fully estimated.

Dance-a-thon to benefit cancer research

Feel like partying? Feel like striking a blow against cancer? Now you can do both at the same time!

Preparations are being made for the second annual "Rockin' for Research" Dance-a-thon and Fair, to be held from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 23 at the East Jordan High School.

All proceeds from the 12-hour fund-raiser in Charlevoix County will go toward cancer research conducted through the Great Lakes Division of the American Cancer Society.

Dance teams, backed by donations from local corporate and other sponsors, will use a "tag team" approach to keep at least one couple dancing to a variety of music for all 12 hours.

The event will also include an arts and crafts fair, hourly door prize drawings, celebrity spokespeople, fishing seminars, and more. Booth space is available for a $25 donation.

Voters to decide future of Charlevoix schools

By B. J. Hetler

With the Charlevoix Public School district bond election on Oct. 11 fast-approaching, residents have a myriad of opinions about the schools' needs.

Nearly everyone contacted by the Courier agreed, however, that improvements are in order, especially for the middle school.

While many parents said they plan to vote for the bond proposal, some high school students do not think everything proposed is necessary. They question the need for a new high school, and say it's not necessary to spend the $18.8 million that the school board requests.

Retiree Robert Heath has no children in school. He will vote for the bond proposal and said that after attending school sessions, he is informed on the issue.

"Compared to past issues, this one stands as the best one," Heath said. "It's an opportunity to take care of things for the future."

Heath noted how the land issue divided voters in the last election, and said the board has shown leadership on that aspect.

In the unsuccessful bond election of 1996, land being considered by that year's board members was not disclosed to the voters, as promised. This time, voters know before the election the location of the land for the new high school.

"The board has taken care of the land issue by buying it," he said.

The $18,825,000 bond proposal calls for 2.84 mills and a 20-year term. If passed, the school district will build a new high school on 74 acres of land that it has agreed to purchase. The land is located on Marion Center Road, between Clark and Veenstra roads. The purchase price is $250,000.

The middle school students would move into a remodeled high school, along with upper elementary grades five and six. An addition would be built onto the elementary school.

The land location promotes much discussion by residents. Concerns center around the location being several miles from downtown. Students will no longer be able to walk or ride their bikes to school, some say, resulting in the need for more buses and more expense.

Another concern is that Marion Center Road is a dangerous road by design.

But school superintendent, Dr. John Sturock, said that the City of Charlevoix plans to improve the road. One of the changes will have traffic entering and exiting onto U.S. 31 instead of onto M-66.

Decision time

Charlevoix school district voters will decide an $18.8 million school bonding proposal on Monday, Oct. 11. Proponents and opponents of the issue have worked hard to explain their respective side of the issues at hand. Here, Bill Trubilowicz, co-chair of the Charlevoix School Facilities Committee, answers a question from Nancy Beghein. The mother of a fifth grade son, Beghein believes education is the number one priority for keeping the community vital. "It is time for the middle school to be replaced," she said. County reviews corrections program contract, accepts audit

By B. J. Hetler

County commissioners declined to make a decision on awarding a $120,000 one-year contract for the community corrections program to CHIP Counseling Center.

The community corrections program is a state-funded program under Public Act 511. It exists to relieve prison and jail overcrowding by providing methods where non-violent criminals serve their time outside of customary confinement. Methods include counseling and devices such as electronic monitors.

CHIP Counseling was awarded the contract last year to administer the program.

At the county board meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 22, commissioner Don Smith expressed concerns about the state-funding being jeopardized, because state requirements aren't being met.

Smith brought up several issues.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said the city and Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) have planned improvements of Marion Center Road for several years. Stover Road at M-66 will be closed and an extension of Marion Center Road will take the traffic out to U.S. 31.

It is undecided whether there will be a traffic light at that intersection. The project is estimated at $450,000. MDOT will cover $300,000, and the city is seeking grants to help with the remaining $150,000.

Resident Dale Boss will vote against the proposal solely because of the land location.

"I have absolutely nothing against building new buildings for the kids," Boss said. "For the long-term, a new high school is the best choice."

But he said the location of the land is not a good decision. He objects to the cost of bringing utilities to the area, estimated at approximately $1 million.

Marion Center Road has the highest volume of traffic in the county, Boss said. Another concern he has is the growth in the area initiated by the building of a high school.

"The urban sprawl will ruin this town," Boss said. "If they want Charlevoix to look like Traverse City, they're on their way."

A budget allocation of $27,000 to provide intensive outpatient services to 60 qualifying felon and misdemeanant offenders has served approximately half that many for the last two years. He suggested reallocating a portion of the $27,000 to another service, or finding out why more offenders are not receiving the outpatient services.

Smith asked about the extent of interaction with the other five county community corrections agencies in the region, and whether counties are learning from each other and participating in training programs.

It is time to consider placing the Char-Em Community Corrections staff and administration under the circuit court or a sheriff's department, Smith said. In other action, commissioner Carl Price reported that the state had completed an inspection of the county building inspection office and possible conflicts of interest.

Some changes were made to the office. An agreement was made with Antrim county that it would inspect any building in Charlevoix county that was owned by Charlevoix county officials.

Another change removed county commissioners Price and Jim Behling from the construction code board to avoid any appearance of a conflict. Stephen Wiseman and Barry Wood were appointed in their places.

Gaudette & Company, certified public accountants from Traverse City, presented an independent audit of the county's general fund for the year ended Dec. 31, 1998. Don Breadon advised the board on minor procedural matters, but gave the county complements on its financial state.

"Charlevoix county is probably the most stable county in the state. It's in very good shape," Brandon said.

School year moving along smoothly at Northwest Academy

By B. J. Hetler

Northwest Academy moved easily into a new school year on Sept. 7, welcoming 94 students to its diverse curriculum.

The six-12-grade charter school saw a 25 percent increase in student enrollment this year, administrator Steve Bennett said. The academy is chartered through Saginaw Valley State University.

Bennett begins his second school year with the academy. He was so popular with the students during his first year, that they dedicated the yearbook to him. He is proud of each and every student and says he believes he knows each one by name.

"I love these kids," he said. "All of us do. We're family here."

Bennett moved from Chicago to Charlevoix seven years ago where he had worked as a store manager. He opened the Mac Dougall House, a bed-and-breakfast, which he and his family operate. His wife, Sandra, is a registered nurse and a nursing supervisor at Charlevoix Area Hospital. A son, Daniel, 18, is an honor roll student at Lake Superior State University. Daughter, Marcy, 15, is a sophomore in high school and an accomplished flutist.

Bennett was a part-time mathematics teacher at the academy when parents suggested he take the administrator's position made vacant by the resignation of Pascale Asbury.

Northwest Academy is technology-based, with an emphasis on mathematics and science, but it holds national acclaim for its 17-member jazz band.

It played at the Michigan Association of Private Schools state and national conventions in Colorado, and earned a superior rating at a jazz fest in Colorado Springs. A band-exchange trip to England is planned in February.

Bennett gives recognition to band teacher, Gary Stutzman. "We are so fortunate to have him at this school," he said.

Stutzman, a Charlevoix native, joined Northwest Academy as its band director in 1996. He holds bachelor and master degrees in music from Northern Michigan University. He was with the Charlevoix High School In the 1970s where he taught band and other classes and coached.

"He'll do anything, anything for the kids," Bennett said. "You should see it in this hall when practice is over. He'll be walking down the hall with kids all around him, talking to him."

Stutzman looks at the students as individuals.

"Everyone is important to the program. I treat them as though they're important. And I'm listening when they want someone to talk to."

It's an art to motivate the students.

"There's a fine line between discipline issues and work," Stutzman said. "You can be firm, but you should be human, too." Students need to have high goals, but also need to know what is expected of them.

Twins Carolyn and Rachel Bellairs are ninth-grade students and attend band classes.

"It's the highlight of our day," Carolyn said. She plays the flute, baritone and tenor sax.

Rachel, who plays the trumpet, agrees and credits Stutzman.

"He's awesome," she said. "He likes to get us performing in a lot of places and I like performing."

The band program offers advanced band, as well, and the academy boasts a fully-operational recording studio. The jazz band has recorded a CD that they are selling to raise band funds. Nine band members spent part of their summer at Blue Lake Music Camp. They traveled to Luxembourg, Germany and France as part of their time with Blue Lake.

Accomplishments in other areas are a source of pride for Bennett and the academy staff.

Four technology students are programming and trouble-shooting computers. Their training is hands-on, and they're performing college-level work, Bennett said.

Some of the students are dual-enrolled with North Central Michigan College. Seven of the nine seniors are dual-enrolled, Bennett said. If ACT scores are high enough and students pass college tests with a "B" or better, they may participate. Northwest Academy pays for the class credit tuition.

A popular elective science class is the wilderness program.

"Normal class size is 15-20 students," Bennett said. "But the wilderness program class has up to 30 students, simply because there's so many students who want to take it."

Along with receiving an education in environmental studies, the instructors teach students basic outdoor self-sufficiency skills. Students take camping trips and learn how to build a fire, to store and prepare food, and how to test water quality.

Northwest Academy hired a new teacher this year, making a total of nine full-time teachers. Michelle Utley was hired to teach language arts and drama. She comes from the Boyne City schools where she was a para-professional teaching the four core classes.

Utley teaches middle school grades. She earned a teaching degree in language arts and elementary education from Grand Valley State University.

Now is the time to make the decision to work together

DOUG DRAPAL

On Monday, October 11 Charlevoix voters will go to the polls to decide if they want to pay $18,825,000 to build a new high school, remodel the elementary school, and renovate the existing high school for upper elementary and middle school use.

Some three years ago a controversial school millage proposal here was soundly defeated in a vote of the people. The reasons for its demise were many and varied.

Since then, students, teachers, parents and civic leaders arrived at a conclusion that improvements to school facilities are a local priority, now more than ever.

Now is the time for citizens to step up, make a choice, and do what they feel is right for the children of Charlevoix and the community as a whole.

As a newcomer to the area, I didn't know why the last millage failed. So, I set out to learn a bit about what happened then, and more importantly, how people, taxpayers, and voters feel about the pending issue, today.

Since early July, I have spoken with scores of year-round and summer-only residents in an attempt to gain insight and an understanding about matters of concern. Each individual offered an opinion and unique perspective on practically every issue — the pending school millage election was no exception.

Charlevoix has a well-earned reputation as a controversial, opinionated, uninhibited and politicized small town — all qualities that help keep chatter in restaurants, bars, church and service club meetings interesting and lively, especially during the long, cold winter.

One area of near unanimous agreement is the recognized, serious need for improvements to the existing school buildings and educational facilities in the district. Last March, an exploratory, community forum was held to revive the school facilities issue and encourage open and public discussion.

A 26-member citizens committee evolved from that gathering. It accepted the task of gathering information and exploring all options related to improving Charlevoix's schools. The individuals involved in this process represented a cross-section of the community — parents of school-age children, educators, retirees, business people and more.

The committee met frequently over several weeks to share information and talk through ideas, opinions, options and suggestions. They hosted yet another open community forum to welcome and encourage public comment. Finally, the committee came to a consensus and made specific recommendations to the school board which accepted their proposals unanimously.

Bond cost and bricks and mortar issues were generally agreed upon by all. What wasn't known or decided at the time was the specific site for the new high school.

Eventually, a four-person site selection committee, plus an independent, professional consulting firm studied 11 parcels of land as potential locations. An objective, detailed and weighted set of criteria was used to examine characteristics such as location, development potential, transportation, land features, utilities and acquisition cost. Independently, the committee members and the experts unanimously agreed. The best site currently available was 74 acres along Marion Center and Veenstra roads south of town in rural Marion Township.

On Sept. 17 the school board approved the purchase of the property for $250,000. That's when the spit hit the fan and a new round of ardent opposition to the school bonding proposal emerged.

I agree with the board's decision.

The selected site is not perfect. However, it is the best option available at this time.

From a purely financial standpoint, the cost of money needed to finance a project of this size may never be "cheaper" than it is right now. Interest rates have risen recently and may continue to do so.

In recent weeks, opponents have raised many valid concerns, but most are proverbial red herrings.

The most important issue here is this — what is best for our children, our students and our community in the long view?

I believe, when it is all said and done, that a new, technologically advanced high school with an auditorium and campus along Marion Center Road will prove to be among Charlevoix's prized crown jewels.

However, a new high school, wherever it is located, will immediately become a magnet for residential and commercial growth.

The greatest challenge ahead will be to manage growth, not vainly attempt to halt it.

The giant ship of change, Progress, is already here. It won't turn back. We can't stop it. But we can control it with little "trim tabs" called planning and zoning regulations.

"I do not blindly oppose progress," environmentalist David Brower said. "I oppose blind progress."

I agree.

Now is the time for opposing sides to join forces for a common good. Realistic preservation of the natural beauty and thoughtful managed development can be accomplished and co-exist in the 21st century.

I implore the critics of this school site and bonding issue to re-direct your same passion, fervor and energy to influence the land-use planners in Marion Township to do what is right when it comes to creating a meaningful growth plan and vision for the area.

I ask the citizens of Charlevoix to consider all the issues, then get out and vote — YES!

Editor:

Three things, not four have a direct bearing on quality of education. (1) Quality of Teachers (2) Quality of Curriculum (3) Quality of Facilities and in that I include infrastructure and technological equipment. The dirt on which these facilities are located has no bearing one way or the other. It may have an impact on the parents in terms of convenience or inconvenience and of course, that will happen no matter what site was chosen.

Only two sites truly met the criteria test. One on the north side, and the one chosen. From the downtown traffic light, they are equal distance. Although we will never know for sure, I believe the dollars involved on the two sites are probably a wash. The north side property does have sewer and water in the area, although not to the site itself. Land preparation on the north side would far exceed that of the south side property. I have also had experience in mitigating wetlands and while it is possible to develop a site like the north side property for home sites, placing them here and there throughout the property as appropriate, it is difficult to do on a structure the size of a new high school with a gym, an auditorium and parking lots. Personally, I have been an adamant proponent of keeping all of our schools downtown, however, someone should have thought of this some 20 years ago when property was still available.

I was one of the 26 people on the steering committee. When I was first asked to be a member of the committee, I initially wondered, "Why me?" I had never even been in the middle school or high school. Then I thought, "Why not me?" for that very reason. I bring no bias to the committee. We spent countless hours and weeks becoming educated and I am absolutely convinced of two things as a result of that education. Number one, the third option is absolutely the right option, and number two, no matter where the property is located we are always going to have those that are happy and those that are not. However, I cannot understand a "NO" vote from those that are doing so because of the property issue. Talk about taking your ball and bat and going home if you don't get everything your way. This is not a personal decision. It is a community decision and in that one does not always get everything one desires. Don't lose sight of the real issue and this is...appropriate facilities and technology to make our children competitive in a worldwide economy. Quality schools are the backbone of any community and we are all affected directly or indirectly whether we have school aged children or not.

Many schools have passed millages prior to the property even being chosen. A recent example is Traverse City. I have lived in a number of communities and I have never seen a few people get so irrational and emotional about a decision that has no bearing on quality of education. Even though I live downtown, I personally would have preferred a new high school on the north side, however, using our site criteria evaluation, it simply did not add up and again, it will not matter to my children. In fairness to the majority of the 700 students bussed in our system 500 live south of the bridge. In reality, no matter which site was chosen, not many high school students would walk to either school. It is much more important to keep our elementary and middle schools in town. Also, in the foreseeable future, I don't think we will be able to borrow money for less than we can now.

I have talked to many, many people that have had the same questions that I had prior to being involved in the steering committee. The bus barn location, as an example, is a no because it is under the final approach to the airport. The 19 acres behind the elementary school, which contrary to one letter is not "secret," could not realistically handle a high school, gym, auditorium and practice fields. I also don't think we want a grade school and a high school adjacent to one another. All of the huge traffic going next to the grade school in order to get behind it to the 19 acres would present a real safety issue, not to mention we are going to expand the elementary school if the millage passes.

On one hand, I get angry when I hear and read some of the comments which give the 26 members of the steering committee no credit for having brain one, on the other hand, I know the lack of knowledge that I personally had prior to going through the process, and I feel that perhaps we have shortchanged the community. We have attempted and are still attempting to do so, however, it is not easy. Of the two forums we held, only 100 or so people attended each. Frankly, I sometimes feel we are singing to the choir. I don't want to talk to the people that

Editor:

Over three decades ago the Charlevoix School Board displayed extraordinary foresight in purchasing 19 acres of unrestricted land from 6 different property owners. A portion of the property was dedicated to construction of the present elementary school, with the remaining acreage available for future use.

The vision of the 1967 School Board was confirmed at a community forum this past spring. The majority of forum participants cited in town locations and additional room for expansion at the elementary school as the strongest attributes of our school facilities.

Though we are now faced with a school mileage proposal which disregards history and public sentiment, the wisdom of our predecessors is undeniable. Effective use of school system land at the elementary school opens numerous options to maintain the in town integrity of our schools.

Many alternatives have simply not yet been analyzed, such as expansion for a fifth and sixth grade wing at the elementary school. Construction of additional facilities is also possible, through acquisition of property adjacent to the elementary school. Ten acres of neighboring land is potentially available between Petoskey and Division avenues, as is an additional 10 acre tract which the City of Charlevoix owns, adjacent to the City golf course and the elementary school property.

These alternatives, or some variation may or may not be the best means to improve our school facilities. However, they would facilitate continued presence of the high school at the most outstanding location in Charlevoix, i.e. at its current site. These options merit consideration and public input before Charlevoix is committed to an out of town high school.

One additional fact is undeniable. Any extension of the municipal sewer system along Marion Center Road opens the potential for a corridor of "sprawl commercial development." In light of the recent history of such development into the outlying rural areas of our Traverse City neighbors, is this a risk which Charlevoix also wishes to accept?

We would support a millage that would improve our school facilities in a way which makes sense for Charlevoix both now and for decades to come. If the current proposal passes, there is no going back. A "no" vote will, however, allow us to re-explore the best possible plan for our entire community.

Sincerely,
Paula M. Barron
Laurie Lesser Hodgson

Two parents (of school-aged children) who are vitally interested in the improvement of our schools and our community as a whole.

Editor:

I am writing to express my support for the upcoming bond proposal in Charlevoix. The proposal to build a new high school on the 74-acre parcel on Marion Center Road is, without a doubt, the best choice of all the alternatives available to the Charlevoix Schools.

Much has been made in recent days concerning the selection of the site on Marion Center Road. First, the selection of the site was not kept a secret by the School Board. Rather, the School Board did not disclose the location of the sites which were being considered for the simple reason that they did not want those sites to become acquired by other developers before the school had the proper agreements in place. In point of fact, one such site, the site across from the soccer fields, did become public and was acquired by two local developers before the school had an opportunity to even enter into negotiations with the owner. Any accusations that the School Board or any of its committees kept the site selection process secret is simply false.

Second, I have heard that the site selected for the new high school is on the south side of the bridge. This too is a red herring and completely ignores the real issue, that it is time to build a new school for the children in Charlevoix. The present high school and middle school are located south of the bridge, as are the vast majority of the students who will be attending the new school. Additionally, locating the high school on the selected site means that the bus garage will be centrally located to all three school buildings, thereby creating easier, more economical bus routes.

Third, the Marion Center Road property is the most economical piece of property for the school to purchase. Moreover, it will provide for a long term solution for the school's future expansion needs. As one member of the facilities committee so eloquently stated (who also wrote a letter last week to this paper) "the school should buy as much property as it can, anywhere it can, within the school district as quickly as possible." Many people have commented that the Hoffman property at the intersection of Boyne City Road and U. S. 31 would have been a better site. I can tell you that I have personally represented several developers who have looked extensively at that property. They have conducted feasibility studies which included soil analysis and wetland evaluations. All of them have concluded that the property is simply not suitable for the type of large scale development that the price (in excess of $1 million) would dictate. Very simply, the Hoffman property, while attractive on its face, is not a suitable piece of property for the development of our high school. There must be some reason why that property has been on the market for two years and still hasn't sold — especially in this market.

During the last millage election, one vocal opponent argued that trucks were being stuck up to their axles on the property by Castle Farms. Anyone who has walked the Hoffman property will realize that property is at least as wet as the property by Castle Farms. No one could logically argue against the M-66 property and in favor of the Hoffman property.

Fourth, people are claiming that the Marion Center Road is not a safe road upon which to build a school. One opponent has even claimed that Marion Center Road is the busiest road in the county. Obviously, any highway or road can be dangerous. In point of fact, U. S. 31 is the busiest road in the Charlevoix School District. Moreover, the intersection of Boyne City Road and U. S. 31 is one of the most dangerous intersection in the county.

Finally, the City of Charlevoix is taking steps to create a new intersection of U. S. 31 and Marion Center Road that will greatly improve safety in that area. Additional measures, such as reducing the speed limit and increasing police patrols in that area, will also improve safety. There is no reason that Marion Center Road cannot become one of the safest roads within the school district.

I believe that the new high school is extremely important to the entire community. Clearly, it will provide a tremendous benefit and competitive edge to our children. It will also provide an important facility which the entire community will be able to enjoy.

Please make the right choice and vote YES on October 11.

Very truly yours,
Richard E. Joseph

How sadly ironic it was to read the announcement in the September 22, 1999 edition of The Petoskey News-Review of the purchase of 74 acres of farmland in Marion Township by the Charlevoix School Board. Ironic, because in that same edition, three pages later, was an article concerning the loss of farmland in the state of Michigan reported by Senator George McManus's Agricultural Preservation Task Force.

Michigan has experienced a loss of 7.2 million acres of farmland since the turn-of-the-century. Not only is this land lost forever to crop production, but also lost is the pastoral vista. These open rural areas have helped our tourist and resort industry develop; they are the reason people come to visit our part of the state.

Because of past poor facilities design, lack of long-range planning, and poor school maintenance, the students of Charlevoix truly need, and deserve, a new high school (and middle school) as well). But the plan to bus every high school student from town to a site 1.1 mile beyond the new post office, in rural Marion Township is ill conceived from the beginning. The number one concern voiced by the public at the March '99 focus meeting: keeping the school sites in town. What part of in do the school board members and administration not understand?

To select a site that is farmland, in full crop production, that lies 2.6 miles out of town, that has no sewer, no water, no natural gas, accessed by unimproved dirt roads, and fraught with possible conflicts of interest of school board members in inexcusable. The board and administration deserve a failing grade. I hope educated voters in the Charlevoix School District will join me in voting NO on October 11, helping to prevent the continuation of urban sprawl, keeping Charlevoix and its rural countryside beautiful!

To the voters in the Charlevoix School District —

Before casting your ballot for the school facility bond issue, please consider the following:

- We elect seven of our fellow citizens to represent us on the Board of Education. They have made a very reasonable recommendation for new and improved school facilities and they need and deserve our support.
- For the past several decades we have paid very little for bond issues as compared with other school districts. Now it's time to catch up.
- Because of our relatively high state equalized valuation, we receive much more in return for every dollar we spend for school facilities.
- Churches, township halls, county buildings, jails, roads, and parks have been improved over the past few years. Now it is the time for the school buildings to be brought in line.
- If a person wants to vote against the bond proposal, they can find a reason to do so, such as cost, site location, grouping of grades, etc. Overall, however, this is an excellent package at a very reasonable cost.

Like most of you, we do not like the idea of higher taxes but we know our students and teachers deserve better facilities. We also feel that at some point we must have faith in those we have elected to represent us.

We ask you to join us in supporting the bond issue on October 11. Let's show what Charlevoix community pride can do!

Sincerely,

To the Charlevoix Taxpayers,

How many of you read the letter written by Dale Boss printed in the Courier last week?

This is the man whose initiative and persistence is responsible for Charlevoix the Beautiful becoming Charlevoix the petunia city. Every summer thousands of tourists get off the expressways and travel through Charlevoix to see this remarkable sight.

Dale is the man who, together with his talented wife each winter at the cost of thousands of hours of painstaking time (and thousands of dollars) exhibits freely on his property a veritable fairyland of childhood figures and stories for the enjoyment of children and their parents who come from far-away places to look, listen, wander and wonder.

Can you doubt that this man loves children and loves Charlevoix?

No one denies that Charlevoix needs a new school building; the only question is where to put it. Dale's letter makes it obvious that the Marion Center Road parcel is not our only option as the school board would have us believe. Indeed, it is not even the best option. An available site on Waller Road means fewer dollars for the tax payers and better, safer facilities for our children.

Consider: The Marion Center Road parcel is an open field with no positives. It has no water, no sewers, no electricity, and no fire protection. There is no playground, and no sports facilities nearby. It is on the county road in this area; it will require the MDOT to straighten out the curves and make it useable. This site will cost 1.6 million, with utilities.

The Waller Road site is near U.S. 31 N. It is close to sewer and water. The fire department is right across the street as well as natural gas and two electric companies. Some of the best soccer fields are closely accessible as is the new swimming pool. This site will cost 1 million.

The board's choice of the Marion Center Road site is NOT a "done deal." That group of elected officials cannot commit fifteen hundred tax payers to something they don't want. We have an opportunity at this election to make the decision. Sometimes electors make poor decisions; witness the fact that we elected a president who's perjury and concupiscence have made this country the subject of laughter and pity all over the world.

Hopefully we won't make a mistake choosing the site of the school which will serve Charlevoix children for the next one hundred years.

Please, everyone vote October 11. And please, be wise; vote NO on the Marion Center Road parcel for your children's school.

Five months ago the Building & Grounds Committee of the Charlevoix Board of Education was given the assignment of identifying the best available location to purchase property for the construction of a high school. To guarantee a factual, objective review, we were given 35 specific evaluation criteria to accomplish this goal. During this process we evaluated 11 parcels. The Marion Center property was selected by our committee and unanimously approved by the school board. There have been specific questions raised concerning the Waller Road property evaluation.

Based on the criteria, that included location and flexibility for the future, the Waller Road site had a number of major concerns. Not only was the asking price over four times more than the Marion Center property, there were significant wetland issues.

The cost and ability to ever mitigate 38% of the property (identified wetlands) raised major concerns during our evaluation. Wetland mitigation can be an expensive and time-consuming legal process, with many unknowns. If we were not able (either financially or legally) to accomplish this, we would be left with only 30.8 acres for the school and no room for future growth.

This would equate to about $35,000 per acre, for known buildable property, at the Waller Road site, as opposed to a 74-acre parcel on Marion Center with no wetland concerns and a per acre cost of $3,300.

Although price was only one factor in our evaluation, we are certain that preparing the Waller Road site for construction would exceed our $1.6 million budget for land acquisition and preparation.

We've done our homework, vote YES October 11.

I feel compelled to write this letter regarding the proposed building of the Charlevoix High School, and its location. I attended the Community Forum meeting on March 9, 1999. At this meeting, there were 3 options proposed by the community:

Option 1: Build, rebuild, rehab, expand all schools at their existing sites.

Option 2: Build new facilities in town.

Option 3: Build new facilities out of town.

At this meeting it was also recommended that there be another Community Forum to discuss these options and list the positives, negatives and costs.

A second Community Forum was not held and the community of Charlevoix did not receive the information it asked for.

Now all of a sudden, we're building a high school out of town on Marion Center Road. What Community Forum made that decision? In March at the forum 53% of the people present voted to keep the schools at their original locations, or to build in town.

Charlevoix Elementary sits on 19 acres. The land was purchased in 1967 for future needs... This is the future. The high school has 5 acres, room for expansion. Work with what we have.

The community of Charlevoix is being asked to make a decision that will affect our schools and children without all the information to make a well informed choice.

Vote NO and keep Charlevoix schools in town.

Thank you,

Monica J. Mailloux

Some of the voter/taxpayers already know that I have changed my position on the school facilities issue in Charlevoix. Previously, I was concerned about what was being offered and especially the cost. This is a bargain compared to what it was the last time.

I have listened closely to the three proposals put forward by the facilities committee. Proposals 1 & 2 were shorter term than the third, and probably would have required another millage in 10 years on top of the original, making a double whammy on the taxpayers. All the ideas I am aware of have been included in the three proposals. The third, was the most comprehensive, long-term solution the committee proposed and ultimately recommended to the school board.

I heard Dale Boss say, "I believe in getting the most bang for my buck," in support of this proposal.

The committee was fully aware that the public would want to know where the high school would be built that was in proposal three.

We elected a school board, who found a new superintendent. Together, they formed a broad based public committee to recommend facilities. And now a board committee researched, selected and the board bought a suitable property to place a new high school. All of this was done within the scope of the responsibilities of the board members we elected.

The price tag for the facilities, the property and utilities are within the projected estimates in the proposal that will be voted on. The cost of this proposal is a real bargain when compared with the previous one.

I believe our new superintendent and the board have done a very good job and deserve our support by voting YES on the coming millage issue.

Three "new" schools for the price of one is a pretty good deal for the voters of the Charlevoix School District who face a millage vote in October. Actually, only one new building is proposed, but the millage provides for the upgrading of two of the districts buildings that will "renew" them for effective use for at least another 20 years.

The elementary grades will remain in the existing elementary school building with some remodeling that will effectively improve the learning environment for quality education into the 21st century.

The upper elementary and middle schoolers will get a "new" building in that they will move to the renovated present high school building. Renovating the present high school building into an upper elementary (grades 5 and 6) and middle school (grades 7 and 8) is a wise move academically and economically. The upgraded high school building will provide for the technological and curricular advancements the middle schoolers need that would not have been as economically feasible by upgrading the present outdated middle school building.

The construction of a new high school, with an auditorium, provides for the much needed upgrading of science, trades and technology facilities that could not have been as economically feasible by renovating the present high school building for continued use as a high school.

It was my privilege to serve on the Facilities Steering Committee (comprised of a representative cross section of the community) and after many hours of intensive study of volumes of data it was our unanimous decision that the plan that is being presented for the millage vote was the best academically, technologically and economically. It's a win-win-win situation.

I'm voting YES.

I'd like to express my thanks to all the hard-working community members who are putting long hours in for the upcoming bond issue. While I was home reading a good book, they were trudging over parcels of land, getting data from numerous experts and documenting facts, listening to public input, and answering questions. They spent hours upon hours working with the gathered information, listening to opinions, and finally coming up with a plan that is based on the best public knowledge available. And always, always with one thing in mind... what is best for the kids.

Now is the time for the rest of us to do our part. It is time to go to the polls on Monday, October 11 and vote yes for the kids, yes for Charlevoix.

It is time to do away with the excuses heard last time, like not liking the superintendent. It is time to do away with the excuses heard now, like it's not on my side of town, or I wasn't on the land selection committee. It is time to plan out your trip to the polls on Monday, and do away with the I'm too busy, too tired, or can't find a sitter thought. Child care is being made available at the polling site, courtesy of the Citizens for Quality Schools.

My children are grown and done with public education. I know though, that others made sacrifices for them to have the best possible education. Now I have to continue that duty. I want today's youth educated, caring people, because they are going to be the ones in power when I am old and fragile.

Remember Charlevoix, no excuses on Monday, October 11. Vote YES for the kids, YES for Charlevoix.

As parents with two children in this school system, and very much in favor of the proposed bond issue, the two of us would just like to say to this community, please vote YES! Our children of this town need new schools. Any one of these people that are not for this bond are missing the issue. It isn't just about a location. It's about the future of the welfare of the children that go to school here.

This is a time when Charlevoix could do the right thing and not get cought up in their personal agendas. In ten years, there is going to be a huge difference in the growth of this community, and to build a school on a piece of land needs to be looking down the road at what it is going to be like here in ten or fifteen or twenty years. Boyne City voted their bond issue in and so should we.

This committee got together with the CHILDREN'S best interest in mind, and the community needs to have some faith in this committee.

We are at a huge crossroads and this is not a time when I would not want to be one of the people that is in favor of doing something extremely important to the welfare of the future of this town.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Joe Johnston
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Have you ever wondered why some people make it to the big time while others do not? Maybe they have written a best selling book, struck it rich on Wall Street, or had a clever idea that landed them in a pile of instant fame. Yet, there are others who seem to be chronic underachievers. They never seem to have enough.

What makes up the dividing line between the two groups of people? I believe at either end of the dividing string that separates the two groups there are two important words: courage and potential.

A common factor in everyone who has ever done anything outstanding in life is courage. They may have obtained the rank of General in the military, saved an infant in a house fire, come up with the latest technological breakthrough, lead the largest multimillion dollar corporation in the world or broke the world record for the fastest mile. The same characteristic is true of all of them. They have COURAGE!

Courage is one of the greatest forces known to man. It causes us to go beyond the boundaries. It drives us to do what is impossible. It dares us to attempt what few others have done before or never done at all. Courage does for a common man what a phone booth did for Clark Kent.

But from where does it come? It comes only from one source. That source is potential. Potential is holding the other end of the string that separates the ordinary from the outstanding.

Potential as it is defined in layman's terms is "power in reserve." It's the ability of tapping into a storage container of dynamite. It's what tells you "you have backup," there's more on the way. It's possibility.

The Bible tells us in Genesis 1:27 that God made man in His own image. One of the descriptive words for God is Omnipotent. or "all power" or "all potential." Since we are created in His image we possess all the potential we need. God, our Creator, has given us omnipotence because it comes from Him. It is Him.

People who do outstanding things in life are those who glean courage from their potential. Many of them do not realize where it comes from so they claim ownership of it. How silly they are to think that it comes completely and solely from them.

It is God's plan that we succeed in everything we do. However, we must realize our purpose in God and do what He has designed for us. People who are discontent are operating outside of their intended purpose.

Let God--The Lord Jesus Christ--show you His purpose for your existence. He will reveal to you the potential that will ignite courage in your life.

Letters to the editor

YES!

Editor:

In March1999, I attended a public forum for interested citizens of the school district to discuss facility needs. As a result of the forum, a 24 member Facilities Steering Committee was formed, of which I was one.

As our committee began discussions of school facilities needs, I strongly supported building a new middle school. It was obvious to me —it was the oldest building and needed the most work. I held my ground for about four weeks until a school facilities professional presented three options. Remodel all buildings, $14.4 million or 2.12 mills. Build a new middle school and remodel the elementary and high school, $16.6 million of 2.48 mills. Build a new high school with an auditorium, remodel old high school and elementary school, $19.5 million or 2.84 mills.

After hours and hours of discussions, the picture became clear and I was a convert. Why a new high school?

Here is why:

1. Best bang for our buck. A new high school satisfies our facility needs for at least 20 years at which time the bond would be paid.

2. Old high school is remodeled into a 7/8 middle school and a 5/6 upper elementary. Also building a new high school makes an easy transition by moving 9-12 to a new school.

3. Returns elementary school to a K-4 and creates 20-21 class size for all grades in K-4.

There are more reasons I support this bond issue which are illustrated in a brochure available at Citizens For Quality Schools headquarters, 203 Mason St., Charlevoix.

Please vote YES on October 11.
Sincerely,
Chuck Center

Editor:

On Oct. 11, 1999 voters will go to the polls to either approve or disapprove a facilities bonding proposal that will benefit and improve the educational opportunities for all the students K-12. As a member of the Facilities Steering Committee I firmly believe the proposal we sent to the board of education in June was the very best plan to serve long range facility needs for our district.

If you take the time to look around our wonderful community you will see the city has taken great strides to improve our parks, business district, sidewalks along the pier and additions to the city hall for housing our Fire Department and other emergency vehicles. The county court house has a much needed new addition and our county jail is now going through major renovation. The Charlevoix Area Hospital has had major additions and renovation in the past few years and St. Mary's Elementary School will have been renovated within the next couple of weeks. I think it's time for our community to address the educational needs of our local school district and vote "YES" on Oct. 11

Did you know that the newest building in the Charlevoix School District is the elementary school and it opened its doors 30 years ago in September, 1969.

Vane H. Smith
Retired Principal

Editor:

It was encouraging to see that Boyne City passed its millage for a new high school on Sept. 29. Hopefully the voters of Charlevoix can follow suit and vote YES to build a new school for our children on Oct. 11.

Most agree that school facilities need to be improved in Charlevoix. Some have stated that this is not a perfect plan in their opinion, but could there ever be such a plan? It's time to put aside personal issues and support the effort to move forward.

C'mon Charlevoix, let's get the job done.

The time is now!
Sincerely,
Bonnie Withrow

Editor:

For the best futures of our young Charlevoix citizens and the strength of our entire community.

I propose that the time is NOW for all of us to put aside our personal preferences and old negative biases and cast an overwhelming number of YES votes on Monday, October 11 in favor of our school district's school improvements bond issue.

I have been firmly convinced that our school board has presented us with a practical, very workable, long-term plan of action, with a reasonable price tag — and one that all voters can feel good about.

Let's go for it!
Sincerely,
Bern Cannan

Proposes tax limit for seniors

Editor:

On October 11, 1999 Charlevoix residents once again will vote on the school bond issue. Once again many seniors will vote against the proposal due to financial reasons.

I am sure there are many seniors who would like to see a new high school and much needed repairs on the old high school and elementary school.

However, most seniors are on a "fixed income," and simply are unable to afford the added tax increase. A fixed income means just that, with very small yearly increases in social security but have a continued rise in monthly expenses.

I am proposing a ceiling be placed on the present school tax paid by senior home owners. Many have been paying school tax as long as 50+ years. There are some who have never had children.

At age 70, a senior should either no longer pay a school tax or at the very least, a ceiling should be on their present tax.

If the bond issue passes it could mean that there are seniors who will be paying an additional $170 to $200 per year from a budget that is already over burdened.

Would our younger generation, who have children in the school systems, want to have seniors possibly forced to sell their homes?

I think not!

Sincerely,
Norma Teague
Charlevoix

Raises questions about bond issue

Editor:

A request by school officials for an $18.8 million bond issue raises disquieting questions which voters should take to the ballot box.

• School infrastructure did not collapse suddenly. Whatever the ills, they had to have been growing for some time. Professional managers set aside funds to renew depreciating equipment and buildings. The school does not. This policy of spend-it-all-as you go has created an $18.8 million void.

• Molding infrastructure prompted a millage election two years ago. After taxpayers assented, they were told that part of the voted funds would be diverted to the Downtown Development Authority (DDA). It turned out that some 4.7 percent of that millage ($118,000) will be used to upgrade the commercial sales environment in midtown. Officials say they were oblivious.

• Schools must have been in great shape 15 years ago when officials signed an agreement to funnel school millage to the DDA. Perhaps they thought if students get overcrowded they can go sit in the improved parks downtown. This albatross will be around the community's neck indefinitely.

• And let us not forget the $8,000 thrown away on an option to buy an unsuitable land for schools before the community reached consensus.

• In the last school board election two candidates were university graduates. The community rejected both. Apparently there is no point in having people with academic credentials mucking around in local education affairs.

Bond proponents say dump $18.8 million on the schools and they'll fix it all up. There is no question that something needs fixing — it's the way school affairs are managed in Charlevoix. Before taxpayers are asked to throw away any more of their money, fix the administrative morass.

First class donors and volunteers

Editor:

The American Red Cross held a bloodmobile on September 16th in Charlevoix.

The Red Cross staff, my volunteers and blood donors were welcomed by the Community Reformed Church, on Highway 31 and Meech, which is our terrific new location.

Our ARC bloodmobiles simply outgrew the American Legion, which hosted the blood drives for over 20 years. We will always be grateful to the Legion members for the many years of support for the community bloodmobiles.

I am so thankful to Pastor Grooters, Connie Nault, Jim Guthre and all the members of the Community Reformed Church for sharing their beautiful facility for the lifesaving work of the Red Cross.

I am convinced that I have the world's greatest volunteers, donors and community support in Charlevoix!

A heartfelt thank you to all of my volunteers. We couldn't have blood drives in Charlevoix without you! You are all first class, caring individuals.

Also helping to further the cause were Vacation Properties Network, KWIKIE Printing, Girl Scout Troop #267, the Charlevoix Lions Club, Oleson's Foods, Ed Whitley and his staff, Subway, and all the business leaders who displayed posters. Many thanks!

With the exception of those who flee northern Michigan winters, I'm looking forward to seeing all of you at our next blood drive on January 27, 2000. Come in out of the cold to donate and have a hot fudge sundae!

New volunteers and first time donors are encouraged to participate right along with the faithful regulars!

Sincerely,
Ellen Schuiling

Bonding Proposal

Voters will find the following language on the ballot for the school bond proposal:

Shall Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix and Antrim Counties, Michigan, borrow the sum of not to exceed Eighteen Million Eight Hundred Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($18,825,000) and issue its general obligation unlimited tax bonds therefor, for the purpose of:

• erecting, furnishing and equipping a new high school building and an addition to the elementary school;

• acquiring and installing educational technology improvements;

• partially remodeling, refurnishing and re-equipping school buildings; and

• acquiring, developing and improving a playground, athletic and outdoor physical education fields and sites?

(Pursuant to State law, expenditure of bond proceeds must be audited, and the proceeds cannot be used for repair or maintenance costs, teacher, administrator or employee salaries, or other operating expenses.)

Teen Center hosts 'Homework Clinics'

A new community program will assist students with their homework and school projects.

Heise

The BASES organization recently announced a new program, "Homework Clinic," designed to provide students an opportunity to complete their homework and educational assignments in the presence of a certified teacher.

The clinics will be held from 2:30 p.m. - 6 p.m. every Monday at the Teen Center in Charlevoix.

Mary Kay Heise, a retired school teacher with 33 years experience, will spearhead the project. She specializes in middle school science and reading instruction. She has taught students from kindergarten through eighth grade while working in Michigan, Connecticut and Texas.

Heise has a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University in elementary education and a master's degree from the University of Michigan in reading instruction.

She and her husband, Don, recently moved to Charlevoix to spend their retirement.

The "Homework Clinic" is offered free within the comfortable, adult supervised environment of the Teen Center in Charlevoix. The center is located at 208 West Lincoln, within walking distance of Charlevoix Middle School, Charlevoix High School, Northwest Academy, and St. Mary's School.

The Teen Center is dedicated to providing young people a safe and drug-free environment and is open to teens after school from 2:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.

Other retired teachers in the area who would like to volunteer with the program are welcome. Please call Scott Kelly, executive director B.A.S.E.S. Teen Center, at 547-2298.

Rayders lose in overtime to Harbor Springs, 3-2

Charlevoix battled rain, high wind and a fine Harbor Springs soccer team and lost a closely played match in overtime 3-2 last week.

It was the first loss the Rayders have suffered in three contests with the Rams this season.

Harbor Springs had a 2-0 lead before Jon Boss scored off a Ryan Vogelheim pass just before the end of the first half.

Ten minutes into the second half Vogelheim fed Sean Stockman a pass. He scored to tie the score at two goals each.

All the goals were scored by the team that had the wind at their back. That trend continued in the first overtime as the Rams put a kick past Rayder goaltender Chris Tilley for the winning goal.

"We didn't adapt well to the conditions," said coach Josh Block. "We're going through some growing pains. We'll play them again in the districts."

The Rayders have played sporadically on defense this season. "Defense has been an area we're lacking in, but we're getting there," said Block. " Tick Bakker played a great game on defense."

Charlevoix hosts Elk Rapids on Tuesday, Oct. 12. The game starts at 5 p.m.

The Rayders are 8-3 overall.

Charlevoix gridders fall to Kalkaska 28-12

Charlevoix yielded a 66-yard touchdown run on the first play of the game then bounced back to take a lead before dropping their sixth straight game of the season, 28-12, at Kalkaska.

Fullback Ben Coen scored on a 16-yard run to cut the Blazers' lead to 8-6. Tailback Ryan Leitner's two-yard plunge gave the Rayders a 12-8 lead after the first quarter. Kalkaska scored to regain the lead 14-12 at halftime.

The teams battled through a scoreless third quarter. Midway through the fourth quarter Charlevoix recovered a fumble on their own 30-yard line. They moved the ball to Kalkaska's before turning the ball over on a fumble at Kalkaska's 27 yard line.

Momentum shifted to the Blazers. They scored a touchdown and made the two-point conversion to go ahead 22-14. A few minutes later they scored again on a 50-yard pass play for a 28-12 final score.

"For three quarters we played pretty well defensively," said coach Todd Klinger. "We showed quite a bit of improvement. We've been in the position to win games, but we're a young team. We will have to learn to pull these games out to build for the future."

Leitner gained 59 yards on 15 carries. Coen rushed seven times for 48 yards. Troy Smith picked up 22 yards on five runs.

Quarterback Adam Wood completed 8 of 21 passes for 98 yards.

Ryan Rafacz also played well on offense. The sophomore caught four passes for 12 yards.

Troy Smith caught one pass for 38 yards. Brian Cornett had two receptions for 32 yards. Ben Coen caught one pass good for 16 yards.

Klinger praised the defensive play of linebackers Mike Horon, Shay Hutchison and Coen.

Horon led the defense with 11 tackles, Hutchison had nine. Leitner recovered a fumble.

Charlevoix hosts Elk Rapids for homecoming on Saturday, Oct. 9.

Frosh beat East Jordan, 73-27

Natasia Kleiber, Jamie Left and Candace Boss each scored 18 points and Ashley Agers added nine points as Charlevoix's freshmen baskrtball team thrashed East Jordan 73-27.

The freshmen are 7-2 on the season.

JV beats Kalkaska, 8-6

The JV Rayders improved to 4-2 with an 8-6 win over Kalkaska at home last Thursday.

The game was called at halftime due to lightning.

Patrick Gowell threw a pass to Keith Daly who took it 52 yards for a touchdown.

Gowell hit Nate Teuscher for the game-deciding, two-point conversion. Gowell completed 6 of 8 passes for 106 yards.

Coach Brian Certa praised his defense, especially the play of end Jerry Zeitler and linebackers Landon Brown and Keith Daly.

Golfers keep busy, keep improving

Charlevoix's golf team played six matches in just over two weeks and the Rayder players continue to show improvement as the season progresses.

At the Petoskey Invitational, an 18-hole event, freshman David Shearer shot an 82 to lead the Rayders to a sixth place finish in the 11 team field on Sept. 17.

Dennis Avery carded a 90, Jon Sell had a 93, Craig Siwarga a 95, and Allan Brooks shot 100.

The team scored 360.

On Sept. 20, a cold and rainy day, Charlevoix hosted Mancelona at Belvedere Golf Club and won 168-219. Craig Siwarga and David Shearer each shot 40 to tie for medalist honors. Jon Sell had 43, Dennis Avery and Allan Brooks tied at 45, Chris Smith shot 46.

"Sell is also shooting well and the team is starting to jell," said coach Jim Glynn.

The JV was led by Nick Cole, 48; Kreg Wager, 49; and Bill Foster's 58.

Jon Sell tied a school record with a score of 35 as Charlevoix won 159-167 against Harbor Springs on Sept. 21.

Charlevoix finished fourth in an 11-team field at the Gaylord Invitational on Sept. 24.

David Shearer led the Rayders with a score of 81. Sell and Siwarga each shot 86; Avery posted a 90; and Brooks had 95. The team tied for third place with a 343, but fell to fourth behind Inland Lakes due to the fifth man score. T.C. St. Francis was first, just two strokes better at 341.

Siwarga dropped a 25-foot putt for a birdie on the eighth hole.

"David Shearer is doing a fine job leading the team as the number one player as a freshman," said Glynn.

Charlevoix improved to 5-1 in the conference with a 181-193 win over Kalkaska at Belvedere on Sept. 28. Shearer led with a 42, followed by Siwarga, 44; Avery, 46; Brooks, 49, Smith shot 50, Sell 51.

Nick Cole shot 51 for the JV. Foster had 61, Wager a 65.

The Rayders tuned-up for the Traverse City Invitational with a non-conference match against Harbor Springs and Petoskey at Bat View on Sept. 30.

The Rayders finished second 174-173 to Harbor Springs. Petoskey shot 180.

Jon Sell was back on track with a 39, good for medalist honors. Shearer shot 43, Smith carded a 45; Siwarga had a 47.

Boys' cross country team wins Gladwin Invitational

Charlevoix's boys' cross country team out-ran 10 Class B schools to win the Gladwin Invitational on Oct. 2. Charlevoix, the only Class C school in the field, scored 56 points. Host Gladwin was second with 67 points; Tawas was third with 89 points. This was Charlevoix's first Gladwin Invitational title in four years. They were second last year.

Sophomores Zack Hopkins finished fourth at 17:50 and Josh Popenhagen was fifth at 17:52. Hopkins' time was a personal record. His previous best was 18:50 over a 5-K course.

"This was a really good team effort," said an ecstatic coach Ken Plude. "It was awesome. We're starting to look good for the upcoming regionals."

The girls finished fourth in a very strong field that included West Branch Ogemaw Heights Class B runners-up in the state last year, Ludington which is ranked in the state this year, and Gladwin which ran in the state finals in 1998.

Ogemaw won the event with 66 points. Charlevoix had 94.

Freshman Liz Ulrich was the fastest Rayder finishing 11th at 21:33. Laura Schairbaum was 12th at 21:44.

Erika Kammermann was 16th at 22:22; 26th was Heather Probert at 22:58; 29th, Winter Kyiak at 23:07; 41st was Betsy Tebeau, 24:50; and Katie Romig ran 26:03 for 48th place.

"We made some major improvements," Plude said. "We cut the gap between our number one and number five runners considerably. Overall, we're all getting into better shape. We're working hard and it's paying off."

Foul trouble, missed shots cost Rayder cagers two games

Charlevoix's hard pressing defense led to early foul trouble and losses to both Harbor Springs and East Jordan recently.

The Rayders jumped to a 13-9 lead against Harbor Springs. Tough full-court press defense and accurate shooting increased the lead to 14 points early in the second quarter. Charlevoix led 28-18 at the half.

Harbor Springs' star player, Christi Shibata picked up three fouls in the first three minutes and sat out most of the first half. She came on strong in the second half and finished with 15 points. Sarah Adelaine scored a career-high 36 points to lead the Rams to a 50-point second half to grab the win from the Rayders 68-53.

"We got tired," said coach Jason Otter. "We're not very deep. Shibata dribbled through our pressure in the second half. That hurt us. We got beat in transition too many times and we missed some easy shots."

Kerstin Larsen led the Rayders with 21 points. Taya Drost added 11 points.

The JV Rayders lost 51-43. Kate Madison scored 14 points and grabbed nine rebounds, Chelsea Newcomb had 11 points, Kelly Ward had 20 boards.

Charlevoix raced to an 18-6 advantage at the end of the first quarter against East Jordan. The Red Devils turned things around quickly in the second period, holding Charlevoix to just two points while scoring 15 of their own to take a 21-20 lead into halftime.

East Jordan pushed their lead to 11 points before Charlevoix cut it to two with less than a minute to go in the game. The Devils added two free throws and Charlevoix's Leslie Hoffman hit a three-pointer for the final points of the 55-54 contest.

"We're getting hurt on the boards," said Otter. "We're playing teams tougher and tougher. It's gonna turn around for us pretty soon."

Hoffman led Charlevoix with 20 points and eight steals. Kristy Shindorf added 12 points.

Charlevoix won the JV game 48-38. Krista Swenor scored 14 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and made five steals. Chelsea Newcomb had 12 points. Kelly Ward tallied 11 points and 14 rebounds.

Wednesday Night at the Races - September 29, 1999

By A. Nony Mouse,
Charlevoix Yacht Club

An impressive evening with increasing winds brought interesting sights! Seen at the start: a truly dedicated fore deck ape, realizing that their three lightweights were short on ballast, increased her force of gravity equivalent mass by means of total immersion technique. Wet but wise, Laura!

Seen at the finish: one Bald Eagle screaming in on the Race Committee boat causing some degree of consternation to its sole inhabitant. At the last minute the vessel was held in check, then withdrew and thus avoided a messy deposit in our pristine lake. You can always bank on Uncle Lou!

The first J-22 was, again, First Date, crossing the line at a very early 7:26:36 with Swine Flew in second, only 9 seconds later. In the next minute both Superfluous and High Maintenance finished. Back a bit, in fifth place, was Habanero and then Paleface Lite. H S Moisture Missile, Jumblies and Thunderstruck trailed.

In the larger Jib & Main Fleet, Flash was again first to finish and, also again, saved her time over Bald Eagle.

In the other JAM Fleet, Our Thyme II was first across the line with Booma and Apothecary trailing. The results were the same on corrected time.

In the P-26 Fleet, on either finish or corrected time, the results were Jesse, Blasen III, Cygnus and Original Sin.

In Spinnaker A, Gotcha loved the stronger breeze beating out Kamikaze by a wide margin on both finish and corrected time. The skipper of Mint Julep was sighted over the Pacific at flight level 40 en route to Bora Bora (BOB on the luggage tag) and, therefore, probably did not start.

In Spinnaker B, M 3 led the way with Babe and J Hawk just a minute apart, in second and third on both finish and corrected times.

Highlights of the standings using the one race drop allowed for the Series:

J-22-First Date 3, Superfluous 10, Moisture Missile 11, Swine Flew 11, High Maintenance 13, Paleface Lite 15, Reckless 15, Gecko 22, Habanero 22, Thunderstruck 24, Jumblies 28, Crazy Horse 35.

JAM 195- Flash 3, Bald Eagle 6, Hog-tide 11.

Jam 198+ Booma 3, Our Thyme 5, Apothecary 8, Cheemaun 16, High C 16.

A Fleet Kamikaze 3, Gotcha! 5, Mint Julep 10.

B Fleet Babe 4, J Hawk 6, M 3 7.

C Fleet Jesse 3, Blasen 5, Original Sin 10, Cygnus 11, Sandpiper 14.

Rayders Play Hearts Out To Tie East Jordan

(Editor's note: The following Scrapbook feature was compiled by Cynthia Postmus, with help from the Charlevoix Public Library, from an old edition of the Courier. The story is reprinted in its entirety, exactly as it appeared on October 13, 1949.)

The Red Rayders paid a costly price for that tie game with East Jordan.

The victory streak stands at 23 after a heartbreaking contest for both teams which played their hearts out last Friday here in what was described by the many grid fans as one of the best games in years. The score was 13-13.

Marring the tie game was the injury to Jerry Gibbons, 205-pound Rayder tackle, who suffered a fractured right ankle in the first half. He is recovering in Charlevoix hospital but will be lost to the Rayders the rest of the season.

Good Game

Gibbons played a bang-up game all the time he was in there, knifing through the East Jordan line to spill the ball carriers time and again with a loss or no gain. It was noticeable Jordan ran a large number of their plays through his position when he was taken out.

The Red Rayders travel to Gaylord this Friday for their fourth contest. Gaylord has been playing poor ball this year, losing to Mancelona 14 to 7, Harbor Springs, 6 to 0 and last week to Pellston 6 to 0.

There is bound to be considerable let-down by the Rayders after playing such a rugged game against their rivals from East Jordan. On the record Charlevoix should win handily but conditions might be right for an upset.

From a statistical standpoint, East Jordan had the edge. The Rayders scored 14 first downs to 17 for East Jordan. Outstanding among the visitors were Don Cutler who was a threat every time he carried the ball, Joe Hammond and Bud Sommerville.

Picking stars for the locals is difficult. Big Ed Klein and Gibbons played great games. But the others were outstanding in a bruising and tiring struggle. Don Hardy, Bill Barber, Jim Jolliffe and Ron Cunningham also played inspired football.

Early in the second quarter, Charlevoix recovered an East Jordan fumble on its own 40 which the locals turned into the first touchdown. Cunningham on a double lateral got a first down and seconds later caught a pass from Barber to the right side and was tackled on the East Jordan 13. Hardy took his around left end, Barber picked up a scant yard and then Hardy got a first down to the three yard line after officials measured it.

Hardy Scores

Barber on a sneak got less than two and Hardy chipped in with another foot or so. On third down, Hardy lugged it over tackle for the score. Barber's kick was good to make it 7-0.

East Jordan scored its first touchdown in the third stanza. Cutler ripping off several good gains. Cutler was knocked out of bounds on the one-yard line and Boring went over for the score. A pass in trying for the extra point was no good. The score was 7-6.

Sommerville set up Jordan's second score with a 27 yard run to the 11-yard marker soon after the final quarter opened. On the first play, Cutler cut through the line, reversed his field and scored. This time Cutler ran the ball over for the point to make it East Jordan 13, Charlevoix 7.

This was the anxious time for the locals and their loyal supporters who feared the winning streak was going to be shattered. Receiving the kickoff, the locals came straight up the field, using a wide mixture of reverses and pass plays. Twice the attack was nearly stalled when Charlevoix recovered its own fumbles, one by Jolliffe and the other in sight of the goal by Fairbanks.

Jolliffe and Hardy made some good gains before Fairbanks caught a pass and ran to the East Jordan 14. Hitting the line, Barber and Hardy kept the attack going with Barber making its first down on the three yard line. Hardy got a yard and on the next play Fairbanks grabbed a fumble which made it possible for Barber to ram off tackle on the next play for the touchdown. His kick was wide. The score was tied at 13 all.

Seconds before the game ended, Krahnke intercepted a pass and was almost loose but officials ruled a penalty against East Jordan as the game ended.

Michigan's familiar apple varieties

. Although new names have been entering the Michigan apple inventory in recent years, the bulk of the state's apple volume is still in some old stand-bys, familiar varieties that have stood the test of time. These include:

Red Delicious

It's the most popular variety in the world and in the United States, and it's Michigan's most widely grown variety. It came from the obscurity of a non-apple region — central Iowa. A farmer named Jesse Hiatt discovered the chance seedling on his farm near Peru, Iowa, and twice tried to chop it out. When it sprouted a third time, he gave it a reprieve and let it grow. Later he discovered qualities in it he liked. He displayed it as the Hawkeye variety at an 1893 fruit show in Louisiana, Mo., sponsored by Stark Brothers Nurseries & Orchards Co., which purchased propagating rights in 1894. Stark Brothers renamed it Delicious, still its official name although it is popularly known as Red Delicious to distinguish it from Golden Delicious. It's a glossy red apple with a distinctive "typey" five-pointed elongated shape. It's best eaten fresh rather than cooked and offers a juicy and crunchy texture and a sweet flavor.

Golden Delicious

It's the second most popular variety in the world and in the USA, and it's Michigan's second most widely grown variety. It's expected to retain that position in Michigan because it was the most extensively planted variety in the state the first five years of the 1990s. Golden Delicious was discovered as a chance seedling in Clay County, W.Va., in 1914 and was named Mullin's Yellow Seedling. Stark Brothers bought propagation rights and renamed it Golden Delicious as a companion to (Red) Delicious, to which it is not related genetically. The parentage of Golden Delicious is thought to be Golden Reinette and Grimes Golden. It's a sweet apple requiring little added sugar in cooking uses, such as sauce, pie and baking, where its firmness helps hold its shape. It also has excellent flavor when eaten fresh. It's a popular inclusion in fresh apple cider.

Jonathan

The initial fame of Woodstock, N.Y., is that it's where the Jonathan variety was discovered as a chance seedling in the 1820s. It received its name from the man who first promoted it. Michigan has proved to be an ideal home for Jonathan and is the leading producer of this dual-purpose variety suitable both for fresh eating and for processing. This crimson apple (with touches of green) has a spicy tang that blends well with other varieties in sauces and cider.

McIntosh

In 1796 John McIntosh was a 19-year-old from the Mohawk Valley in New York who was smitten with a young woman but faced such strong opposition to the romance from his father that the couple hatched a plan to elope to Canada. His bride-to-be left first, and he soon followed. By the time he caught up to her, he found she had died of sudden illness, and he could

Apple Rhyme

Here's a favorite rhyme used by 19th century children learning their ABC's:

A was an apple pie;
B bit it,
C cut it,
D dealt it,
E eat it,
F fought for it,
G got it,
H had it.
I inspected it,
J jumped for it,
K kept it,
L longed for it,
M mourned for it,
N nodded at it,
O opened it,
P peered in it,
Q quartered it,
R ran for it,
S stole it,
T took it,
U upset it,
V viewed it,
W wanted it,
X, Y, Z, and ampersand
All wished for a piece in hand.

" A home without
and destitute of apples is like a beautiful grove without the cheering

only grieve at her grave. He hiked off into the Canadian wilderness to become an anguished hermit. Five years later he homesteaded near Dundela, Ont., not far from the St. Lawrence River, and transplanted some wild apple saplings he found there, one of which survived and produced fruit of such tangy allure and romantic fragrance that it became well known in the region. It wasn't propagated into commercial potential until years later by John McIntosh's son, whence it became known as McIn Fameuse apple of the region. McIntosh has juicy white flesh and a rather tough skin that has mixed red and green coloring. It's a favorite apple for eating out of hand but also is widely used in salads and sauces and pies and is a mainstay in fresh cider.

Cortland

After the many attributes of McIntosh were discovered, plant breeders began crossing it with other varieties to enhance its traits. One of the earliest was Cortland. Its flavor is sweet compared with McIntosh, and it has a flush of crimson against a pale yellow background sprinkled with short, dark red stripes and gray-green dots. Cortland has very white flesh and is an excellent dessert apple.

Rome

The Rome variety is named not for any European roots but for its discovery in Rome Township, Ohio, in 1816. It is a colorful apple, nearly solid red and with a round shape. It has firm flesh and a tough, smooth skin and is well suited to baking because it keeps its shape along with its sweet flavor.

How 'bout these apples!

In the apple world, a "new" variety may actually have a fairly long history behind it. Plant breeders test new crosses for years to determine which ones may have a future. Even after new varieties are named and released, they may not garner attention at first. Then all of a sudden they catch on and burst on the scene like newcomers. Empire, Jonagold and Honeycrisp are examples. Empire and Jonagold trace their origins to crosses made in the 1940s at the New York Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva, New York, and released as named varieties in the mid-1960s. Honeycrisp was developed in Minnesota.

Empire

Empire is a cross between McIntosh and Red Delicious and takes on the best characteristics of both. It is redder and firmer than McIntosh, and because it stores longer it provides the marketplace with a McIntosh-type apple well into spring. Some claim that Empire's flavor, like fine wine, improves during storage. It combines the mild tartness of McIntosh with full-flavored Red Delicious sweetness. In 1989, 24 leading international apple researchers were polled as to what they considered the 10 best apple varieties in the world, and they ranked Empire No. 7. It is excellent for eating out of hand and in salads and for use in baking and cooking. It is becoming a favorite in the United Kingdom, which imports much of its supply from Michigan. Demand for Empires is steadily growing in the United States as well.

Jonagold

Jonagold is another favorite in Europe, where notice of its popularity has spurred interest back in the United States the past decade. It is a cross of Jonathan and Golden Delicious. The latter contributes a yellow background to Jonagold, while its Jonathan parentage adds an orange-red blush. Some newer sports or mutations are dominantly red. Jonagold is an all-purpose apple that is firm and juicy with appealing shades of flavors from tart to sweet. The 24 international experts gave Jonagold a single honor by according it the No. 1 world ranking. Michigan is becoming a leading Jonagold state.

Newer Michigan apple varieties quickly becoming favorites

Honeycrisp

The Honeycrisp apple was produced from a 1960 cross of Macoun and Honeygold, as part of the University of Minnesota apple breeding program. The skin of a Honeycrisp is mottled red over a yellow background. The fruit has an exceptionally crisp, sweet and juicy texture. Look for bushels and bushels of Honeycrisp apples coming to your grocery store because Michigan growers have planted large numbers of this variety in their orchards.

Some varieties follow a more direct route to prominence, such as:

Ginger Gold

Ginger Gold apparently owes its life to Hurricane Camille, which roared through Virginia in 1969. It destroyed much of the orchard of Clyde and Ginger Harvey near Arrington, south of Charlottesville in the Virginia Piedmont. Several years later they found a tree that had grown from a seed that had apparently been washed into the orchard from elsewhere, perhaps during the hurricane, and was nothing like what had been planted there before. A nursery budded the first trees in the early 1980s, and horticulturists concluded the Harveys had a unique variety on their hands. They sold some of the apples locally and called the variety by Mrs. Harvey's first name. Its yellow appearance derives from its probable Golden Delicious parentage. Pippin is thought to be one of the other varieties in its genetics. Ginger Gold matures about six weeks before Golden Delicious and has a spicy sweet flavor. Its texture is firm and white, and it stores well under refrigeration.

Many varieties of foreign origin have also spent years in relative obscurity and are now coming into the American forefront:

Gala

Gala was crossed in New Zealand and released in 1960. Its parents are Kidd's Orange Red and Golden Delicious. It was brought to the United States in 1972. It is a relatively early apple that has a snappy zest over a mellow sweetness. Its yellowish, juicy flesh is very firm. The original Galas retained the external color from the Kidd's side, but some mutations found recently show a complete red color. Galas are noted for their eating quality out of hand. The poll of international apple experts noted above gave the No. 2 ranking of the world's best apples to Gala.

Fuji

Fuji is a foreign apple with American parents. Japanese breeders crossed the venerable Midwestern variety Red Delicious with the antique Virginia apple Ralls Janet to produce what has become the No. 1 variety in Japan. Its appeal is its low-acid sweetness combined with juicy firm-fleshed crispness and warm aroma. It keeps longer than most other varieties at room temperature. The characteristic color includes a pink stripe. Fuji ranks on the world expert's list as No. 5.

Does an apple-a-day really keep the doctor away?

Why is it that "an apple-a-day keeps the doctor away?"

Our ancestors believed that old maxim without understanding why it seemed to be true. Modern nutritional scientists are building evidence that confirms just how good apples are for our health.

The big buzzwords in nutrition nowadays are antioxidants (which control substances that can damage cells) and phytonutrients or phytochemicals compounds found in plants). It turns out apples contain many antioxidant phytochemicals. Apples are rich in pectins, which are soluble fibers demonstrated to be effective in lowering cholesterol levels.

Apples are nature's gift to help us achieve cardiovascular health. They can be ingested in any form, including juice, to do their good work.

Phenolic Antioxidants

A recent study on cholesterol reduction involved both juice and whole apples. Researchers found that phenolic compounds (phytochemicals) in apples acted as antioxidants against LDL low-density lipoproteins, the damaging portion of cholesterol in the blood stream.

Researchers emphasized a positive message for children. Since kids like to drink pure apple juice, they should be encouraged to keep the habit through a lifetime. Too many people, they pointed out, start worrying about heart disease after many years of ignoring good nutrition. Establish good food habits early and maintain them, they recommend. That means plenty of apple juice and plenty of apples.

Flavonoids

Another class of antioxidants is the Flavonoids group. Apples are rich in Flavonoids, especially one member called quercetin. European researchers have been investigating the relationship between Flavonoids intake and reduced incidence of heart disease and cancer.

A Finnish study published in 1996 followed more than 5,000 Finnish men and women aged 30-69 years for about a quarter of a century to try to establish links between mortality causes and Flavonoids in their diets. Approximately 1/4 of the participants who died during the study, flavonoid intakes were lower than among those still living in 1992, the conclusion of the study period.

Researchers found that "there was an inverse gradient between flavonoid intake and total mortality" and added that "the consumption of apples and onions was inversely associated with total and coronary mortality." In summary, the results of the study suggest that people with very low dietary intakes of Flavonoids have increased risks of coronary heart disease.

Two key messages came out of the research: The incidence of coronary mortality is higher among populations with low dietary intake of flavonoids; and that the protective effect of flavonoids was associated with the high diet intake of apples.

Apples were the fruit richest in this antioxidant phytonutrient, and the Jonagold variety was the particular leader.

Pectin

Ingestion of pectin, a soluble fiber present in most fruits and vegetables, has been shown in many research studies to lower blood cholesterol levels. Apples are an excellent source. Studies on humans indicate that apple-rich diets have a positive effect of lowering cholesterol levels. Persons with high cholesterol levels can benefit most from eating more apples.

Vitamin C

Vitamin C, or ascorbic acid, has antioxidant properties and therefore also has positive effects on the cardiovascular system. One medium apple provides 8 percent of the daily requirements of humans based on a 2,000-calorie-per-day diet.

Research indicates that apples make more vitamin C available in blood and organs to do its good work, helping to make a given amount — from whatever source — go a long way. Thus apples and oranges form a good dietary combination because the apples would make the rich amounts of vitamin C even more helpful than from oranges alone.

Conclusion

Apples are chemically complex, and researchers have still not unlocked all the phytonutrients and processes by which these beneficial compounds help the human body.

But the evidence builds that eating — or drinking — an apple a day (or even more) becomes a sound investment in building better health.

Voters say YES!

By B. J. Hetler

If the votes in Monday's election for the $18,825,000 bond issue to improve Charlevoix Public Schools had been tallied as they came in, it would have been a cliff-hanger.

But voters had to wait until all of the votes were counted and the announcement was made just before 11 p.m. — the bond issue was approved.

Of the 7,042 school district voters, 40 percent came to the polls. Residents voted in record numbers — 2,780 votes cast in all — to decide the fate of the elementary, middle and high schools. In the end, the yeas had it by 100 votes — 1,440 to 1,340.

School superintendent Dr. John Sturock credited the citizens' committee and said he is pleased for the community.

"We had a really good group on the campaign committee," Sturock said. "The facilities committee did their homework and being a cross-section of the community, I think they were respected.

"I'm excited for all of the people who worked so hard. I'm excited for the students because this will enhance their education."

Board president, Allen Telgenhof also credited the citizens who worked for the proposal.

"The people were very important in everything everyone did," Telgenhof said. "It (the margin of victory) was only 100 votes, but it might have been even closer if people hadn't worked at the grassroots level. The signs, the phone calls, one-on-one talking with neighbors and explaining the issues... it all helped.

Charlevoix's MEAP scores are among highest in state

Charlevoix High School students ranked sixth in the state in the latest Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test according to results released recently.

Fifty-six Charlevoix students, more than sixty-seven percent of the total who took the exam last spring, exceeded or met standards set by the state for curriculum in the areas of math, science, reading and writing.

In the Birmingham school district, just over 80 percent of the students successfully completed the proficiency exam, the highest in the state. East Lansing was second with 72.7 percent.

The performance of Charlevoix's students is actually better than the preliminary results indicate.

Seven current seniors took the exam as sophomores. Each also scored well enough to earn the scholarships. In a bureaucratic oversight, their performance was not included in the recently released figures. Corrected results for all schools will be announced later in October.

Charlevoix's percentage will increase to 76.4%.

All students who successfully score in levels 1 and 2 will receive a one-time $2,500 Michigan Merit Award scholarship to attend a Michigan college, or $1,000 if they enroll in a college out-of-state. The funds may also be used at community colleges, post secondary vocational and technical training institutes, or apprenticeship programs. Scholarships are merit-based, not need based.

from Michigan's $8.5 billion share of the national tobacco lawsuit settlement.

The 63 Charlevoix students will be awarded a total of $157,500 to further their education. In addition, Charlevoix students who did not score well enough in all four areas on their initial taking of the MEAP will have an opportunity to retake parts of the exam in early November. If they meet state standards in each area, they too will qualify for the merit scholarship.

Overall, 98.8 percent of Charlevoix students received state endorsements in the writing portion of the exam, 97.6 percent in math, 96.4 percent in science, and 95.2 percent in reading.

The reasons for Charlevoix High School's outstanding performance on the MEAP exam may be easy to identify.

"We have a very high quality teaching staff," said high school counselor John Prescott. "We know the rough objectives of the MEAP, and our teachers include the material into their curriculum. Most importantly, our students take this test seriously. They know they can earn a scholarship. Quality teachers and motivated students — it's a great combination!"

A MEAP exam will be given to seventh and eighth grade students in February. Those who score well in two areas while in seventh grade and also in two areas as eighth graders will earn a $500 scholarship.

Record number of voters decide school bond proposal

The committee should have an added sense of pride. It really made a difference."

The bond issue calls for 2.84 mills and a 20-year term. The district will sell the bond and invest the money. Then plans will begin for designing a new high school on a new site that the district has purchased. Remodeling the current high school into a middle and upper elementary school and remodeling and adding onto the elementary school are also in the works.

Realizing that the dismal failure of the 1996 bond proposal was due in part to that board's waffling on the site location for the high school, the 1999 school board took a bold step to meet that issue head-on. With four new board members, a new president and a new superintendent, this board not only announced its decision on site choice, but signed a purchase agreement on the land.

That decision to purchase 74 acres of land on Marion Center Road, between Clark and Veenstra roads, although controversial this time around also, may have turned the tide to victory for the bond proposal supporters.

However, resident Monica Mailloux voted against the bond proposal in part because she doesn't like the location. She and her husband have five school-aged children. She said she is still hesitant about the site.

"I think it (the land purchase) was a very big surprise to everybody," Mailloux said. "I don't want my kids going that far out."

The site is approximately 2.7 miles from the city.

Mailloux said that although she is disappointed, she'll be supportive of the decision. She was "thrilled" to see so many people out voting.

Resident Dale Boss, who voted against the bond proposal, was also pleased with the number of people voting.

"The nice part was the large vote," Boss said. "It was the largest vote, I believe, in the history of the public schools."

Allowing that the vote was close, he respects the choice people have made. But he stands by his beliefs.

"I'll leave my comments until three or four years down the road — then I'll say 'I told you so.'"

Co-chair of the citizens committee, Bill Trubilowicz, is pleased with the vote and looking forward to the future of the schools. He commends the many people who helped with a successful vote.

"It was a great team effort," Trubilowicz said. "It was an uphill struggle and took lots of people and lots of time to make this project successful."

The next step, according to Sturock is to move the process forward and focus on the design phase of the project.

"We will openly invite input from the community and school staff. The public needs to feel "ownership" in this building."

"We waged a good campaign. This was an example of the democratic process at its finest. The real issues were about the kids, not personalities," Sturock said.

Clarifications

• A recent "Oh Boix" item incorrectly reported that Laurel English graduated from Charlevoix High School as a junior. She graduated in 1999 as a senior, but was promoted to the senior grade level after completing her sophomore year. Because of fulfilling requirements, Laurel was able to skip her junior year. The Courier received the misinformation in a mailing sent out by the National Merit Scholarship program. English is a National Merit Scholarship Program semifinalist. She is currently enrolled at Michigan Technological University.

• The first line of Rosemary Horton's recipe for Adam's Apple Cake that ran in the Apple Fest special section last week should have read: "Break 2 eggs over 4 cups of chopped apples."

• A line in Sue Gengle's Letter to the Editor should have read: "They spent hours upon hours working with the gathered information, listening to opinions, and finally coming up with a plan that is based on the best possible knowledge available."

Library survey results in expanded hours

Charlevoix Public Library has expanded its hours of operation to better accommodate the needs of its patrons.

The library's board of directors made the decision in response to recent survey results that clearly indicated the community's desire for a consistent opening time, and more weekend and evening hours.

The library's new hours are:

- 10 a.m. - 8 p.m. Monday — Thursday
- 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Friday
- 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. Saturday.

The library is now open 52 hours each week, an increase of 13 hours. The added hours require additional volunteer and paid staff. Persons interested in working at the library should contact Librarian Marybeth Wallick at 547-2651, or stop by the library.

The survey results also identified several other areas of concern and need including: allowing books to be reserved, appearance of the building, customer service, updating of decor and lighting, more efficient utilization of space, better displays, solicitation of donations, creation of a Friends of the Library support group, and need for additional computers for internet access.

The survey respondents also identified several positive attributes of the library including: its downtown location, friendly and cheerful personnel, good service, internet computer and e-mail access, and the wide variety of books and periodicals.

At their monthly meeting last week, the library board unanimously decided to permit books to be reserved. It also formally recognized the newly formed Friends of the Library group as a committee of the board and provided it a line-item on the budget. It also discussed building improvements and needs (ADA bathroom and an elevator), space utilization, displays, and landscaping.

Several new programs are currently being developed including an afternoon story hour to complement the existing morning story hour, and an after school program for students. Volunteers are needed for both new offerings, Wallick said.

The new Friends of the Library volunteers are already busy helping with maintenance, clerical work, reshelving books, providing input, sharing ideas and more. Additional "Friends" are invited and always welcome.

Over the past year, the library added 1,241 new books — 336 children's and 905 adult — the library now has more than 25,000 books. The addition of 78 new videos last year brings the video collection to more than 600 titles. The audio books collection increased by 65 in the past year and now contains 250 selections.

The library regularly adds best-sellers from the national best-seller lists published in the New York Times and the Northwest Michigan list published in the Sunday Traverse City Record-Eagle.

The library's microfilm collection contains Charlevoix newspapers — the Journal, the Sentinel, and the Courier — dating back to 1863.

A service for renting genealogical records on microfilm from the American Genealogical Lending Library in Bountiful, Utah is also available at the library. This service costs patrons $3.25 per roll.

Patrons may visit the Charlevoix Public Library's internet website, created and maintained by Laurie Lesser at: www.charlevoix.lib.mi.us/.

OCTOBER

By Max Ellison

The year has lived too long to be bound
By inhibitions and conventions.
October, you are like a painted woman,
And I love you.
Splash in your vermilion paint pot if you wish,
Or turn me your cold shoulder.
Kiss me with warmth.
Powder your cheeks with white.
Wear a scarlet gown,
Or stand naked under a hunter's moon
With your yellow hair falling over your shoulders.
I'll love you forever, October.

VOICES

Goodbye Charlevoix, I hardly knew ya

DOUG DRAPAL

I really don't know what to say.

Those of you who have gotten to know me recently certainly don't believe that I could ever be at a loss for words, yet it is true.

This column is my last as editor of the Charlevoix Courier.

After only 93 days on the job, and I have worked every single one of those days, I am leaving this position.

When I came on board early last summer, I believed this was the job I was meant to perform, in the community I was meant to live in.

It was through an amazing series of life's circumstances and coincidences that I met Ken Winter and eventually landed here in Charlevoix.

Last Saturday morning, while covering the high school cross country meet at Belvedere Golf Club, I struck up a brief conversation with the mother of one of the runners.

We spoke about the beautiful setting, the weather, and the energy and enthusiasm the kids all seemed to possess.

She asked where I was from. That led to a summary of the serendipity and events which brought me here.

Then I said "coincidence" and she stopped me in mid-sentence.

"Coincidences," she said, "are God's way of staying anonymous."

I liked that. We both laughed.

For all the right and wrong reasons, I believe it is time for me to move on to yet another adventure, another assignment along life's journey.

I really wanted to do the very best possible job here at the Courier. Perhaps, given more time, I would have felt I had.

I wanted to work hard, earn a good living, make new friends, plant some roots, and have some fun along the way, too. I still do.

While I don't have a clue as to what I will do next to make ends meet. I am excited about the possibilities.

On the brightest side.

I discovered Charlevoix.

This is my favorite place. This is where I want to live, work and make a positive contribution to the community

My rent is paid up, so I won't be leaving too soon. I plan to take a couple of weeks to do all the fall tourist activities — color touring on the Emerald Isle, travelling to Beaver Island, hiking, biking, swimming at the community area pool, and most of all — sleeping!

In a short time I have met scores of friendly and interesting folks here. Was it just because my job required me to get out and introduce myself to "strangers" — "friends" I hadn't yet met — or because I recognized personal qualities in the people here that are attractive? Certainly it's the latter.

Space and time do not permit me to name those of you who have welcomed and treated me so well. You know who you are. I say thank you all!

And to those of you who my Grandpa D would describe as, "stones in your shoe," I say thanks for providing the challenges and obstacles needed to make life more interesting.

Before I forget...

Among the qualities I find most attractive here is the openly exhibited displays of community pride, spirit, respect for tradition and history of Charlevoix.

It is most apparent on Friday nights in the fall at Kipke Field when hundreds of residents gather in the bleachers to root long and loud for the Rayder football team.

I sat next to an elderly couple at the homecoming game last weekend. I asked if they had a grandson on the team, or in the band, or on the cheerleading squad.

"Nope," he said. "We've been coming to games for more than 30 years, since moving up from down below."

"We just like it here at the games and in Charlevoix in general," she said. "It reminds us both of the family, neighbors, friends and fun we never had back there when we were too busy making a living," he laughed.

"We feel a little guilty. We don't get too involved in the community, seems we just take and don't give anything back."

Just then the clock ran out, the coach got doused with Gatorade, game over, we cheered — we won!

Did you know? Do you remember?

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

When the phone rings, I never know if it's going to be a call from a telemarketer, heaven forbid, or from someone really interesting — maybe someone looking for a Charlevoix connection. Fortunately, this time the latter turned out to be true.

Connie Bruck, a writer for the New Yorker magazine, found me, thanks to the perceptive director of the Petoskey Historical Museum, Candy Eaton. Bruck is working on a biography of Jules Stein to be published by Random House.

You may not recall that he was the founder of the powerful Music Corporation of America, more commonly known as MCA. There will be excerpts of the forthcoming book in the New Yorker sometime in the future.

Eaton told her that I had some original material on Stein in my book, "Summer Resort Life: Tango Teas and All!"

Of course, I was pleased to send her a copy. She thanked me and wrote, "Naturally I turned first to the pages about Jules Stein, but I keep picking up the book again, at odd moments, and am transported back to earlier times. It is wonderfully written."

Here's what I wrote in 1975:

One of the passengers aboard the Manitou was Jules Stein, then a medical student at the University of Chicago. Now he's Chairman of the Board of the Music Corporation of America. In the summer of 1919, this young entrepreneur supplied the Beach Hotel with 'six competent musicians for nine weeks.' He recalls Mrs. Baker as being a 'tough trader' (Mrs. Baker was owner/manager of the Beach Hotel, which was located on the present site of La Croft Condominiums). According to the contract, Stein's orchestra was required to play every day including Sunday, not to exceed 26 hours weekly; board and room were included. Mr. Stein wrote me a letter recently. "It is strange to think that I could supply six musicians for the sum of $135 a week plus transportation, and still make a profit!"

In a footnote I added, "Additional profit came to him from the contractual revenues received from providing personnel for the barber shop and the beauty parlor for the hotel."

He must have made a nice profit because he provided musicians again in 1920 with a $5 a week raise for the group. Not surprisingly he treated his financial records as mindfully as medical records. He sent me the original contracts, copies of which are also to be found in my book. That year, he supervised a benefit for the Charlevoix Hospital's new ambulance.

According to the Charlevoix Courier, "There will be a cotillion with numerous favors for everyone; a large silver cup for the best dancers...Mrs. J.S. Baker has turned over the entire hotel for the occasion...and it is expected that everyone will be there."

In a Wall Street Journal article dated 1973 we learn "MCA began 'as an accident' in 1924, says its founder, Dr. Stein, who at the time was financing his medical education by playing a 'schmaltzy violin' and leading his own band. He also booked other bands on the weekends and founded a small company he named Music Corporation of America.

The sideline became so profitable that after he got his M.D. he gave up medicine entirely and went into the band and talent booking business."

Connie Bruck is keenly interested in hearing from anyone who has information or recollections regarding Stein's appearances during the thirties in Chicago, "that toddling town," when his bands played in popular nightclubs, "like your wonderful Old Colonial Club" in Charlevoix.

Please contact me through the Charlevoix Courier and I will gladly forward this information for Bruck's continuing research for the forthcoming book.

Hospital displays student's artwork

Artwork designed by a sixth grader at Charlevoix Elementary School won the annual poster contest sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

Nathaniel Sotuyo's winning poster, based on the contest's theme of saving our environment, is currently on display in the Pediatric Ward at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Nathaniel's entry also won honorable mention at the regional contest for the National Federation of Garden Clubs. The local garden club donated the framing for the winning poster.

More than 100 posters were entered in this year's local competition thanks to the cooperation of art teachers Mary Beth McGraw, Charlevoix Elementary School, and Lori Bolt at St. Mary's Catholic School.

A previous winning poster by Ethan Winchester, titled Happiness is a Butterfly in My Garden, is also on display at the hospital, according to club board member Sulane Hamilton.

Consumers Energy grant benefits historic train depot

A $5,000 grant from the Consumers Energy Foundation will help protect and preserve one of Charlevoix's historic treasures.

The grant supports the replacement of the Charlevoix Train Depot's deteriorating roof. The roof has been in disrepair for several years and patching is no longer effective.

"The historical society has done a wonderful job in gathering, preserving and making available to the public the history of Charlevoix," said Ken Powers, Big Rock Point site general manager.

"Our employees feel a kinship with the dedicated volunteers of the historical society, and we are extremely pleased that we were able to support their work."

The Depot is designated as both a Michigan and a National Historical Site. Big Rock Point was named a Nuclear Historical Landmark in 1991 by the American Nuclear Society.

"This grant is a great start toward replacing the roof," said Bob Heath, finance committee chairman of the Charlevoix Historical Society. "Periodic repairs and replacements such as this are necessary to ensure future generations will be able to enjoy the Depot and the history it represents."

Work to replace the depot's roof is scheduled to begin in early 2000.

The Consumers Energy Foundation is the philanthropic arm of Consumers Energy.

It provides funding to areas including education, the environment, Michigan growth and enhancement, culture and the arts, social sciences and emerging issues.

Backpack trip offered to high school students

The second backpacking trip in SEE-North's new Discover North Country program will be an opportunity for high school students to learn natural history, ecology, and safe and responsible backcountry travel. The trip, to the nationally recognized Jordan River Pathway, is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 23-24.

The Jordan River Pathway is an 18-mile trail covering varied terrain adjacent to the Jordan River. The Jordan River was the first river in Michigan designated a Natural and Scenic River. Along the way, participants will discuss the natural history of the region and nature's preparations for winter. The trip leaders will also teach "leave-no-trace" camping and hiking skills.

The fee for the trip is $45 per person and includes transportation, meals, basic equipment, and park fees. For more information or to register call (231) 348-9700.

Wedding

On Saturday, September 4th at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, two hundred and fifty guests witnessed the four o'clock wedding ceremony of Margaret Ellen Fowler and Gregory Scott Kitson.

Meg is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Fowler of Charlevoix and Greg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kitson of East Jordan.

The Reverend Philip G. Schairbaum officiated at the service. Amy Bartling, friend of the bride was reader. Artie Jones, organist, provided pre-service and post-service music as well as accompanying Linda Slough as she played the violin, the piano and trumpet. Both Artie and Linda are from East Jordan.

Arrangements of white gladioli, pink carnations, alstromeria, purple statice, ivy and baby's breath graced the altar and candelabra. The chancel was decorated with Boston ferns and white antique wicker baskets filled with P.G, hydrangea.

At end of each pew, hanging from the wired ribbon bows, were grapevine wreaths decorated with statice, baby's breath, ivy, and straw flowers in the wedding colors.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father. Her simple floor length gown was fashioned of silk and featured a fitted princess bodice with square neckline, off-the-shoulder short sleeves and full skirt.

A two-tiered elbow length veil of illusion was secured by a comb adorned with fabric roses, beads and pearls.

The bride's bouquet was a cascading arrangement of white roses, alstromeria, purple statice, baby's breath, stephanotis and ivy.

Attending the bride were her sister Susan Fowler, from St. Clair Shores, Rhonda Buchanan, friend and teammate of the bride from Charlevoix, sister-in-law Barbara Fowler from Katy, Texas, and Sarah Malpass, teacher friend of the bride from East Jordan. Betsy Fowler, niece of the bride, was the flower girl.

They all wore watermelon georgette tea-lenth dresses which had short sleeves, scooped necks and empire waists. The bodices featured covered button backs with flowing bow closures.

They wore matching shoes. Their cascading bouquets consisted of alstromeria, ivy, mini carnations, baby's breath and purple statice. Betsy carried a white wicker basket containing like flowers.

The groom was attended by friends Kim McKinnon from Big Rapids and Ron Cook from Ada.

Also attending were the groom's nephews Kent Gilmore of Antioch, Tennessee and Phillip White of Charlevoix. Guests were seated by the brides brothers, Jim Fowler of Charlevoix and Tom Fowler of Katy, Texas, who also served as acolytes. Brooks and John Fowler, nephews of the bride from Katy, Texas, assisted by handing out programs.

A buffet reception followed the ceremony at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Charlevoix. Greeters were Teresa and Scot Hart and Joyce and Max Hosmer. Cutting and serving the cake were Irene Ferguson, Caroline Smith, Tamara Terry, Julie Voci, and Mary Weitzel-Bailey. DJ the DJ provided music during dinner and for dancing after.

The night before the wedding, after the rehearsal, the groom's parents hosted a picnic at the Depot Beach under the pavilion.

Meg is a fourth grade teacher with the East Jordan Public Schools, and Greg is a supervisor with the East Jordan Iron Works. They make their home in East Jordan.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Joe Johnston
Charlevoix Assembly of God

It was recorded as one of the worst train disasters in history.

On Jan. 3, 1944 a train filled with over 500 passengers was en route to Leon, Spain. It was one of those long passenger trains with an engine in the front and one in the rear. The tragedy occurred along the route in the El Toro Tunnel after the train's front engine stalled.

The engineer in the rear started to back the train out of the darkened tunnel. Just then, the front engine restarted and that engineer proceeded forward on to Leon.

The two engineers had no means of communicating with each other. Both thought they simply needed more power. So, they pulled and pulled in opposite directions.

After several minutes, scores of passengers began to pass out or fall asleep.

Because the train could not make progress — one way or the other — more than 500 people died in the tunnel from carbon monoxide poisoning.

There are people all around us who cannot make up their mind. They are dying from indecision.

They do not know which way to go.

"Do I come to Jesus, or remain in my sin? Do I surrender to God or go my own way?" These are the choices before us today. We cannot have it both ways.

Jesus said in Matthew 6:24, "No man can serve two masters."

Which master are you serving? Which one is pulling you?

We all must choose.

Personally, I line up with Joshua who said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

John Koeshall will take part in the 10:30 a.m. morning service on Sunday, Oct. 24. John and his wife, Anita, have served as missionaries in Europe and Asia since 1980.

The week-long mission convention will conclude at 6 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 24. Steve Telzerow and his family have served as missionaries for six years. The Telzerow family is committed to learning the language and customs of their target country of Slovenia.

The convention will close with a potluck with an international flair beginning at 6 p.m.

Christian recording artist, Larry Dameron to perform concert Sunday, Oct. 17

Dameron

As part of his "Child of the Maker" tour, Christian recording artist Larry Dameron will share an inspirational concert at 9:30 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 17 at First Baptist Church on M-66 (across from the Post Office) in Charlevoix.

Several of his songs reflect Dameron's Irish roots. He incorporates pipes and whistles to give the music a Celtic feel.

Dameron has recorded five albums and has published more than 40 songs.

Many of the songs have reached the top 25 charts with several in the top 10 and one number one hit. Songs such as My Song of Praise, I Believe, All I Need, and remakes of old favorites like Amazing Grace and This IS My Father's World have become some of the most requested.

"This is not the life I sought, but is a testimony of what God can do through a willing servant," said Dameron. He has traveled extensively, and is often referred to as a "minister to the soul."

REASON FOR LIVING

I don't know how to say it, but somehow it seems to me,
That maybe we are stationed where God wanted us to be.
That the little place I'm filling is the reason for my birth.
And just to do the work I do He placed me here on earth.

If God had wanted otherwise, I reckon He'd have made
Me just a little different of a worse or better grade.
But since God knows and understands all things of land or sea,
I fancy that He placed me where He wanted me to be.

Sometimes I get to thinking, as my labours I review,
That I should like a higher place, with greater tasks to do.
But I come to the conclusion, when envying is stilled,
That the task God has given is the post He wanted filled.

So I plod along and struggle, in the hope when day is through,
That I'm really necessary to the things God wants me to do.
And there isn't any service I can give which I should scorn,
For it may be just the reason God allowed me to be born.

Fewer apple orchards a sign of the times

By B. J. Hetler

Apple orchards, as with livestock and crop farms, are getting fewer and farther between these days, evoking more nostalgia for family farms.

The reasons are many and sometimes complicated. But one major cause is government regulations.

Rosenthal's Orchard on Barnard Road quit growing apples on its 150-acre farm in 1997. It now concentrates on cherries. Owners Walter and Michelle Rosenthal say many factors influenced their decision. One factor was their desire to spend the time to home-school their three boys.

Then there is the difficulty of finding apple-pickers, Michelle said.

"Americans don't want to work that hard," she said. And migrant workers don't want to pick in the cold weather that accompanies apple harvesting time.

Other factors concern economics.

"Apple prices are down," Michelle said. The importing of apples from countries such as China, Japan and Mexico make it difficult to compete.

While the U.S. government has banned the use of many pesticides here, it allows importation of apples from countries where no pesticide regulations exist, Michelle said.

"It's ironic that our government will import apples sprayed with the pesticides banned in this country."

The pesticides used in importing countries is also cheaper to use than those available in the U.S., she said.

John and Betsy King of King Orchards in Central Lake enjoy farming, but are frustrated with the government regulations on pesticides. John, and his brother, Jim, farm 94 acres of apples.

"I always wanted to be a farmer," John said. "It was always a dream of mine, I still love it."

But he believes that the government is unrealistic about pesticides and he places some of the blame on well-meaning environmentalists.

Organic gardening promoted by environmentalists isn't realistic for the farm. The negative publicity about pesticides is short-sighted in terms of farming, he said.

"If there's no pesticides, and they get what they wanted, where's the food going to come from?"

Rosenthal and King say that a new government regulation requiring pasteurization of apple cider is another hardship for growers.

The regulation became effective this year. It requires that unpasturized apple cider be labled with a warning about bacteria risks before it is sold.

The regulation is most directly the result of the November 1996 tragic death of a 16-month-old Colorado toddler, who died after drinking unpasteurized apple juice that was infected with E. coli bacteria.

The pasteurization process heats apples to 160 degrees for 15 seconds, killing any possible bacteria contamination. The hardship for apple-growers comes from the cost to buy a pasteurization machine — about $25,000.

"That was a big stopper for us," Michelle said.

The Kings still sell cider, but instead of buying a machine they have it processed elsewhere.

The risk of bacteria in unpasturized apple cider may not be that great, but most grocery stores will handle only pasteurized from growers.

Friske Orchards, south of Charlevoix, own 200 acres of land and use about 125 acres to grow apples. Owners Richard and Wendy Friske invested in a pasteurization machine because apple cider is one of their best-sellers.

The purchase was a major expense, but was necessary to stay competitive, Richard Friske said.

"We work mighty hard for what we get — it's a struggle even for the best."

Diversity of crops and innovative marketing help the business. "It's an incredible amount of hard work," he said.

The customers who come to the Friske farm market usually buy the unpasturized apple cider. "Most of the customers, especially the regulars, won't touch the pasteurized cider," Richard said.

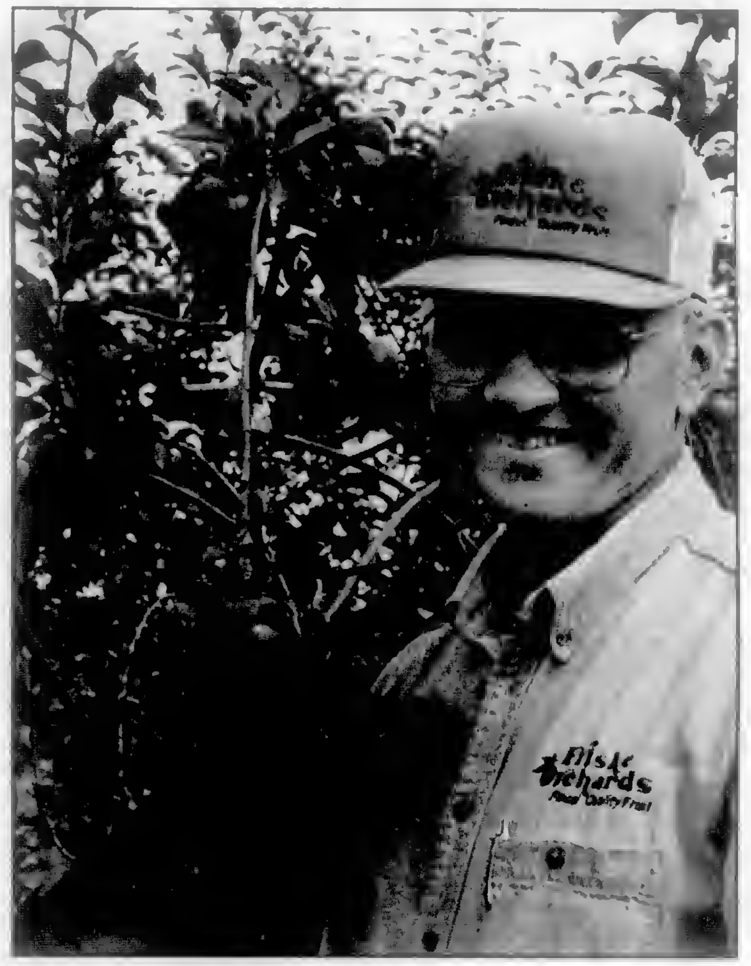
"Pasteurization doesn't alter the taste of the apple cider appreciatively," he said. But he drinks only the unpasturized.

Richard and his family love farming and, like the Rosenthals, the Kings, and other orchard-growers, are concerned about the disappearance of farms.

"Orchards are going out of business because there's no profit," Richard said.

Michelle Rosenthal worries that people don't take the farming situation seriously enough.

"Farming is a wonder industry," Michelle said. "It's sad that America doesn't know that it's slowly being destroyed."



Apples Galore

Friske Orchards' owner Richard Friske constantly checks the quality of apples and other produce on his farm, south of Charlevoix. His family helps with the many tasks involved in running the orchard. Friske loves farming and is concerned about other orchards getting out of the business. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

Charlevoix Area Hospital is sponsoring food drive

Charlevoix Area Hospital's volunteers, staff, and employees are sponsoring a local food drive now through Sunday, Oct. 24.

All donated food items will be distributed to local food banks in Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, Ellsworth and Central Lake. A goal of 2,000 pounds, "A Ton of Food," has been set.

The food drive is the local effort of the Michigan Health & Hospital Association's Michigan Harvest Gathering, an annual program to raise food and funds for the Food Bank Council of Michigan, which has 12 regional food banks and supports 2,300 community agencies. Charlevoix Area Hospital is a member of the association.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital collected more than 1,300 pounds during last year's food drive, which yielded nearly 160,000 pounds of food statewide, and $90,000 to help buy food and distribute it to the needy. MHA members have launched this year's campaign with more than $30,000 in contraptions already.

Persons who would like to help those in need may contribute canned goods, unopened dry foods and paper products. Desired types of food include commercially canned fruits, vegetables and soups, beef stew, tuna, peanut butter, baby food and infant formula, unopened packages of dry beans, lentils, boxed mixes, and personal hygiene and paper products.

Drop off sites in Charlevoix include Charlevoix Area Hospital Gift Shop, Admitting Department, Cardiac Rehab, Physical Therapy, and the Cafeteria. Sites in Boyne City are the Boyne Area Medical Center and Boyne Rehab Center; and in East Jordan at the Busy Bridge Antiques and Gifts Shop.

Cash or checks will be accepted in the Charlevoix Area Hospital Development and Volunteer Services Office only. Please do not place cash or checks in drop off boxes. Cash or checks may be left at the hospital gift shop or at the front desk in an envelope marked "Attention Kathy Johnson."

For more information contact Kathy Johnson at 547-8502.

Michigan awards merit scholarships

Jamie E. Gowell and Bethany Lynn Purvis, both of Charlevoix, are each recipients of Regent Merit Scholarships at the University of Michigan.

The $1,500 non-renewable awards are presented to in-coming students based on their high school grades, class ranking and test scores, and "for outstanding academic achievement, scholarly promise and potential contribution to the university community."

New story hour starts Oct. 13

Children are invited to attend an after school story hour on Wednesdays at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Adele Lepman Sell, a former elementary school teacher and Ringling Bros. Circus clown, will present one-hour programs featuring story telling, book reading, drawing, coloring and other activities from 3:30 - 4:40 p.m. on Wednesdays starting Oct. 13 and running through Nov. 17.

The story hour programs are free. All children are invited to attend. Registration is not necessary. "Just show up and have some fun," said Lepman Sell.

Weight Watchers back in Charlevoix

By B. J. Hetler

Weight Watchers returns to Charlevoix after an absence of several years.

Meetings are held on Wednesdays at the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene. Weigh-in is from 5-6 p.m., with the meetings following from 6-6:30 p.m.

The current session continues until the first week in November and is open to new members anytime. A new 12-week session begins on Nov. 10.

Kimberley VanMeter is the leader of Charlevoix Weight Watchers, and she conducts the community meeting sessions. She is a lifetime member and has been with Weight Watchers for 12 years. Janine Warner is the receptionist and is also a lifetime member.

VanMeter is excited about her first experience at leading the program. The response from people joining has been very good.

"Currently we have over 35 members, with more joining weekly. There has been a need for Weight Watchers to come back to our community for many years."

The program is known as "1-2-3 Success," the old Weight Watchers program — only better, VanMeter said.

Weight Watcher magazines offering recipes and products, such as coffee mugs, are available for sale in the meeting room.

Plans are to continue the sessions throughout the year.

The address of the Nazarene Church is 12023 Waller Road. It is adjacent to the community pool.

For more information call Weight Watchers at 1-800-651-6000, or attend the next meeting.

Charlevoix's basketball team gets back on the winning track

All the hard work, extra practice time and energy invested by the Charlevoix girls' basketball team this season is beginning to return big dividends.

First-year coach Jason Otter's Rayder squad combined a tenacious pressing defense with a balanced scoring offense to defeat T. C. St. Francis, 49-46, then dominated every phase of the game in crushing Kalkaska 73-37.

After several close games that ended in losses recently, the Rayders led St. Francis from wire-to-wire. Charlevoix maintained a four to six-point lead throughout most of the game and controlled the ball for the final 90 seconds.

Leslie Hoffman paced the winners with 12 points, six rebounds and five steals.

"She had a really good game," Charlevoix coach Jason Otter said about the junior forward. "In the last couple of games she has played a little more aggressive and smarter."

Another remarkable performance was turned in by Taya Drost. The 5'2" senior guard grabbed seven rebounds and scored five points, including several clutch free throws near the end of the game to assure the victory.

"Taya plays hard all the time and gets after people on defense," said Otter.

Point guard Jennifer McClellan ran the offense, scored five points and dished out four assists.

"Jennifer controlled the game," said Otter. "Her points-to-turnover ratio was 4:1. That's what we needed, though I'd be even happier if she scored 12 points."

Danielle Vogelheim made four-of-eight shots for eight points to go with eight rebounds. Meghan Vogel also had eight points and eight rebounds, plus three steals and three assists before fouling out.

"The girls are happy now. They made some nice adjustments and played pretty well most of the time," said Otter. "We play some better teams soon and I am expecting more wins."

Otter's prediction was correct.

Against Kalkaska, Charlevoix was never challenged. The Rayders raced to a 23-8 first-quarter lead and stretched it to 41-20 at halftime.

The tone for this game was set early when Meghan Vogel took a charge on defense. "That play seemed to get us on track," said Otter. "Immediately, the girls all stepped up defensively and offensively and turned the game in our favor."

Jennifer McClellan played an outstanding game at point guard. She made nine steals, six assists and scored six points. "She's the key to our team," said Otter. "When she plays well, we all play well."

Leslie Hoffman continued her recent torrid scoring streak with 22 points, including three three-pointers in the first quarter.

Kirsten Larsen was the team's high-scorer with 26 points. She also grabbed 12 rebounds, passed for seven assists and made six steals.

Abby Schaperkotter added five points.

"I expected to win big," said Otter. "The players have been working and playing hard all season. We finally put it all together. We really got after them. Our pressure was intense for the entire game. This win is a great reward for the girls, for all their efforts."

Golfers finish second in conference — honestly!

It appeared that the Charlevoix golf team had captured the Lake Michigan Conference title at Belvedere Golf Club last week, but personal integrity and honesty dropped them to second place.

The Rayders tied previously undefeated T. C. St. Francis with a combined score of 344.

The four best scores from each team are used to determine total team scores.

Siwarga

Craig Siwarga earned tournament comedalist honors. He shot 82, to tie St. Francis' Ryan McKenney for the lowest individual score of the event and earn all-conference recognition.

David Shearer shot 84 and Jon Sell posted 86. They also earned all-conference honors.

Avery

Sell's 37 on the front nine tied a school record for lowest score recorded at the Belvedere course. Keith Grunch shot 37 there in 1998.

In order to break the two-way team tie and determine the conference champion, the scores of the fifth-best golfers from Charlevoix and St. Francis were compared. Scores of 92 were recorded for each player. The teams were still tied. It took the sixth score, Chris Smith's 94, to break the deadlock and award the championship to Charlevoix.

Or so it seemed.

That's when Charlevoix's Dennis Avery, the team's fifth scorer noticed an error. He knew he had shot 94. Yet somehow, he had been credited officially with 92.

Avery realized if he just kept silent, Charlevoix would be conference co-champions. Or, he could do what was right.

Avery told his coach, Jim Glynn, that his posted score was wrong. He had shot two strokes higher.

His score was verified and the error was corrected. Charlevoix finished second, and St. Francis rightfully took home the championship trophy, their perfect season remained intact.

"When I saw the scoreboard, I had an awful feeling," Avery said. "I couldn't have lived with myself if I hadn't told what really happened. I feel much better now."

Glynn called Avery's action, "a fine commitment to sportsmanship, the game of golf, and most importantly to himself."

"His personal integrity prevailed. I am very proud of Dennis and the whole Charlevoix Red Rayder team."

Jon Sell earned all-conference and all-region honors and tied school records along the way. (Courtesy photo)

Golfers take second in regionals, advance to state finals

Charlevoix golfers finished second in a 19-team field at the Division III Regionals held at Boyne Mt. on Oct. 8.

Cool and windy conditions caused scores to soar. Charlevoix shot 352, five strokes behind first-place Gladwin. The Rayders earned an opportunity to compete at the state finals starting Oct. 15 at Michigan State University's Forest Akers East course.

Davis Shearer shot 84, Jon Sell 85, Craig Siwarga 91, Allen Brooks 92, and Dennis Avery 103.

Shearer and Sell earned All-Region honors.

"This was a whole team effort," said coach Jim Glynn. "I'm proud of them all. We can shoot better and the players know it. I'm optimistic about our chances at the finals."

Volleyball, basketball leagues set meeting

An organizational meeting for adult recreational volleyball and basketball leagues will be held at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 20 in the council chambers in the Charlevoix City Hall.

A representative for each team must be present at this meeting. Play starts the first week of November.

Persons with questions, or interest in officiating basketball games should call the Charlevoix Recreation Department at 547-3253.

Grunch stars in college

Keith Grunch shot 76 to earn medalist honors in a collegiate golf tournament on Sept. 29.

The former Charlevoix High School star plays for Aquinas College which finished fourth in the Wolverine Hoosier Athletic Conference.

Grunch, a freshman, completed the season with the lowest scoring average on Aquinas' golf team this fall.

He posted a conference scoring average of 80.5, and missed first team all-league by 1/10th of a stroke.

Grunch earned All-Conference Honorable Mention.

Charlevoix wins homecoming game, 29-8

The Rayders put it all together offensively and defensively and won their first game of the 1999 football season, 29-8, over Elk Rapids.

Playing before a big homecoming crowd, Charlevoix gave up an early touchdown before scoring 29 unanswered points to lock up the victory.

Ryan Leitner opened the Rayders' scoring attack with a 95-yard kickoff return immediately following the Elk Rapids score. The extra point attempt sailed wide left and Elk Rapids retained an 8-6 lead.

Charlevoix played without starting quarterback and co-captain Adam Wood. The senior signal-caller injured a knee in practice earlier in the week and was not able to suit-up for this game.

Jeremiah Teuscher, a junior, filled in as field-general and guided the offense. He completed 4 of 7 passes for 24 yards. Teuscher also intercepted three Elk Rapids' passes.

"Teuscher played a great game," said coach Todd Klinger. "He did an amazing job under pressure."

Later in the first quarter, sophomore Ryan Rafacz picked off a pass to start another Rayder scoring drive. Leitner capped off the series with a 5-yard sprint into the endzone. He added a two-point conversion and Charlevoix took the lead for good, 14-8.

Sean Stockman, a senior and star soccer player boomed a school-record, 42-yard field goal to up the score to 17-8.

Leitner tallied for the third time in the first half on a 35-yard gallop just before intermission.

Troy Smith completed the scoring with a 19-yard touchdown run early in the fourth quarter.

"This was really exciting for the kids to get a win," said Klinger, who received a big-time Gatorade dousing from his elated players after the game.

"We were able to control the ball offensively with our running game. The guys all stepped it up and played real well. We played a great game on defense, too."

The defense made six interceptions and recovered two Elk Rapids fumbles.

Rafacz picked off two passes and Cornett had one interception. Chad Mackowiak and Matt Horon each recovered a fumble.

Mackowiak and Coen led the defense with nine tackles apiece, Horon and Nick Schwein had seven.

Rafacz, Cornett, Coen and Shay Hutchison each had a reception.

Leitner, a junior tailback, gained 163 yards on 21 carries. Smith picked up 71 yards on 6 tries and Coen gained 67 yards on nine runs.

The win gives Charlevoix some needed confidence going into this week's game with arch-rival Boyne City at home, said Klinger.

Charlevoix's record is 1-4 in the Lake Michigan Conference, 1-6 overall. Boyne City stands at 2-2 and 2-5.

Soccer team wins in OT

Jon Boss scored a goal in overtime to give Charlevoix a 6-5 win over Northern Michigan Christian Academy on Sept. 5.

He took a pass from Tomasz Barczynski and drilled a kick into the net. Boss had three goals in the game.

Charlevoix opened the scoring just 90 seconds in to the match on a play from Ryan Vogelheim to Boss. The Rayders went up 2-0 when Michael Ricks launched a corner kick to Boss who headed it in for the score.

NMCA stormed back with three unanswered goals to grab the lead.

Sean Stockman scored an unassisted goal to tie the contest. Polish exchange student Tomasz Barczynski got the go-ahead goal with 40 seconds remaining in the first half.

Less than two minutes into the second half, Ryan Vogelheim blasted a shot from 30 yards out into the upper corner of the net to make the score 5-3.

NMCA rallied to tie the match, force overtime, and set the stage for the Barczynski to Boss heroics.

Coach Josh Block was pleased with the result of the high scoring game. "We obviously played very well offensively," he said.

However, improvement is needed on a defense that allowed 11 goals in the past two games. One bright spot on defense was junior Tony Shearer. "He played a great game in his first start of the season,," said coach Block.

Michael Ricks had two assists, Vogelheim, Barczynski and Roscoe Serrelseach asisted on one goal.

Leland did all the scoring in the second half en route to a 5-1 win over Charlevoix on Sept. 6.

Tomasz Barczynski scored an unassisted goal in the first half for Charlevoix. Tony Shearer had another fine game individually on defense.

Charlevoix, 9-4, will host Houghton Lake Wednesday, Oct. 13.

Annual Drinking Water Quality Report

City of Charlevoix Water Supply

Here is this year's Annual Quality Water Report. This report is designed to inform you about the quality drinking water and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water. The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Our water comes from Lake Michigan, considered surface water. The State will be performing an assessment of our source water by the year 2003; we will inform you how to get a copy when it is available.

We are pleased to report that your drinking water is safe and meets all State and Federal requirements.

This report is a snapshot of the quality of the water we provided to you in 1998. Included are details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and State of Michigan standards.

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Sam Creswell at the Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant, (231) 547-3256, or Ed Whitley at the Charlevoix Water Department, (231) 547-3278. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. The City of Charlevoix Water Supply routinely monitors for contaminants in your drinking water according to Federal and State Laws. This report shows the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1 thru December 31, 1998. All drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some constituents. It's important to remember that the presence of these constituents does not necessarily pose a health risk.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.

Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals which can be naturally occurring or result from urban stormwater run-off, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming.

Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture and residential uses.

Radioactive contaminants, which are naturally occurring.

Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems.

The State of Michigan and Environmental Protection Agency require us to test our water on a regular basis to ensure it's safety. We met all the monitoring and reporting requirements for 1998.

Charlevoix Water Treatment Plant and Distribution System personnel sampled and tested for over 100 contaminants that were NOT detected in our water supply. The following constituents were detected at low but safe levels, well below the MCL (Maximum Contaminant Level).

In the following tables you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just noticeable to the average person.

Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - (MCLG) is level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

N/A: not applicable N/D: not detectable at testing limit

TEST RESULTS

Contaminant (units)	Violation Y/N	Charlevoix water	MCLG	MCL	Likely Source of Contamination

Volatile Organic Contaminants
5. TTHM - MFP (ppb) (see note below)	no	72	0	100	By-product of drinking water chlorination

NOTES:

Turbidity - turbidity is a measure of the cloudiness of the water. We monitor it because it is an indicator of our filtration system.*

Lead and Capper - Lead and copper testing is on a three (3) year schedule, test results reported here are from the 1997 year; next round of testing is year 2000. (No lead was detected).

TTHM - MFP. The maximum formation potential for total trihalomethanes is determined by (1) collecting a representative water sample after treatment from our Water Treatment Plant tap, (2) adding 3500 ppm of chlorine (this is 3050 times our normal dosage of chlorine, and (3) allowing the sample to set in the dark at room temperature for 7 days. This test allows the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality to determine the* maximum amount of disinfection by-products which could be generated by our water. Please note the next table, which shows the actual total trihalomethane levels detected in our water distribution system are well below the MCL.

TTHM-1998 (ppb) (total trihalomethanes)	No	3.7	0	100	By-product of drinking water chlorination
TTHM-1999 (ppb)	No	10.6 (average)	0	100	By-product of drinking water chlorination

Unregulated contaminants are those for which the EPA has not established drinking water standards. The purpose of unregulated contaminant monitoring is to assist EPA in determining the occurrence of unregulated contaminants in drinking water and whether future regulation is warranted.

Contaminant (units)		Charlevoix water	MCLG	MCL	Likely source of contamination
Unregulated Contaminants
Sodium	(ppm)	6	n/a	n/a	Erosion of natural deposits
Sulfate	(ppm)	27	n/a	n/a	Erosion of natural deposits
Chloroform	(ppb)	53.8	n/a	n/a	By-product of drinking water chlorination
Bromoform	(ppb)	0.7	n/a	n/a	By-product of drinking water chlorination
Chlorodibromethane	(ppb)	4.9	n/a	n/a	By-product of drinking water chlorination
Dicholorobromethane	(ppb)	12.6	n/a	n/a	By-product of drinking water chlorination

As you can see by the tables, our system had no violations. We're proud that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some contaminants have been detected. The EPA has determined that your water IS SAFE at these levels.

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man made. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

The 1998 Michigan Safe Drinking Water Act, (1976 PS 399, as amended) requires all Community Water Supplies to provide to its customers Consumer Confidence Reports as required by title XIV of the Public Health Service Act, chapter 373, 88 Stat. 1660, popularly known as the Safe Drinking Water Act.

This report is provided to the customers of the City of Charlevoix Water Supply, and covers the reporting period of calendar year 1998. It is not being mailed to individual mailing addresses. The report is available at the following locations: City of Charlevoix City Hall, Charlevoix Public Library, Water Treatment Plant at 97 Grant Street, Charlevoix Electric & Water Department at 401 Carpenter Ave. Copies are available by mail from the City Manager's Office, 210 State Street, Box 550, Charlevoix, MI 49720. This report will also be available on the City's internet web page at www.ci.charlevoix.mi.us

Seventh graders become desktop book pubishers

Seventh graders at Charlevoix Middle School students have recently honed their writing skills, learned new computer skills and will soon become self-published book authors.

Each of one-hundred-eight students is currently putting finishing touches on a personally authored book complete with color photos and graphics. They are working under the direction of English teacher Jim Kanine and middle school media specialist Suzanne Klinger.

The idea for the class project came to Kanine after he attended a week-long conference last August at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. The event was sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

Workshop attendees learned several tricks of the trade on motivating middle school students. As might be expected, many of the ideas and suggestions included incorporating the use of technology, computers and the internet in school curriculum.

The middle school presently has 12 computers, a scanner, printers, and a variety of software including Microsoft Word, and Power Point available for students to use.

Kanine asked the students to create a 6-8 page book based on their own personal experience with a nature theme, summer vacation, or outdoor recreational activity. Family photos or pictures from magazines were scanned onto the pages. He helps with the writing, Klinger provides the technical training and support.

Book titles and authors include: A Day on the Lake by Michael Yaldo; Snow Days by Ezra Bakker; A Walk in the Mountains by Michael Wojan; My Life BMXing by Josh Bowman; My Backyard Adventure by Cody Crain; A Weekend for Adventure by Rex Smith; and My Camping Trip in Ohio by Kristi Brewer.

The students will use computer technology and high-tech projection equipment to present their books to each other at an assembly in the school on Oct. 13 and 14.

Seventh graders Michael Yaldo (foreground) and Ezra Bakker each work with English teacher Mr. Jim Kanine to publish their own nature storybook. More than 100 Charlevoix Middle School students are learning computer, graphics and writing skills. (Photo by Doug Drapal)

Humane Society's fund-raiser was roaring success

More than 60 animal-lovers contributed nearly $4,000 towards the care of the county's animals, and enjoyed an evening of fun on Friday, Sept. 17.

The dinner-cabaret event was a fund-raiser for the Charlevoix County Humane Society, and was held at One Water Street Restaurant in Boyne City.

Humane society board members entertained the guests with a feline chorus line skit. An auction of items donated by supporters was included in the festivities.

The humane society and county shelter opened in July at its new location, and has reached capacity. The telephone number is 582-6774

North aide holds office hours

District Representative Don Weeks, an aide to State Senator Walter H. North (R-St. Ignace), will be in Charlevoix County on Monday, October 18.

Weeks will meet with constituents at the City Hall in Boyne City from 10 a.m. until noon, and at the County Courthouse in Charlevoix from 2 - 4 p.m.

Wednesday Night at the Races — October 6, 1999

By: A. Nony Mouse,
Charlevoix Yacht Club

When you sail the CYC Fall Series you do expect cool weather and good air. What was delivered was plenty of cool with a definite shortage of sailing breezes! The Fleets really mixed it up as everyone did their best to cross the finish line before they became the evidence of the first freeze of fall.

Blasen III screamed in at 6:54:03 to be both first to finish and first on corrected time (42:07) in the P-26 Fleet and overall! Trailing in that fleet were Jesse, Cygnus and Original Sin.

Flash, crossing at 6:56:01, was first to finish in the bigger JAM Fleet but Bald Eagle gets the win in the record books, saving her time by 32 seconds!

Right behind Flash at 6:56:59, was Kamikaze, leading Gotcha by nearly three minutes in Fleet A, the faster spinnaker boats (<150).

Booma racing alone in JAM 198+, demonstrated that Jib and Main can be in the contest as she crossed the line with the early birds at 6:58:17. Guess she, like, Babe also sailing alone in Fleet B (Spinnaker 153-195) are both first and last in class. Babe crossed the finish line at a respectable 7:03:38.

Reckless ended First Date's domination of the last few races in the J-22 Fleet leading Swine Flew over the line by just 15 seconds. Right behind (50 seconds) was that fun First Date with Superfluous, High Maintenance and Gecko all crossing within the next 35 seconds! What a Fleet! H S Moisture Missile, Thunderstruck, Paleface Lite and Crazy Horse trailed the fleet. Didn't see Habanero of Jumblies out there but didn't see the start.

With only one race left in the Fall Series, here are the standings using the one race drop allowed:

J-22 First Date 5, Swine Flew 13, Superfluous 14, Reckless 16, Moisture Missile 18, High Maintenance 18, Paleface Lite 23, Gecko 28, Thunderstruck 32, Habanero 35, Jumblies 39, Crazy Horse 45.

JAM 195- Flash 4, Bald Eagle 7, Hog-Tide 15.

Jam 198+ Booma 4, Our Thyme 8, Apothecary 12, Cheemaun 22, High C 22.

A Fleet Kamikaze 4, Gotcha! 7, Mint Julep 14.

B Fleet Babe 5, J Hawk 9, M 3 11.

C Fleet Jesse 5, Blasen 6, Original Sin 14, Cygnus 14, Sandpiper 20.

I'll be heading west for a few days and will miss the final race of this series, but fear not! A far more attractive wordsmith will be posting all the results plus, hopefully, a few yarns of racing on the freshwater seas.

Hope to be back pushing these computer keys once again, each Thursday when the ice is gone and the fair winds of spring are upon us. Meanwhile; dress warmly and keep your tiller close at hand!

New teachers join Charlevoix schools

The Charlevoix Courier presents comments from the Charlevoix Public School district's new teachers about their backgrounds.

The background information and the photographs are courtesy of the Charlevoix Public Schools.

Patricia L. Ricks
Middle School Reading

A childhood goal of living and teaching in Charlevoix has been fulfilled for me with my position as Reading teacher in the Charlevoix Middle School.

Ricks

Upon completion of my undergraduate studies in education and English at Western Michigan University, I taught fourth grade in the Warren Consolidated School District and then sixth grade in the Muscatine, Iowa school district.

My husband and I moved to Charlevoix in the mid-70's to open up his practice of Chiropractic. We have five children, two of which are still in Charlevoix High School.

With sixth grade being the last formal instruction of reading, my goal is to provide the children with a positive, enthusiastic experience for a knowledge and a love of reading that will last a lifetime.

Margaret M. Myers-Culver
K-5 Media

Charlevoix Elementary School has a positive, high energy feeling radiating from the top, down. It has a high level of commitment to quality education for children.

Myers-Culver

The students make me feel like smiling or laughing all of the time. Every day is fun!

Nothing really stands out about my first week at school, except coming from 20 plus years of working with middle school students. I may rent "Kindergarten Cop" this weekend and watch it a few times. I love working at this level.

I am a native of Holt. Upon graduation in June of 1969 from Holt High School, I obtained status as one of the top 10 in my class. In 1973 I completed my Bachelor of Science in Education (Cum Laude) with a Secondary Certificate and a K-12 Library Science major. Since that time, graduate studies have been pursued at Western Michigan University, Michigan State University and Eastern Michigan University. In 1987 my colleagues nominated me for "Middle School Teacher of the Year" and that honor was received for region eight.

I have enjoyed being a presenter at the Michigan Reading Association conference, the Michigan Association for Media in Education conferences and The Eaton County Young Author's conferences.

Perhaps one of the most rewarding decisions I made was 11 years ago when I joined the National Storytelling Association. After attending several summer training sessions and several fall National Storytelling Festivals in Jonesboro, Tenn. I have become completely enamored with the power of story.

Over the years my love of reading has caused many students to ask if I have read all of the books in the library. I carry several small notebooks everywhere which list all the books I have read during the past 12 years.

Six years ago the Internet became my ally in providing students and staff with information only a mouse click away. It is a tool that must be carefully taught in order to reap the maximum benefits. At times I see myself not too far away from nerd status as I work on the computer into the wee hours of the morning.

My summers are filled with family fun at the lake, working in perennial gardens, sewing and dreaming of completing Mary Engelbreit or Martha Stewart projects.

My husband, Tim, and I are looking forward to living full-time in the north at our home on Torch River.

Amy Parrish
Seventh grade science

Amy Parrish is the new seventh grade science teacher at Charlevoix Middle School. Parrish a Charlevoix native, graduated from Western Michigan University, Cum Laude, in December 1998.

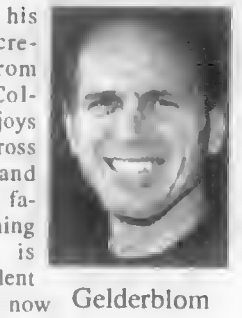
Parrish

She did her student teaching at Lincoln Environmental Science Academy in Grand Rapids, and received her degree in elementary education with minors in science, math and English.

Since graduation she has been subbing in the area. She believes that science should be taught using a hands-on approach with the children learning in groups. Parrish enjoys roller blading, walking, dancing, reading and snowboarding in her spare time.

Paul Gelderblom
Eighth grade science

Paul is our eighth grade science teacher. He comes to us from the DNR where he has worked in State Parks, Hazardous Waste Management and, for the last 18 years, here in Charlevoix at the Charlevoix Fisheries Station. Paul received a dual degree in Fisheries Biology and Parks and Recreation Resources from Michigan State University. He received his teaching credentials from Aquinas College. He enjoys coaching Cross Country and running. His favorite teaching moment is when a student says "Wow, now I see!". Paul and his wife Debbie also have a small organic farm where they raise their children, and grow fruits and vegetables, and rare breeds of livestock. Paul is looking forward to working with the children and parents of Charlevoix and bringing his experiences into the classroom.



Gelderblom

Suzanne Klinger
Middle School
Media Specialist

This fall I will fill the position of Media Specialist at Charlevoix Middle School. I'm excited and enthusiastic about the possibilities that exist with this position and look forward to working with the students and staff members as CMS. It's great to be back!

Klinger

My educational background includes two bachelor degrees from Central Michigan University - one in Business and the other in Education. I also hold a master's degree from CMU in Educational Administration and am currently pursuing a second master's from Michigan State University in Educational Technology and Curriculum Design. However, my "true education" has come from my hands-on classroom experiences. This experience started in Houghton Lake, where I spent a year equipping unemployed adults with the skills they would need to reenter the work force. I spent the next four years at Charlevoix High School as a business teacher, working with Jill Erskine, to restructure the business computer education program. We were very fortunate to replace two new computer labs with up-to-date technology futures. Two years ago, I joined the staff at Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District where I worked as a Career Tech Ed and Technology Coordinator. In this position, I was not only able to further my knowledge of Career Tech Ed (vocational education), but also to enhance my skills in how teachers might use "technology" as a tool to teach their curricula. However, my strong love of kids and my desire to continue to work with technology, different types of media and curriculum development led me back to Charlevoix Middle School.

I look forward to continuing the strong education support that the media center has provided in the past and to bringing the technology to a new level in order to support students, teachers and curriculum. But most of all, I look forward to teaching children and helping them to succeed during their middle school years!

Outside of the school day, I enjoy spending my time with my husband, Todd, who is a science/biology teacher at Charlevoix High School and our two sons, Luke and Brad. We enjoy boating, biking, getting together with friends and attending Rayder events.

Dean Lazowski
Middle School counselor

Born and raised in Saginaw, new middle school counselor Dean Lazowski has been a resident of Charlevoix for the past seven years. With him, Mr. Lazowski brings over ten years of education experience to the Charlevoix schools. Previous duties include counseling, teaching, coaching and administrative positions with schools in the Saginaw, Lansing, Ellsworth and Petoskey areas.

Lazowski

A graduate of Central Michigan University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Education, Dean also holds Masters degrees from CMU in both Counseling and Educational Administration.

When not engaged in school functions, he enjoys participating in various athletic activities, and spending time boating in the beautiful lakes of northern Michigan.

Gretchen Siegmund
High School and Middle School special education

Originally from Florida, I moved to Michigan in May of 1996 to complete my education at Eastern Michigan University. I graduated in April of 1999 with a Bachelor's Degree in Special Education.

Siegmund

Both my regular education and special education student teaching were in the Saline Area School District. I then finished the 98/99 school year as a permanent substitute in the media and technology area of this district.

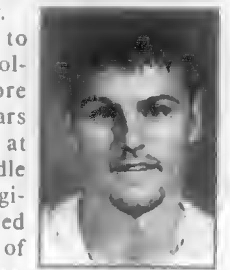
I look forward to becoming a member of an area with a healthy sense of community and a strong commitment to education.

Additionally, the numerous outdoor activities will mesh well with my personal interests which include biking, hiking, skiing (I plan to learn this one) and snowmobiling.

I am looking forward to my relocation and the beginning of the school year.

Jason Otter
Charlevoix High School special education

My name is Jason Otter and I am excited to join the high school staff as a special education teacher.



Otter

I come to Charlevoix following more than two years of teaching at Webber Middle School in Saginaw. I received my Bachelor of Science degree, and am certified in the areas of special education, physical education and health.

I am also the Girls Varsity Basketball coach and we are looking forward to having a great season. I am proud to be a part of the Charlevoix Public Schools Rayder staff.

I hope to motivate students to develop work habits that will last a lifetime.

John Guirey
High School Art

Greetings Charlevoix! My name is John Guirey and I am the new high school art teacher.

Guirey

My wife Julie and I are excited to finally be moving north, it has been our dream since we married six years ago. Moving north with us will be our three-year-old son, Sean and our two month old son, Jack. We look forward to raising our family in Charlevoix and becoming part of your fine community.

Charlevoix schools have an excellent reputation that is known far beyond its city borders. Although originally from downstate, I am no stranger to the area. I was a counselor at Camp Daggett in the early eighties and have been the summer program director for the past six years. My art experiences have led me in many direction over the years.

I graduated from Northern Michigan University with a BFA in advertising design and worked in the Detroit area as a studio artist. I then attended Wayne State University where I earned my teacher certification in art education.

For the past eight years I have taught middle school art, computer graphics and adventure-based learning for Ferndale Schools in the Detroit area. I am anxiously awaiting the start of school and I look forward to the challenges and experiences that Charlevoix will offer me.

SCRAPBOOK

1940s stroll along Bridge Street continues

By Marilyn Boss

As I continue my reminiscent stroll down Bridge Street in the forties, I begin with the old, two story, wood framed building located on the corner of Bridge and Mason streets.

Sternberg's Barber and Beauty Shop was there, and Shorty Sternberg was the barber, and his wife, Sarah, was the beauty operator. I loved going to have my hair cut. When I was about five, Shorty would ask me how I wanted it cut. I would reply "Cut it just above the tips of my ears, please." He always gave a candy treat.

Next door, to the north, was Fagan's Recreation. Art Fagan was a short, red headed man, who was usually chewing on a cigar, and wore a little green coat. Bob Miles told me that one day, Art came to him, reached in his pocket, and pulled out a handful of old, old Charlevoix pictures. He told Bob that perhaps he could use these for something. It turned out that many of them were used in "Bob Miles' Charlevoix," and Bob said they were priceless.

Next door to the north, in the three-story Novak building, was Staley Hardware. It was a neat, little hardware store, with very personal service.

If Bert didn't have the article you needed, it was on order, and would be in within the next few days. Arthur Bergeon was the owner of Bergeon's Clothing. I remember him as being impeccably clothed in a nice gray suit, and wore a dress hat when going down the street.

He was also mayor of Charlevoix for many years. He did many things for the town in his terms of office. The next store was the A&P. Dent Newville was the manager.

In those days, you could walk up to the counter, and the clerk would take a long stick with a clamp on the end to reach the many items that were stacked to the ceiling. They utilized all the space they had.

The next building housed Mont's Cafe and Bob's Ice Cream stand. The restaurant had a thriving business in the summer months, serving great meals. Their son and daughter-in-law, Bob and Millie Withers, ran the ice-cream stand, with a window and serving counter opening directly onto the sidewalk.

Next, was an alley, which has just recently been named "Hoop Skirt Alley," a name which came from what they called the 200 Block of Clinton Street at the turn of the century.

The Charlevoix Fruit Market was operated during the summer months by Andy Grillo. He had fruits and vegetables on tables outside the store on the sidewalk.

Then, there was a little wooden building, where John Slezak had his shoe repair business. In those days, people would have new soles and heels put on their shoes when they wore down. He had a machine which ran a jack shaft and belt which was propelled by an electric motor. He did excellent work. I can remember the smell of new leather when you entered the shop.

The Charlevoix Home Bakery was in the next building. The Fairbanks family ran the business, and they specialized in the finest home baked goods.

The Midget Restaurant was the next business. Later in the forties, Dewitt and June Peters bought the restaurant, and named it The Turk Wing. It was very popular with the summer people, and their turkey dinners and cold turkey sandwiches were superb.

Harold Bedford owned the next building, The Birches Tavern, which is located in the spot where Whitney's is today. It was common on Saturday night, to see a couple of guys slugging it out, on the sidewalk.

Next to the tavern, was Hiram and Selma Pearl's Beauty Shop.

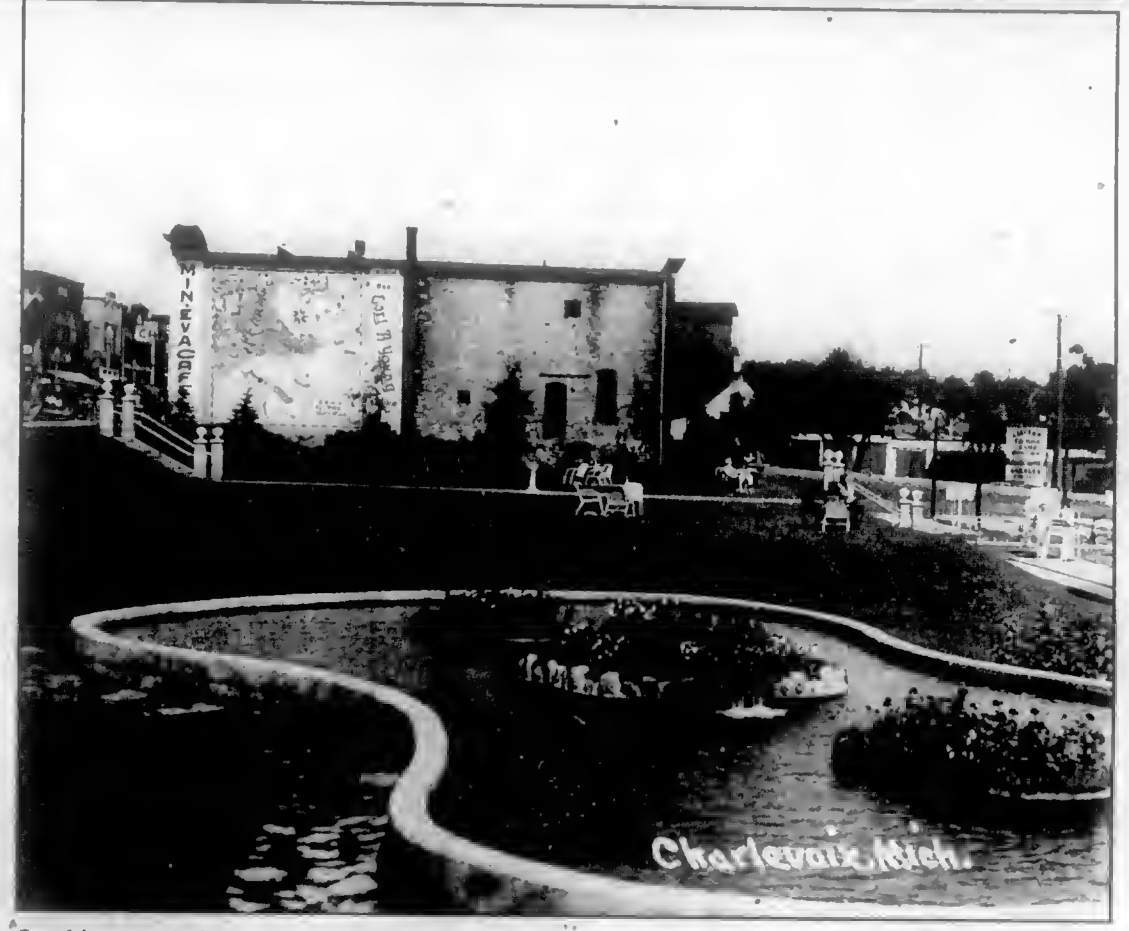
On the corner of Bridge and Clinton, was the Central Drug Store, which has been there for over 100 years. Their old three story wooden building was replaced in the mid-fifties, with the building which is now there. Harley and Mildred Ochs were the owners, and their sons, Bill, and Frank worked in the store. I worked there for about a year and a half after I graduated from high school. They were good people to work for, and I enjoyed my job very much.

Across the street from the drug store, was the Min-Eva Cafe. The building stood alone on the end of the block, with the park in between.

One of Charlevoix's worst fires in history, destroyed it, when they had a bottled gas leak.

At the south end of the block, on the east corner of Bridge and Mason streets, was the Quality Food Store, owned by Milton Block. They featured Monarch finer foods, and had excellent quality meats. They butchered the hogs, cattle, and chickens in the basement, and the meat was brought upstairs by an elevator and cut into the various cuts. The building was built in 1930, and is the same building which is there today.

It is enjoyable to write about these merchants, and they are remembered fondly.



Looking north from where the Odmark Pavilion now stands in East Park, Charlevoix residents of the 1940s could see the Min-Eva Cafe on the left, and Model Home Laundry to the right (Postcard courtesy of Marilyn Boss)

HOW TO KILL A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.

2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.

3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.

4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.

5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.

6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.

7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.

8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.

9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.

10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

'Time to give back'

Charlevoix native leads missionary life in Russia

By B. J. Hetler

Charlevoix native and missionary Janice Spurgeon brings smiles to the faces of Russian orphans. The girls don new clothes purchased with the financial contributions from supporters. Contributions also buy badly needed medicines and medical supplies. (Courtesy photo)

Her husband of 15 years had died recently, and their two children were grown and on their own. She lost her mother when she was 13 years old, and her father died in 1989.

She could have retired from life and hid in the activities of her church, but Charlevoix native, Janice Spurgeon, felt a "strong tugging" to help others and to show the Christian love she knew.

"God had brought me through so much hardship and has blessed my life, and now it is time to give back," Spurgeon said. "I said, 'God, I can go anywhere and do anything you want me to do.'"

Instant guidance and direction were not given to Spurgeon, but she said she started to notice signs.

"Missionaries kept crossing my path," she said. She watched as others ventured out to minister to others. She read about the missionary trips to countries of the former Soviet Union led by Rev. Dave Behling of ARIO Ministries, and she found herself thinking, "Wow, that would be so incredible to do."

Behling was a major influence on Spurgeon.

"Dave Behling was a big part of my spiritual growth. I'd known him through church activities and he had always been a big prayer supporter."

Spurgeon found a Christian agency that helped place people in Russia to lend practical help and to minister. They wanted to send her out.

A member of the United Methodist Church for 40 years, Spurgeon talked with her pastor, Rev. Dale Oostema, who was supportive of her plans.

"I heard of people who went over for several weeks and that seemed like something I could do. But when the agency placed me it was for a 10-month assignment. I said 'I must be crazy.'"

But the next thing she found herself doing was asking her boss at her job for a one-year leave of absence. It was granted.

From then on the ball was rolling. Missionaries often raise much of the funds for their living expenses themselves. So, she began to look at her belongings.

"I looked around my house and I said 'It's just stuff — except for my photographs — it's just stuff.' I had a yard sale and paid off bills."

Spurgeon's daughter and her husband rented her house, funds she needed started to come in, and in September of 1997, she was boarding an airplane for Khabarovsk, a city of 800,000 people in the far eastern part of Russia.

It wasn't long before Spurgeon met up with other missionaries and was settled in and hard at work.

"It felt right, I knew it was where I was supposed to be," she said. "We worked in the schools with the teachers, teaching Christian values and morals. We held Bible studies.

"For 70 years the people were under Communist rule — no religion, or few religions were allowed. Bibles were confiscated. But religion was kept alive by the grandmothers in the homes."

The living conditions of the Russian people was a shock for Spur-

State calls for changes

By B. J. Hetler

Charges against the county's building inspection office by a former employee prompted a state evaluation that resulted in recommendations for changes.

Former employee Beth Inman filed a violation of code complaint on Nov. 30, 1998 with the state against the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection. She claimed violations involving conflicts of interest. Specifically, she claimed that an electrical inspector, James Eisley, was allowed to inspect the work of Eisley Electric.

Inman filed 25 examples of violations with the state and also notified her boss, building official Ken Doty. She said she was subsequently fired from her secretarial job because she reported the violations. The county said Inman was laid off due to restructuring in the building department.

A lawsuit filed by Inman for unlawful termination is pending in Charlevoix County Circuit Court.

Inman's attorney, Grant Parsons of Traverse City, said Inman was happy that some of the problems in the department are cleaned-up. But, she has

Spurgeon dedicated to orphans in Russia

SPURGEON

geon. The housing and other buildings reminded her of the low-income neighborhoods in the United States in the 1950s. Most people live in dreary, stark tenement high-rise housing. In the building where Spurgeon lived the tenants had taken some of their hard-earned money and painted and fixed up the hallways.

Contrary to popular belief, merchandise is readily available for purchase in Russia — for those who can afford it. Russians typically live on less than the equivalent of $100 a month, if they're lucky, Spurgeon said. Teachers make about $50 a month. Doctors and nurses get paid by the government and often go for months without pay.

But Spurgeon found the Russian people warm and generous.

"They would invite us to their homes and feed us a really good meal, not having received a paycheck for two months."

The 10 months went by and Spurgeon returned home to Charlevoix. But not for long.

Spurgeon knew she was going back to Russia and she knew that this time she would break some strong ties to her life here. It wasn't easy, she said, but she sold her house. She returned to her employer and told them she was going to quit and go back to Russia.

Plans were made and then just before she was to leave in October of 1998, she panicked and asked a friend, "What am I doing?"

"You're doing what God wants you to do," the friend answered.

This time Spurgeon began to visit orphanages. In her geographical district 33 orphanages exist, with more than 100 children in each.

"The children — there's a sadness in their eyes," she said. The staff at the orphanages do the best they can. They love the children, but there isn't enough staff to give the individual attention that the children need, Spurgeon said.

One of the infant orphanages she visited housed 25 babies and had three staff members. Girls from a local church volunteer time at the orphanage to sit and hold the babies for awhile.

Spurgeon said her ministry has received a great deal of support from her church and other northern Michigan area churches. The orphanages are in dire need of infrastructure repairs, she said. Toilets often malfunction, showers are needed, walls need plastering, floors are cracking, and the list goes on. But financial support from Spurgeon's home community has made improvements, and supplies badly-needed clothing, medicine and food.

Many times when Spurgeon tells the Russian staff that help will come for the needs, they are skeptical, doubting that anything will change.

"These are people who have been let down a lot," she said. "Let down by Communism, and now by their current country."

When $1,500 was collected for installing a shower and Spurgeon presented it to the orphanage staff, one of them questioned where the money came from. Spurgeon told her that God provided it. The two of them went around about this for some time, because the staff member did not accept Spurgeon's answer. Then the staff member gave up.

"I'm an atheist," she declared, "but I'm thanking your God."

Spurgeon stayed for nine months in her work with the orphanages. She is home in Charlevoix now for a sabbatical and to raise funds. Her heart is with the orphans in Russia.

"Orphanages are increasing in Russia because of the economy, parents can't afford to keep their children, and because of alcoholism and crime."

Spurgeon, now a part of AIRO Ministries, returns to Russia on Nov. 3. She will minister to the orphanages for one year in Ufa, a city of about one million in the western part of Russia. A Russian missionary couple have asked her to start an orphanage ministry with them.

Spurgeon keeps in touch with her home town via e-mail. She writes to supporters to update them on the progress made because of the contributions. She may be reached by telephone at 547-1975, or by e-mail at houghton@unnet.com.

Spurgeon's life has taken extraordinary turns within the last several years. Her ministry still feels right and when she thinks back to her decision to help others, she remembers the words out of the Bible that influenced her:

"Love your neighbor as yourself," Spurgeon said. "There's lots in that scripture."

State probe results in changes at county building department some reservations because the state investigation didn't address the more serious charges.

STATE

A performance evaluation of the building inspection office by the state's Bureau of Construction Codes included an investigation into Inman's claims. The findings on that issue are included in the bureau's evaluation report.

The report states that as a result of Inman's allegations, the state conducted detailed interviews and reviewed related files. It determined that the majority of the allegations were unfounded, but not all.

The report went on to say that the county admitted that Eisley was allowed to inspect the work of Eisley Electric, a violation of Act 54 of 1986. The report concluded that the county and Eisley now understand the violation, and have arranged for Eisley Electric inspections to be performed by another county inspector.

The state has ordered the county to develop a conflict of interest policy and submit it to the Bureau of Construction Codes within 30 days of Sept. 1. It has not yet been determined whether the county has complied with this order.

Other findings and recommendations are:

- The county does not provide staff with a copy of the issued permit or list of equipment and must begin to do so.
- Two members of the building inspection department's Construction Board of Appeals also served as county commissioners. The bureau considers this a conflict of interest and ordered the county to replace these members. The county has replaced commissioners James Behling and Carl Price with Stephen Wiseman and Barry Wood.
- The bureau found the county's on-site inspections to be thorough, but noted that in some cases violations were provided verbally and not recorded in the file. Inspectors did not always cite code sections when issuing written violation notices. The county must correct this.
- The bureau determined that the county is unable to make approximately 60 percent of final inspections. The county shall develop a plan to address follow-up on active permits. The bureau stated that it may be necessary to review staffing levels.

The county is required to respond to the state bureau in writing by Dec. 29.

The bureau concluded its performance evaluation by stating:

"Based on the bureau's review, staff within the County were found to be very dedicated and knowledgeable employees. . . . There were numerous improvements in administration and enforcement of the code within the County since the previous performance evaluation in the early 90s."

Schools: Work has just begun

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix School District residents have every right to celebrate and be proud of last week's election.

Although approved by a slim 100-vote margin, the schools can now go ahead with much-needed improvements to its educational facilities.

After losing in 1996, partially over the school board's waffling on the high school site location, this time the board took bold steps and met the issue head-on.

Part of the new energy came from four new school board members, a new president and school superintendent who worked hard with a citizens' committee since last spring to identify and communicate about the needed school facilities.

The result was approval of an $18.825 million bond issue that calls for 2.84 mills over a 20-year term.

Plans presently call for constructing a new high school on property purchased along Marion Center Road, while remodeling the current high school into a middle and upper elementary school and remodeling and adding on to the elementary school.

We still encourage the school board to consider other sites in Charlevoix before embarking on the 74 acres on Marion Center Road between Clark and Veenstra roads.

We think the community would be better served by keeping its high school in town. The school board might even consider moving the football field to the Marion Road property and using the present football field for school construction.

Besides the actual victory, we thought another good note was the high voter turnout, with more than 40 percent of the 7,042 registers participating in the election.

There's a lot of work ahead and we wish the school district our best.

Diversity crucial to nature

By Roger Knutson

Ear to the ground

"Diversity, thy name is wonderful."

With the sugar maple trees turning all shades of yellow, orange and red around us it is precisely the season to consider how important variety or diversity is in the natural world. If you watch maple trees at all you probably have a favorite one, which turns an especially appealing color or turns a bit earlier than others. What you are really seeing is an expression of the natural diversity to be found among maple trees. Not only are they not all alike, they are as different from one another as we humans are. With the exception of some high-tech, standard, grafted trees that can be as alike as identical twins, most of the trees and other plants that get along in the world without our help differ remarkably from one another. Each fall, and always before any others in the neighborhood, that one maple tree on the corner is just exactly that same shade of red, while the one next to it doesn't show any real color for another two weeks. The older maple trees along our streets are different from one another in dozens of ways other than color of fall leaves; it's just easier to see the differences in color. Careful examination of the specific shapes of leaves or arrangement of branches would show the same sort of dramatic differences between one maple tree and the next.

Wouldn't it be better if the maples were all alike? Maybe for us, if we would like an avenue of identical deep crimson trees all at the same time, but it would be a problem for the maple trees. Any group of plants or animals must meet during its life a variety of problems: weather variation, drought, late freezes or early frost, insect plagues or pathogenic fungi living on their roots. Were all our maples just the same, one bad season, or one disease-producing fungus would find all of them in dire straits. With increased diversity most of the trees are likely to survive any potential disaster, while only a few are killed or severely harmed.

We are so much accustomed to the plants we manipulate, like garden varieties, being almost absolutely uniform, that we are likely to forget the presence of genetic diversity in wild plants which makes their survival possible. At this point it is only necessary to mention that we humans share much in common with other sorts of both plant and animal organisms, including the importance of diversity. A large part of our brain is devoted specifically to recognizing differences between persons, which speaks to how important diversity has been in human evolutionary history. We might imagine that if we were all the same and all superior in some way, the world would be a better place. But we, like the maple trees, benefit enormously from the variety of human characteristics and capabilities. Genetic diversity, whether in maple trees or humans, is devoutly to be wished.

Community corrections program contract awarded

By B. J. Hetler

A one-year $120,000 contract for administering the county's community corrections program was awarded to CHIP Counseling.

County commissioners approved the action last week following assurances by CHIP acting director, Pat Nester, that the counseling center is complying with state requirements.

The community corrections program is a state-funded program under Public Act 511. It's purpose is to relieve prison and jail overcrowding by providing methods where non-violent criminals serve their time outside of customary confinement. Methods include counseling and devices such as electronic monitors.

CHIP Counseling was awarded the contract to administer the program in prior years, but commissioner Don Smith and others had some concerns they wanted addressed.

Specifically, a $27,000 budget allocation to provide intensive outpatient services to 60 qualifying felon and misdemeanant offenders has served only half that number for the last two years.

Nester told the commissioners that $13,500 not needed for the intensive outpatient services allocation is now allocated to case management. He assured commissioners that state requirements are being met.

Smith had asked Murray Kilgour, the program administrator at CHIP at the time, to meet with the commissioners to discuss the contract budget, but had not received a response. Kilgour resigned from his position on September 26. Nester, who is now with Munson Medical Center, has stepped in as acting director.

"CHIP handling the program is the lowest cost to the counties," Nester said. "I think the program is working extremely well."

Commissioner Smith said that it was helpful that Nester reported to the commissioners. He said he was satisfied for now, but will continue to ask questions to determine the best vehicle for administering the corrections program. He will meet with the local community corrections board soon.

"I still believe community corrections should be within the sheriff's department or the courts," Smith said.

COMMUNITY

Charlevoix Middle School students have been raking lawns for senior citizens living near the school. (Courtesy photo)

Middle school students lend a hand to seniors

Some Senior citizens living near Charlevoix Middle School have gotten a helping hand this fall from students.

Some students from the middle school, participating in an after-school program known as the "Instead Club" have been making stops at seniors' houses near the school to rake fallen leaves off the lawns.

Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency received a grant from Michigan Abstinence Partnership to promote after-school activities for students who want to volunteer their time and energy to their community.

The agency determined a need for such a program after finding out the results of a questionnaire completed by middle school students. The results were that only 20 percent felt valued by adults in their community, 24 percent felt that they were given useful roles in their community, and 50 percent said they volunteered in the community.

These are three important developmental assets which are important for youth to have, the agency stated in press release.

Members of the club purchased their own rakes from Charlevoix Ace Hardware at a significant discount, and the students have been kept busy raking lawns.

In fact, club members are booked solid for the remainder of the fall.

Senior Center welcomes new director, new cook

A new director who says age makes no difference in how she looks at people, and a new cook who wants more people to take advantage of the meals "because they're so good," are now a part of the Charlevoix Senior Center.

Ginnie Schairbaum brings extensive experience in working with people to her new job as director. She is youth director at the First Congregational United Church of Christ, worked as a school counselor and as a Welcome Wagon representative.

Schairbaum is familiar with the community process and with running programs. She has worked with people in a variety of ways.

"I don't see seniors as a separate population," Schairbaum said. "The issue is when people get dependent on agencies and others to live, it's not age that makes any difference."

Debbie Livingston was recruited for the cook's position by the retiring cook, Diane Celaschi. She works about 20 hours a week, preparing about 50 lunches for the center and for delivery to homes. She is assisted by volunteers who also help with the center's monthly fund-raising community meals.

Livingston said she is happy with her new job.

St. Mary benefit

Matthew Kanine (left) and Tyler Haske were among the fifth-grade students at St. Mary's School who were hard at work last week creating Christmas cards. The cards will be part of the annual Dinner Dance Auction from 4:30 p.m.-midnight on Saturday, Oct. 30, at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Charlevoix. The theme of the annual Northern Lights Celebration is "New York, New York." Other items up for auction are a snowmobile, quilt, computer, golf clubs, and a time-share opportunity. Attendees must be at the dance to purchase raffle tickets for the two big prizes — a trip to New York City and a three-quarter karat diamond pendant. The event proceeds help with school operations. For tickets and information, call 547-9441 or 547-2794. (Photo by B.J. Hetler)

Creative dance classes offered for children

Nearly every child will jump at the chance to dance. Even shy children will forget their inhibitions when given an opportunity to feel the music through dance.

A professional dance educator, Dorothy Eisenstein, is coming to Charlevoix Elementary School to conduct eight-week sessions in creative dance for children. The first session begins on Tuesday, Oct. 26. Classes will be held in the gymnasium.

Creative dance gives children the opportunity to develop movement skills, while gaining self-confidence, Eisenstein said. Classes emphasize motor skills, basic body concepts, kinesthetic understandings, and interpersonal relationships in a child-centered environment. Children will gain rhythmic skills through the interplay of music and movement.

Dorothy Eisenstein teaches dance at Northwestern Michigan College. She holds a Master of Arts in movement and dance from Wesleyan University. She has taught creative dance for the Wolf Trap Institute for Early Learning through the Arts, Young Audiences of Michigan, and University Liggett School.

Creative dance will be taught for age groups three-and-a-half through five, six-seven, and eight-12. The class fees are $30, $35 and $40.

For more information and to pre-register call Sue Goss, elementary school enrichment coordinator, at 547-9803.

CHURCH EVENTS IN BRIEF

Cathedral adult series addresses morality

Fr. Anthony Kosnik, from the Archdiocese of Detroit, will present the Oct. 22 adult session at St. Mary Cathedral. Fr. Kosnik is director of the Pastoral Ministry Department and professor of Pastoral Studies at Marygrove College. He is a moral theologian and a noted author.

Fr. Kosnik will reflect with participants on the characteristics of Christian morality and how these, if lived out, can make a profound difference in our attitudes, beliefs and actions. The world we live in presents us with daily challenges regarding our moral decisions. These challenges range from the personal decision-making variety to the global questions of war and economics.

The challenge for each of us is to make a difference in this world. Making moral decisions is a lifelong challenge, and each of us must accept the responsibility of searching for the truth.

As the world embraces a new millennium we must prepare for ever-increasing change. With the advancement of technology, cultural changes and the pluralism of our life styles, decision-making in the future will be more complex. Bringing our Christian values to the world in which we live and work is not only our privilege, but also our responsibility.

Fr. Kosnik will explore the characteristics Christian-Catholic morality needed to help us make a difference in the 21st century.

The session begins at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 22, in the parish hall of St. Mary Cathedral.

Senior center welcomes newcomers

"I love it, it's great. The people are great — there's so many personalities. We laugh a lot. I go home with sore ribs from laughing."

The Charlevoix Senior Center is an active center with more than 175 members. Lunches are served during the week, a lending library is available, computer classes are popular, and exercise programs are offered.

"It's surprising how many things are going on here," Schairbaum said.

Much of the activity, such as garage sales, bake sales, and raffles is to raise funds for the center's operational costs. In addition, the members are working to raise funds to remodel the downstairs into a computer room.

Schairbaum prepares grant requests as part of her job as director. She hopes to find some funding so that members have more time for social activities, rather than fund-raising activities. The Senior Center is self-supporting.

"A big concern is finances," Schairbaum said. "I don't want to see people spending all of their time working on fund-raising, but to enjoy the center."

Help available for domestic abuse victims

Domestic abuse can hurt anyone in our community and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan offers help.

October is National Domestic Violence Awareness Month. It is a time to remember survivors of abusive relationships and those who have been killed by their partners, stated Sheri Buick and Cindy Yamuni of the Women's Resource Center.

It is also time to thank those who have worked hard in the fight to end domestic violence.

The center defines domestic violence as a pattern of controlling behaviors carried out by one person in an intimate relationship to maintain power and control over the other.

A batterer often uses more than physical force to obtain power and control over the partner. Tactics of abuse may include emotional abuse, such as name calling, humiliating, and playing mind games. A batterer may isolate the partner, may use looks or gestures to intimidate, use outright threats and control the finances.

Buick and Yamuni say women who stay in abusive relationships do so for a number of reasons, such as fear of losing custody of their children, economic dependence, lack of housing and job skills, and fear of retaliation.

The Women's Resource Center urges victims to call its Domestic Abuse Program. The program provides services free of charge to people in Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim, Cheboygan and Otsego counties.

Services include a 24-hour crisis and information line, counseling, emergency transportation, shelter, support groups, referrals to community resources and advocacy.

Call the Women's Resource Center at 347-0082 or 1-800-275-1995.

Applefest weekend draws thousands

By B. J. Hetler

The 20th Annual Applefest held in East Park was enjoyed by residents and visitors alike.

This year's event, held on Oct. 8-10, started off on Friday afternoon with a hard rain. Strong winds had apple-sellers scrambling to secure their booths and wait on customers at the same time.

But by late morning on Saturday, the crowds were greeted by sunshine and warm temperatures. Some people were lugging bushels of apples to their cars, while others were buying up pies, breads, produce and apple cider.

Charlevoix's Friske Orchards manned a booth at Applefest for the 16th year. Owner Richard Friske said this year's event was a big success in sales.

"It was unbelievable," Friske said. "It was tremendously good. Sales were up almost 50 percent over last year." Sales increase every year, but Friske usually sees a 10 to 15 percent increase.

Hot, fried donuts made on-the-spot were a big hit, Friske said. About 400 dozen were sold. The orchard also sold pies, apple dumplings, apple butter, cider, and other items. At times, Friske had 25 people working at the booth.

"It's a massive effort," Friske said. "We go all out."

Produce growers kept busy as customers lined up to buy squash, tomatoes, peppers and other fresh vegetables.

Applefest craft and food booths filled the park. Entertainment was provided and children enjoyed a petting farm in the park. Cedar Valley Farms escorted guests around town in its horse-drawn carriage.

More than 25 varieties of apples were offered at Applefest, including Gala, Delicious, McIntosh, Jonathan, Northern Spy and Paula Red.

John King of King Orchards of Central Lake brought about 500 bushels of apples to the Applefest in East Park. Thousands of people attended the event which also offered craft booths and entertainment. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

A 'broach fest'

By A. Nether Mouse

Last week's race can only be described as a "broach fest" (according to Webster: to veer or yaw dangerously so as to lie broadside to the waves). At last count, a total of seven people from three different J-22's were baptized by total submersion in Lake Charlevoix's frigid October waters.

Despite gale-force winds, almost every J-22 flew a spinnaker. Swine Flew was first to finish, with Reckless only 12 seconds behind. Superfluous and Paleface Lite shared a photo finish just 2 minutes later, with only 8 seconds between them. This is truly remarkable, since Paleface Lite's skipper went overboard during one of their three broaches that evening. H.S. Moisture Missile and Habanero finished next, with nary a mishap, followed by Thunderstruck, whose entire crew ended up in the water. High Maintenance lost its skipper and a crewman during a broach. Her crew was able to regain the boat, but too late to save their skipper, who was later rescued by Cygnus.

As a reward for heroic efforts, Cygnus finished first in the P-26 fleet. A crew member from Blasen III was taken to the hospital after his leg was crushed during a collision between Jesse and Blasen III.

In Spinnaker A, crew members from Gotcha! reported gusts up to 35 knots. Gotcha! finished ahead of Kamikaze.

Spinnaker B was a race to the finish, with J Hawk finishing just a minute and a half ahead of M3.

Though in her own fleet, Booma finished ahead of the rest of the big boat.

At the race's conclusion, two J-24's ran aground and were pulled off shore by the committee boat. No salvage fees were assessed by Kuhn Salvage Corp.

The final Fall Series standings using the one race drop allowed for the Series:

J-22 -First Date 8, Swine Flew 14, Superfluous 17, Reckless 18, Moisture Missile 23, High Maintenance 26, Paleface Lite 27, Thunderstruck 39, Gecko 41, Habanero 41, Jubilees 52, Crazy Horse 58.

JAM 195- Flash 6, Bald Eagle 9, Hog-tide 19.

JAM 198- Booma 5, Our Thyme 14, Apothecary 18, Cheemaun 28, High C 28.

A Fleet Kamikaze 6, Gotcha! 8, Mint Julep 18.

B Fleet Babe 7, J Hawk 10, M 3 13.

C Fleet Jesse 7, Blasen 8, Cygnus 15, Original Sin 20, Sandpiper 26.

The J-22's will "round out" the fall series by racing in Round Lake every Sunday afternoon. In Round Lake, sailing is a full-contact sport. Come watch us play!

Double win for Charlevoix cross country runners

Freshman Liz Ulrich and sophomore Zach Hopkins won their respective races in leading Charlevoix to a sweep of an Oct. 12 Lake Michigan Conference cross country meet with Boyne City.

The Charlevoix boys took four of the top five places en route to a 19-44 victory. The Rayder girls took three of the top five spots in claiming a 24-33 victory.

Hopkins won the boys' race in 17 minutes, 4 seconds, while teammate Josh Popenhagen was third in 17:26. Charlevoix's Gordie Selph was fourth in 18:03, and Jerred Hodge was fifth in 18:33. Boyne's Shawn Weisler was second in 17:11.

Ulrich won the girls' race in 20:29. Boyne City's Jackie Cyr was second (20:38) and Jane Steiber third (20:52). Charlevoix's Laura Schairbaum (21:09) and Winter Kyvik (21:42) were fourth and fifth, respectively.

The Rayders were scheduled to run in the Lake Michigan Conference at East Jordan on Tuesday, Oct. 19, then travel to Elk Rapids on Saturday, Oct. 23, before participating in the Gaylord Invitational on Tuesday, Oct. 26.

The Charlevoix High School junior varsity girls' basketball team has equaled its varsity counterparts of late, winning three straight.

The Rayders have topped Kalkaska, 52-12; Traverse City St. Francis, 40-28; and Mancelona, 63-22; to run their record to 8-5 overall. They stand 5-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Against Mancelona, Chelsea Newcomb scored 24 points to lead Charlevoix, while Kelly Zimmerman had 15 points and eight rebounds, Krista Swenor had 10 points, and Kelly Ward pulled down 12 boards.

Rayders head into season finale

'The Charlevoix kids hung right in there. They came right after us.'

By Andy Sneddon

Coach Dave Bricker and his Boyne City football team walked out of Kipke Field on Friday night with a 28-14 victory over Charlevoix.

Yet it was anything but easy and the Ramblers knew they were in a football game.

"The Charlevoix kids hung right in there," Bricker said. "They came right after us. It was closer than what the final score would indicate. It was a good football game to watch."

Bricker added that Charlevoix coach Todd Klinger "had his kids ready to play. Charlevoix gets up to play Boyne City."

The Ramblers, who improved to 3-5 overall and 3-2 in the Lake Michigan Conference, rushed for 288 yards and got some timely second-half defensive stops in notching the victory.

Charlevoix dropped to 1-7 overall, 1-5 in the league. The Rayders close the season on Friday, Oct. 22 at Suttons Bay in a non-league game. Suttons Bay, 1-7, is coming off its first win of the season, 20-16, over Evart.

"We've watched film on them, they're a team that likes to put the ball in the air," Klinger said. "We're going to have to get ready for that.

"It's two teams coming to play for pride. Whoever wants it more is going to win the game."

The Rayders collected a very respectable 279 yards in total offense against Boyne City, but found themselves in a 28-8 fourth-quarter deficit.

Boyne took an 8-0 lead when Josh Bush returned a punt 55 yards for a touchdown and ran in the two-point conversion in the first quarter.

The Rayders tied it when Jeremiah Teuscher and Ben Coen hooked up on a 65-yard touchdown pass play and Ryan Leitner ran for the conversion.

Teuscher, a junior starting his second game at quarterback, completed nine of 17 passes for 177 yards on the night. Coen, another junior, was Charlevoix's top receiver with 102 yards on four receptions.

Teuscher replaced injured starter Adam Wood going in to the previous week's victory over Elk Rapids.

"He's played very well," Klinger said of Teuscher. "He's exceeded the expectations that I've had for him."

Wood, who is out for the season, joined an ever-growing list of Rayders. Injuries have been a sharp thorn in Charlevoix's side all fall long.

"We've been hit by the injury bug," Klinger said. "We've lost three kids that have missed six games and now we've lost Adam for three games. These were all kids that were key starters and we've had other kids miss games because of injuries.

"In my eight years (of coaching), this has been the most injuries that we've had."

Still, Klinger added, "We've had kids that have stepped in and done an admirable job."

Boyne City broke the 8-8 tie with the Rayders when Jason Grace scored on a 12-yard run just before halftime. Grace scored his second TD, this one a 5-yard run, and Bush added the conversion run to make it 22-8, Boyne, in the third quarter. Bush scored on a quarterback sneak in the fourth quarter to put the Rayders even farther in the hole, 28-8.

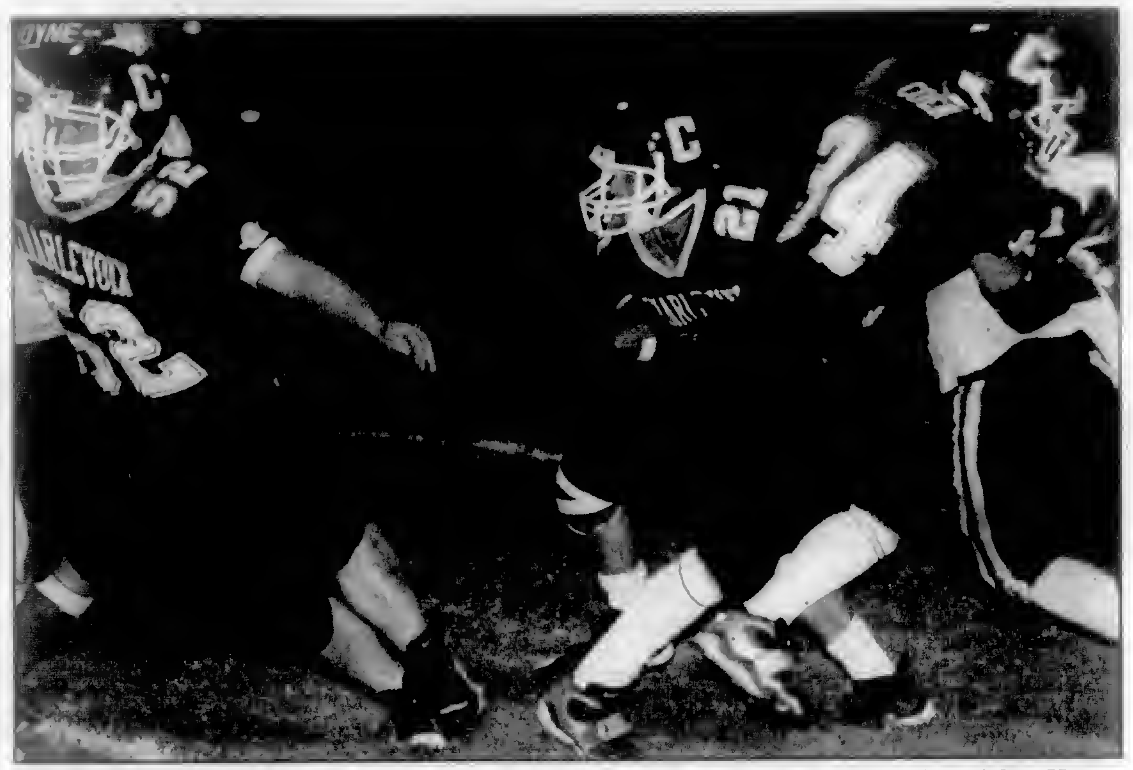
Teuscher tossed a 35-yard TD pass to Ryan Leitner to pull the Rayders to within 28-14 in the fourth quarter.

The Rayders' ensuing onside kick was covered by Boyne.

Leitner finished with 60 yards on 19 carries, bringing his season total to more than 700 yards.

Shay Hutchison made four solo tackles and nine assists to lead the Rayder defense. Nick Schwein had 11 assists, and Matt Horon had one solo tackle and nine assists.

Hutchison and Horon, along with Coen and Troy Smith, lead the Charlevoix defense into the Rayders' season finale at Suttons Bay. Hutchison is one of nine Rayder seniors playing their final football game in a Charlevoix uniform.



Charlevoix tailback Ryan Leitner (21) heads through a hole created by blockers Matt Horon (52) and Ben Coen (34) Friday in the Rayders' 28-14 loss to Boyne City at Kipke Field. (Photo courtesy Petoskey News-Review)

Three straight for Rayder girls

Opposition gets tougher with Gaylord, Harbor next

By Andy Sneddon

First-year Charlevoix High School girls' basketball coach Jason Otter is as pleased as anybody that the Rayders have pieced together a three-game win streak.

Yet Otter is well aware that the hill gets steeper this week as the quality of opposition increases.

"We're playing better now than we were five weeks ago," Otter said Monday. "I knew we were going to take some hits early. I'm liking our attitude. The girls come out and get after it."

The Rayders are 5-8 overall, 2-4 (fifth) in the seven-team Lake Michigan Conference. The winning streak started with a 49-46 victory at Traverse City St. Francis, and picked up steam with a 73-37 home win over Kalkaska, and an 83-26 non-league victory over Mancelona.

St. Francis, Kalkaska and Mancelona are a combined 10-23 on the season. The Rayders played a tough Elk Rapids (8-4 overall, 5-1 Lake Michigan) team in a league game Tuesday night, play host to Class A Gaylord (4-7) on Saturday, Oct. 23, then entertain conference heavyweight Harbor Springs (9-2) on Oct. 26. The Rams have won or shared three straight league titles and entered this week's action riding a league win streak of 30-plus games.

"This is what we want," Otter said. "Harbor, they've got a great player (Christi Shibata). Elk Rapids is pretty solid. We lost to them by three (points) without two starters the last time we played them.

"If we lose we lose, but we're playing the good teams. This is like our test. We just want to get to that next level."

A key to the Rayder mid-season surge is obvious — experience.

"I think the girls are starting to feel their roles," Otter said. "I think it's our defense and our press — a better understanding of it.

"Defensively, we've done alright. I think we could pick it up a little bit more. We're getting there."

Leslie Hoffman and Kerstin Larsen have emerged as a potent one-two scoring punch for the Rayders. Hoffman, a sharpshooting junior guard, has scored 78 points in the Rayders' past four games, and has hit 10 3-pointers in that span. Larsen, a talented and versatile senior who can play any of the five positions, scored a combined 46 points in the victories over Kalkaska and Mancelona.

Against the Ironmen, Charlevoix broke to a 32-4 lead after one quarter and never looked back as Hoffman finished with 24 points and Larsen added 20. Larsen turned in another excellent all-around game with eight rebounds and seven steals, while Hoffman made six steals.

Megan Vogel, a 5-foot-8 junior forward, added 12 points and grabbed nine rebounds. Yet it was — and continues to be — defense where Vogel has impressed Otter.

"She's picked it up defensively," Otter said of Vogel, adding that Vogel's quickness is a key attribute to her success in matching up with taller players.

"She gives other team's forwards some trouble. She's really matured as a player and developed an understanding of what it means to go out and play hard."

Another bright spot is sophomore point guard Jennifer McClellan, who, like many of her teammates, is growing into Otter's system.

"Her assists have gone down a little bit, but I think she's taking better care of the basketball," he said. "I think that's helped us."

Despite the marked improvement in their record, the Rayders still have some work ahead, Otter said.

"Offensively, we run so much, if it's there, we want to run (but) at times we start running and taking bad shots," he said. "There's times where we need to pull it back and get into (a set offense).

"I stress to the girls always being aggressive. It's a fine line sometimes."

The Rayders are not mathematically eliminated from the league race, but the championship is almost out of the question. Still, they can be a factor in that they play each of the league's teams again in the second half of the season, beginning Tuesday with Elk Rapids.

But with a young and improving team, Otter has the ship pointed squarely toward the post season.

"We will be ready by districts," he said.

Charlevoix 21st at state golf tourney

> "My team had come from nowhere. They weren't powerful coming into the beginning of the year. They worked really, really hard and just stayed with it day in, day out and slowly inched their way. They played better and better and better."
> — Jim Glynn
> Charlevoix golf coach

EAST LANSING — To the uninitiated, Charlevoix's 21st-place finish in the Division III state golf tournament last weekend may seem a tad disappointing.

Guess again.

Coach Jim Glynn's team entered the 1999 season as a Lake Michigan Conference darkhorse. Yet the Rayders managed second-place finishes in both the league and regional tournaments and their berth in the state tourney came as a very pleasant surprise.

"My team had come from nowhere," Glynn said. "They weren't powerful coming into the beginning of the year. They worked really, really hard and just stayed with it day in, day out and slowly inched their way. They played better and better and better."

Grosse Isle won the state tournament with a two-day total of 638 on Michigan State University's Forest Akers East Course, which played to about 6,200 yards and par 72.

The Rayders shot 367, too high to make the cut for round two, on the opening day of the tournament. Though the Rayders did not make it to the second day, they learned plenty of lessons — lessons that Glynn said will pay off next year when four of the five Rayders who went to the state tournament return.

"We stayed over and watched them the second day to give them the experience of seeing that," he said. "I think that was important that they got together as a team and said 'How do we go about making it down here again? What are our goals?'

"They took time to reflect and work things out as a team, and that was very important. They were upset, but at the same time, they were talking about next year."

Charlevoix's scores: Craig Siwarga, 89; David Shearer, 90; Dennis Avery, 93; Allen Brooks, 95; and Jon Sell, 96.

Sell, who tied two school records this season, is the lone senior among that group. This season, Sell shot 37 on the Rayders' home course, Belvedere, to tie the school record set by Keith Grunch in 1997. His 35 at Harbor Pointe tied the school all-course record set in 1975 by Mike Custer and tied in 1990 by Luke LaBlance.

Shearer, a freshman, emerged as the Rayders' top player and recorded an 18-hole round of 76 — an outstanding score at Belvedere. He averaged a team-best 41.8 per nine-hole round on the season.

"Shearer, as a freshman, he held his own and I was real proud of him," Glynn said. "He'll have a bright future as a golfer."

Siwarga, a junior, did not golf for a month heading into the season in August because of an injury.

"He ended up my No. 3 (player)," Glynn said. "At the end of the year, he was playing really, really well."

Shearer, Sell and Siwarga each were named to the all-conference team. Sell averaged 43.8 per nine-hole round, while Siwarga averaged 44.0.

Brooks, a sophomore left-hander, also "came on at the end of the season," Glynn said, playing a key role in Charlevoix's runner-up finishes in both the league and regional tournaments.

Avery, another sophomore, started fast but faded a bit as the year

Crunch time

Rayder soccer team seeks league, district crowns

By Andy Sneddon

They all count big-time from here on out for the Charlevoix High School soccer team.

The Rayders, 10-4 after a 2-1 victory a week ago over Houghton Lake, have four matches in a seven-day stretch that could make or break their season.

"The talent is there, the experience is there," coach Josh Block said. "We need to have the mental focus and the intensity."

Charlevoix's stretch of money matches began on Tuesday with a Northern Michigan Soccer League battle at McBain Northern Michigan Christian. A victory in that match — both teams are in the league's North Division — puts the Rayders in the conference championship match on Saturday, Oct. 23 against South Division winner Roscommon, Block said.

On top of that, the Rayders face Northern Michigan power Elk Rapids — a measuring-stick match for virtually any high school soccer

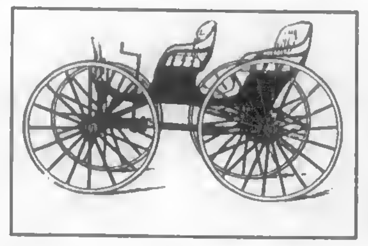
SCRAPBOOK

'Electric road wagon' traveled 12 mph for up to nine hours

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds



This drawing depicts Robert Elston's four-passenger carriage powered by a four horsepower engine. It appeared in the publication "American Cars 1805-1942." (Courtesy Geoffrey Reynolds)

"Mr. R.W. Elston, of this place, has perfected an electric wagon that has in it the elements of revolution in road transit," read the headline of the March 14, 1895 issue of the Charlevoix Sentinel. Even though the town did not become the first "motor city" its first and only car inventor did offer potential as far back as 1895.

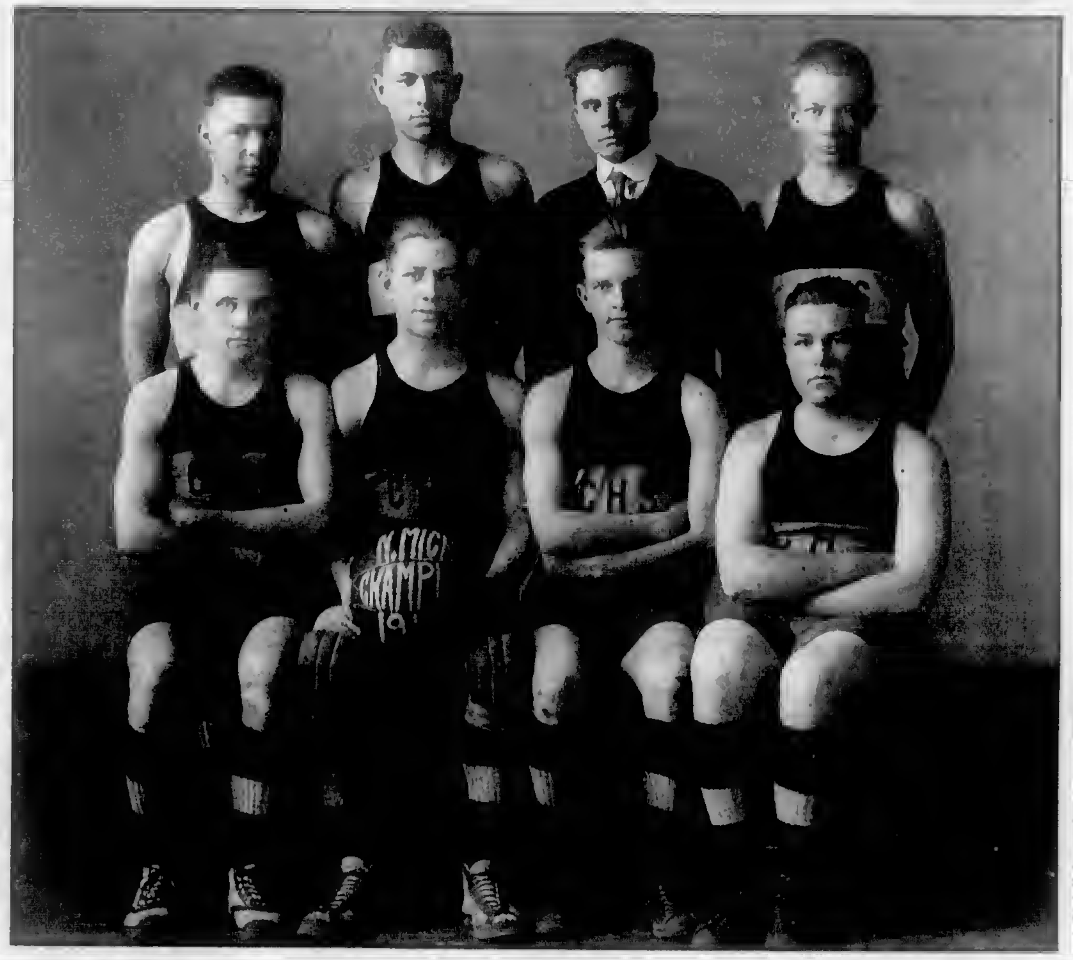
Robert W. Elston's 1,000 pound Electric Road Wagon was introduced to the public for the first time in the above story, after two years of toil in his second story workshop in the upper portion of his home. Shaped much like an ordinary, horse-drawn wagon of the time, this model contained an electric motor said to be capable of traveling at 12 mph for at least nine hours. It was equipped with a crank-style wheel for steering which was assisted by cam-released rear wheels, allowing one to be driven by the motor and the other rotating freely. Enough room was available for the driver and three passengers.

In July of that year Elston ventured to Racine, Wisconsin to try out a new type of power plant in his road wagon. This was an attempt to replace the heavy, sluggish, electric motor with something faster, but necessarily more reliable. After a successful demonstration he ordered a 4 h.p. Kane-Pennington hot air motor (gasoline fueled) that boosted the wagon's top speed to 25 m.p.h. or so claimed in his 1895 U.S. Patent Office application.

Much of this frantic motor changing was in preparation for an internationally billed road rally that was to be run on November 2nd between Milwaukee and Chicago. It was considered a major event and was sponsored by the Chicago Times-Herald as automobile inventors strove to prove who had the fastest and most durable vehicle for consumers. It was said that the car was photographed for the race, but no evidence survives of the photograph, the car, or that he ever physically entered the race. Automobile historians, such as Charlevoix resorter Welland Sprague, provided information that stated that the car was not finished in time for the race because it could not travel any distance farther than around the block without some sort of mechanical failure.

Post race news articles advertised its presence at the J.S. Baker & Company's store and touted its practicality for the economizing, everyday consumer and their transportation needs "that will long be heard from." Neither the race nor the automobile were ever mentioned again.

After retiring from automobile inventing Elston dabbled in automotive differentials, but little is known of these inventions either. During the summer and fall of 1898, Elston and his wife, Louise, built the hotel known as the Elston House on the corner of Antrim and Bridge streets (now the site of Oleson's Supermarket). After his death, about 1902, Louise sold the hotel and built another, but smaller, hotel of the same name on West Dixon Avenue equipped with a gift shop.



Recalling our champs

This photograph of a 1920 championship basketball team from Charlevoix High School was found by Ken Smith among some things that his mother had given to him.

The man seated third from left is Smith's grandfather, Martin "Fish" Halverson, who grew up in Charlevoix. Halverson died in 1967. His daughter is Kay Heise of Charlevoix.

Smith lives in Grand Blanc and vacations in Charlevoix. He is a nephew of Kay's and a cousin to Roger Knutson.

The photograph has been graciously loaned to the Courier so that readers will have an opportunity to identify the other players on the team.

If you are able to identify any of the players, please call the Courier at 547-6558.

program — at Kipke Field on Wednesday, Oct. 20, and begin play in a Division IV District Tournament at Harbor Springs on Tuesday, Oct. 26.

The Rayders, who have never won a district championship, open the tournament against the Rams.

Charlevoix defeated the Rams 4-1 at Kipke Field early this season, then, three weeks ago, Harbor beat the Rayders in overtime at Black Forest Hall, Harbor's home field and the site of the district tourney.

"Hopefully that loss will serve us to really play them well this time," Block said.

Block added that the Rayders are hungry for the district title which has eluded them in the recent past.

"The last two years, we should have won district championships," Block said. "An error one way or the other has cost us the title. Hopefully now with a lot of seniors we're going to do real well and play aggressively.

"I know that we absolutely have the talent to do well this year in the (tournament). The timing's right. This year, not only are the districts (a goal), but also regionals are within our reach."

The root of Block's concern rests in the Rayders' inconsistency. He said the team, which starts seven seniors, can play dominating soccer at times.

"Do we have the potential of winning (the district) and going very far? Absolutely," he said. "Have we proven consistently that we can? No."

Thomas Barczynski and Ryan Vogelheim scored for Charlevoix in the victory over Houghton Lake, which is 12-2.

"We had just been getting pounded defensively by a number of teams, so it was really great to play a good game on defense against a good team," Block said, adding that Andy Granath, Tick Bakker, Zach Dennis, Tony Shearer and Jon Boss played well on defense.

Chris Tilley earned the victory in goal.

went on. Still, Glynn said, he expects big things from Avery next season.

"He's a gutsy kid and a natural athlete," Glynn said. "He'll come back and do well."

Junior Chris Smith is also expected to return next season, meaning the Rayders expect to have five of their top six players coming back. Another player who may contribute is Nick Cole, who played JV this year.

"That's a real plus," Glynn said. "I'm real optimistic about next year."

Glynn, who said he welcomes any athlete — male or female — to the team, is also high on sophomore Billy Foster and freshman Kreg Wager.

The Rayders practice and play their home matches at Belvedere.

"Belvedere has been real gracious in letting us play there and the pros there, Steve Braun and Marty Joy, have just been super in helping the kids," Glynn said, adding thanks to Tom Dorsek of the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course. "He's contributed greatly to grooming the kids."

Glynn also expressed gratitude to the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program.

"All my kids have come through the program," he said. "Enough can't be said about their commitment to junior golf."

State accepts policy

By B. J. Hetler

The County of Charlevoix Department of Building Inspection has complied with the state's request for a conflict of interest policy, and it is accepted by the Bureau of Construction Codes.

A letter was received by the bureau on Sept. 30, Henry Green of the bureau said. In the letter, building inspection department official, Ken Doty, wrote that the building inspection departments of Charlevoix and Antrim counties have an agreement. The counties will mutually assist with inspections of each other's county employees' personal permits.

"This agreement has been developed to prevent the appearance of any possible conflict of interest of either of the counties Building Departments inspection staff who may have personal projects going on that will require permits of any nature," Doty said.

Additionally, Antrim County will bi-annually randomly select electrical inspections of Eisley Electric and Eaton Electric, because both of those electrical inspectors have a potential conflict of interest.

The letter was signed by Doty and Antrim County building official Arlen Turner, and enclosed a signed agreement.

Write-in will challenge for first ward seat

By B. J. Hetler

A first ward write-in candidate for city council is the only challenger so far in the three-ward election coming up on Tuesday, Nov. 2.

Challenger Norman "Boogie" L. Carlson Jr. is looking to take the seat of long-time member Robert Timms.

Carlson, 32, says city council needs someone with a new perspective.

"It's time for a change," Carlson said. "We need a breath of fresh air, a different view."

Norman Carlson

Robert Timms

Carlson said he was encouraged to run for city council by business acquaintances and by friends. He is the owner of Carlson Home Improvements, a building construction firm. He earned a bachelor of science degree from Central Michigan University.

Carlson lived in Charlevoix through his childhood and then lived in southern Michigan until he returned in 1991.

"I came back to this area because of the quality of life," he said. "You don't realize how good it is here until you live somewhere else."

Carlson and his wife, Lisa, have a 4-year-old daughter, Sydney, and are expecting another child in January.

He has served on the city's zoning board of appeals for one-and-a-half years. He is active in coaching softball and soccer and managed the softball and basketball city leagues for eight years.

Carlson said that as someone with a young family, he wants to be a part of decision-making for Charlevoix.

"I want to have a voice, I have no right to complain if I don't do something," Carlson said. "I think I can do a very good job and offer a fresh view."

Incumbent Robert Timms, 65, plans to retain his seat on city council. He, too, has no use for complaining.

"I'd rather be on city council than in the audience complaining," he said.

Timms has lived in Charlevoix since 1957. He has served on city council for more than 16 years. He says he focuses on the wise spending of taxpayers' money and in keeping government small.

Acacia once again becomes 'Ghost Ship'

By Ginger Winter
Special to the Courier

Behind the cobwebbed scenes of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia lurks two masterminds plotting the course for this year's Ghost Ship.

Seaman Paul Roszkowski, 19, and Petty Officer Steve Schreiber, 27, are like young trick-or-treaters anticipating their public's reaction to this year's offerings: severed body parts, bone-chilling music and spooky lighting effects.

"This year we're open two nights instead of one, and we're using animated props for two of the scenes."

The duo began gathering props weeks ago and made use of the Internet to special order things like aliens and brains in jars. They're still doing on-line research for those few snags that still need untangling.

"We found 20 sites on how to do a haunted house," Schreiber said. "But we're not that high-tech. We're still trying to work out the animation of the electric chair and the coffin. A victim is supposed to thrash around like he's in shock and a body in the coffin is supposed to jump out. We're not using real people for those."

Everything else is live. Or dead, depending on your view of things.

More than half of the 48-member, all-male crew and their wives will take part in the floating haunted house that has become a Charlevoix Halloween tradition. Vampires will pop out of corners covered in cobwebs, and along dark corridors. Pirates will swashbuckle out on the deck and the living dead will play victims in the torture chamber or amputation room. Expect a few mad scientists here and there, and the grotesque with the whimsical.

"We'll have a witch on a broomstick smashed above the bridge," Roszkowski said. "She's hanging in my apartment now.

"We let people decide how they want to dress then we decorate the ship to match. It'll be bigger than last year. The sign out front will say something like, 'Abandon hope all ye who enter here.' We're having fun planning this."

Born and raised in Chicago, Roszkowski performed in high school theater productions. Not only did he act, sing and dance, he learned the complexities of production-stage lighting, sound and special effects.

"I get into this (the Ghost Ship production) because I love theater," he said.

This is his third year involved in Acacia's Halloween treat to the area.

"People come from Cheboygan and Traverse City for this," he said, voicing uncertainty.

About one thing he is certain: "It's a charity event to get canned goods and let the guys run rampant on the boat."

"It's enlisted men's revenge," corrected Schreiber, also involved in the ship's annual demise for three years. This is Schreiber's last year with the Acacia, and after seven years in the Coast Guard, he will take his final curtain call in a devil's costume.

"I'm going back to my hometown (Winona, Minn.) to do work as a locksmith," he said. "I'm ready to move on."

Schreiber was recently named "Sailor of the Quarter" by his shipmates for dedication to his duties as an engineer.

The donated canned goods or other non-perishable food items will restock the supply at the Charlevoix County Food Shelf. Last year, visitors to the Ghost Ship brought in 1,000 cans.

"This project helps raise the visibility of the Coast Guard as a community asset," said Executive Officer Ken Marien. "Other Coast Guard ships do this (have hauntings), but for us it's become a fun tradition."

To raise funds for the event, the Coast Guard Wives Club will sell baked goods, coffee and hot chocolate during the Ghost Ship's run while they take in the canned goods for the food shelf.

"We've received lots of help from the Charlevoix Chamber with flyers and advertising," Marien said. "The Charlevoix Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs, and other area businesses all donated money or materials."

Winding around the dimly lit Ghost Ship takes approximately 15 minutes and terminates in the mess deck where trick-or-treaters are given candy donated by the Charlevoix Kilwin's, Oleson's and Glen's.

"Tour time really depends on how fast scared people can move," Schreiber said. "Last year we had about 1,500 to 2,000 people line up the full length of the pier. It took about three hours."

The Ghost Ship will materialize, listing on its side on Saturday, Oct. 30 and Sunday, Oct. 31 from 7:30-9:30 p.m. The event is free, but people are encouraged to bring non-perishable or canned food.

Food for thought: Substance over style

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

For some time now, when dining out at a fancy restaurant, I have been unhappy with the fantastic architectural construction of food on my dinner plate. Hiding under layers of meat, roasted vegetables, sauces, herbs and flowers one finally discovers the ultimate pot of gold, a yummy scoop of mashed potatoes.

Thank heaven I am not alone in my chagrin for in thumbing through Julia Child and Jacques Pepin's new book "Cooking at Home," I find they are subtly, yet still in accord with my assessment of current trends.

Here and there I notice the use of the word "flat" in recipes, as in hamburgers, which should be thin, four servings to the pound or pound and a quarter.

Hallelujah! I'd like to take a leaf from Steve Forbes's "flat tax" proposal and run on the platform to advocate "flat food!" A nice poached fish in wine, crepes Suzette and other long forgotten favorites.

For example Julia doesn't care for roasted vegetables "half of which are raw and half of which are burned." I have often said that the way vegetables are served nowadays they look more like something coughed up from the disposal, than something gourmet. Please serve me a crunchy vegetable I can recognize!

For those who remember Julia Child's TV series, "the French Chef" which took the culinary world by storm in 1963, the new PBS TV series will be especially welcomed. The 400-page book, "Cooking at Home" is based on the earlier TV series with Child's commentary on the left and Chef Pepin's on the right. Their recipes are in between along with scores of color photographs.

To my surprise I found cherished recipes for Thanksgiving including sweet potatoes and yams with marshmallow topping! Although they don't mention stuffing the turkey under the skin as my mother taught me, they do suggest stuffing a chicken under the skin to keep the meat moist and tender. They also mention how to make a delicious stock for soup from the turkey bones and scraps, which I always look forward to preparing.

Pepin says that he and Child "agree what is important: taste over appearance, simplicity in recipes, using proper techniques, using the best quality ingredients, following the seasons, keeping an open mind to new food preparations — and of course, sharing both wine and food with family and friends."

Child says, "A chicken is a chicken is a chicken, but it can be sublime although very different, depending on whether it is prepared by an Indian, French, Russian, German or Chinese cook."

Pepin discusses a basic green salad and recommends that the perfect salad is prepared with only one kind of lettuce. But when it comes to preparing that divine Caesar Salad, (which is often desecrated in some local restaurants), both have slightly different methods of preparing the authentic Caesar Salad.

Child also concerns herself as I do over portion control and moderation. "Three meals a day, small helpings, no snacking, no seconds. A little bit of everything."

Finally, "Cooking at Home" is not for the working mother who is looking to fix dinner in 20 minutes. It is for the serious home cook, who thinks that learning from these two legends is worth the effort.

Letters to the editor

Editor:

On behalf of the students of Charlevoix Public Schools, the Charlevoix Board of Education and myself, I would like to extend a big thank you to all of the people who helped and supported the successful bond election held on October 11, 1999.

To name all the people who supported the process would be impossible to do in this letter. But please know, without the contributions of so many in this community the passing of this issue would not have been possible.

To all of those people a BIG Charlevoix THANKS.

Sincerely,
Dr. John J. Sturock
Superintendent
Charlevoix Public Schools

Editor:

It was great to find the community finally voting for a new high school along with all the other needed facility improvements.

As summer residents and taxpayers that provide more than Charlevoix homeowners' share of school funding, we would like to see any new building located in the proximity of the existing facility. We are reasonably sure that the closeness of the vote was only the result of locating the new school so far from the community's central district.

If the location for the new facility is not a completed legal transaction, we urge that for many reasons including cost of sewer and parking lot, a site closer to the old high school be negotiated.

Sincerely,
Gina and Dick Lepman

Editor:

It was wonderful to have the vote for the new high school. However, the 100-vote margin shows that people want to have the school IN TOWN. So, now you have the building now get the RIGHT site.

Traffic (the safety of) and sewer are main reasons for the in-town site. Also proximity to your great football field is another. The team could run over to it as part of practice — at those times a policeman can stop traffic, further showing we care more about kids than commerce!

Hope you get it all together.
Gina Lepman

Conflict of interest policy a good idea, for everybody concerned

EDITORIAL

It's unfortunate someone has to file suit to make the county realize it has to change past practices, but better late than never.

Former Charlevoix County employee Beth Inman filed a violation of code complaint against the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection. She claimed that an electrical inspector, James Eisley, was allowed to inspect the work of Eisley Electric.

After blowing the whistle on her department and filing some 25 examples of violations with the state, her boss, building inspector Ken Doty, said Inman was done.

He claims she was laid off because of restructuring in the building department, but Inman says she was fired and has filed suit in Charlevoix County Circuit Court claiming wrongful discharge. That suit is still pending.

In the meantime, the state's Bureau of Construction Codes concluded an investigation and determined that while most of the allegations were unfounded, some were not.

The state did determine that the county had violated state law when inspecting Eisley Electric's work and the county has made other arrangements for future inspections to be performed by another county inspector.

More important to us, the state has ordered the county to develop a conflict of interest policy.

In this day and age, conflict of interest policies are necessary for all levels of government, from townships to the federal government.

Too often, we've seen examples where a firm conflict of interest policy might have avoided problems that end up costing taxpayers thousands of dollars. Remember the national savings and loan scandal of the early 1990s?

What we at one time thought was just plain common sense, now has to be spelled out based on our observations of political office-holders and public employees.

Coming up with a fair conflict of interest policy in smaller communities becomes more of a challenge, because so many people wear so many hats.

Even so, we think this is something that everyone should consider.

Support letters irk county prosecutor

By B. J. Hetler

Letters of support written on official stationery for a former Boyne City teacher and coach convicted of criminal sexual conduct, have raised the ire of Charlevoix County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur.

The letters were sent to 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas for his consideration in the sentencing of Christi Jean Brilinski, 44, of Boyne City. Brilinski pleaded guilty to attempted fourth degree criminal sexual conduct with a former student.

Kur blasted officials from the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) and the Boyne City Public Schools for the use of their organization's official stationery to write the letters of support.

Kur wrote to John E. Roberts and Gina Mazzolini of MHSAA and to Boyne City Public School Superintendent Dana Compton. She expressed her concern that Roberts and Mazzolini had authored support letters on MHSAA stationery and that certain employees of the school system authored support letters on school stationery. The victim in the case attended Boyne City schools and was a student of Brilinski's.

"It is certainly every citizen's right to express support in writing for those they know who are involved in the court system," Kur wrote. "Letters like yours become a part of the Presentence Investigation Report and present to the Judge a more complete picture of the defendant he must sentence. I cannot however condone the use of your organization's stationery to do so if your views have not been adopted by the organization as a whole."

Kur went on to say that the use of official stationery to voice personal support for a convicted sex offender implies that the entire organization has adopted the writer's views. It also unfairly capitalizes on the prestige that the letterhead carries, she said.

Kur subsequently talked with school superintendent Compton who said he was unaware that some employees had sent letters using school stationery, and asked for the names of the employees.

Compton said he has not seen the letters and has not called for disciplinary action. But he said he didn't approve of the use of school stationery.

"I feel it was inappropriate for staff members to use school letterhead for personal use," Compton said. "The school has not condoned the actions, and was not aware of them."

Compton said he telephoned Kur after receiving her letter to discuss the situation, and wished that she had called him instead of notifying the media.

Kur sent a press release out to the media on Oct. 12, advising it of the situation.

"She could have handled it a lot better," Compton said. "We would have been willing to work through it through the courts, and still are willing. It's disheartening that it went the way it did."

MHSAA's Roberts put it more bluntly in his written response of Oct. 14 to Kur in which he criticized her media press release.

"What is inappropriate and worthy of 'outrage' has been publicizing your difference of opinion; but we understand you are compelled by politics to behave in such ways. We are not so motivated, and we have not responded in kind, even when media press us for a response," Roberts wrote.

He went on to declare that Kur owed apologies.

Roberts claimed in his letter to Kur that "it was appropriate for me to write (in support of Brilinski) in my capacity on MHSAA letterhead and I am authorized to do so."

Compton said that at this time the school was not considering formulating a written policy addressing the personal use of school stationery, and that he was unaware of any school system that has such a written policy.

School board takes steps toward land purchase for new high school

By B. J. Hetler

The school board has completed most of the initial steps necessary to proceed with the land purchase for a new high school.

The 74 acres is mostly farm land with few trees and no wetlands, superintendent Dr. John Sturock said. The high school will use 30 of the 74 acres.

An environmental study was conducted by PRS Environmental of Charlevoix. A recommendation was made to plug an old well on the site, said Chris Georgi.

The health department said that if a drinking water well was put in, the groundwater should be checked for the nitrate level. This is standard procedure when land has been used for farming, Georgi said. The board checked with owners of wells in the area who indicated they had no problems.

The site is located in Marion Township and the board has received the township's approval for the use of the land as the site of school buildings. The zoning will remain agricultural.

Soil samples will be taken when the field corn on the land is harvested.

A sewer system at an estimated cost of $863,000 needs to be installed.

"The school will have practice fields for soccer and football, and regulation fields for softball and baseball," Sturock said. "Kipke Field will still be used for soccer and football games."

The land was sold to the school district for $250,000, by owners Susan Reese and Stella Alexander, of St. Louis, Missouri. The sellers have two deed restrictions. One is that the land must be used for schools. The sellers also have a six-year buy-back option.

A closing date for the land purchase has not been set. A time frame for construction is pending meetings with architects.

'K Kids' are OK

This group of elementary school kids visited Boulder Park Terrace last weekend and decorated for the fall season, while visiting with the residents. Northwest Academy juniors exceed state MEAP averages in three subjects

Northwest Academy, a charter public school in Charlevoix, had more than 90 percent of 11th-grade students earn state endorsements on the 1999 Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test in three of four subjects. The school exceeded statewide averages in three subjects.

The school also had an increase in scores in all four subjects from the previous year, including a dramatic 60 percent increase in the number of students state-endorsed in mathematics.

Students who had attended Northwest Academy at least a year prior to the test scored one to two levels higher than the students that came into the school that year, said Steve Bennett, administrator of Northwest Academy.

Bennett attributed the difference to smaller class size and a more intensified classroom involvement.

"We know our kids," he said. "If one of them has a problem, we know about it."

Northwest Academy emphasizes science and mathematics, although curriculum also includes English, social science and the arts. The academy utilizes technology extensively which allows teachers to work with students in small groups, letting the children learn at their own pace.

The Michigan Association of Public School Academies announced in early October that Michigan has reached the legislatively-mandated cap on charter public schools. This cap stops any more charter public schools from opening until legislators take action to permit the expansion of public school choice.

Charter schools are public schools, free and open to all following the same laws that govern traditional public education. About 50,000 Michigan students attend 173 charter schools across the state, in cities large and small, urban and rural.

Educators, community leaders, business people and parents who start charters select the curriculum, philosophies and emphasis of the schools, such as a back-to-basics foundation, technology focus, or school-to-work approach. Public universities, local districts and community colleges authorize charters, adding a level of accountability beyond the norm by ensuring that each school is upholding its written performance contract. Charters operate solely on state aid of $6,000 per student. They cannot levy millages or issue bonds.

Carlson challenges incumbent Timms in city election

Timms owns a television and appliance service. He said he knows many people through his business and through city council and is in touch with citizens' concerns.

"I have a lot of experience with government operations," Timms said. He feels a responsibility for the city and for looking out for the citizens, even when it involves controversy.

"I have no problem creating waves," Timms said.

He said he looks out for the best for Charlevoix. One of his concerns is preserving the Wharfside building.

"It's a perfectly good building," he said. "There are three businesses in there that would be displaced if it were torn down."

Timms and his wife, Alice, have three children and two grandchildren.

Running unopposed as of Tuesday are Bill Bellows, second ward, August Witthoeft, third ward, and city clerk Jo Anne Patrick.

The deadline for write-in candidates is 4 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 29. Terms are for two years. Absentee voters may obtain ballots until 2:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Mark Titus

Pastor Larry Grouters officiated at the nuptials which united Carrie Lynn Cunningham and Brian Mark Titus in marriage on Saturday, Aug. 21. The 3 p.m. ceremony was held at Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix, witnessed by 250 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Greg and Betty Martin of Charlevoix and Glenn Cunningham of Grand Haven. The groom's parents are Mark and Diane Titus of Coopersville, Mich.

Geoff and Kristen Reynolds served as master and mistress of ceremonies.

Escorted to the altar by her brother, Paul Cunningham, the bride wore a full gown, accented with beads and sequins. Her tulle veil was attached to a beaded and sequined crown headpiece. She carried a bouquet of purple and yellow roses and daisies.

Wendy Gravelyn and Amy Parrish were the maids of honor. Bridesmaids were Melissa Siegel, Jodi Britter, Carrie Wakulat and Andrea Cunningham. The bridal attendants wore orchid color dresses and carried bouquets of purple and yellow roses and daisies.

Mike Luke and Jarret Siegel served as the best men. Groomsmen were Paul Cunningham, Laurence Milward, Dwayne Morris and Jeff Harris.

Kamri Monroe Cunningham was the flower girl. She wore a white dress accented with purple flowers at her waist and collar.

The ring bearer was Steven Halberstadt.

The bride and groom were transported from the church to the reception by trolley.

Following the ceremony, a reception given by both parents was held at the Knights of Columbus hall in Petoskey.

Following a honeymoon in Cancun, the newlyweds are making their home in Charlevoix. Carrie is a student at Grand Valley State University and will graduate in May with a psychology degree. Brian is employed at Bergmann Marine as a boat mechanic.

Tug-O-War with God

Every summer I attend two weeks of camp, not as a camper but as a counselor. I receive so much joy in helping to mold the lives of young people in Northern Michigan. Campers come from miles around to be challenged, fed, disciplined, and to have a good time. Last summer during one of the activity sessions, we pulled out the infamous tug-o-war rope. Tug-o-war has probably been played at every camp since the dawn of time.

Each team lines up at opposite ends of the rope. They grasp the rope with their hands and begin to pull against the other team. The stronger of the two teams will pull the weaker to his persuasion or his side of the line. The crowd will cheer and congratulate the winners of the game.

Even though tug-o-war is a game, it is much like the reality of life, In chapter 4 of the book of Genesis in the Bible, there is a story of two sons, Cain and Abel. They were two of the sons of Adam. As the story goes, both sons brought a sacrifice to God. God was pleased with Abel's offering but with Cain's offering He was not overly enthused. God told Cain he could do better.

Instead of going back to do better, Cain just decided he was not going to do it God's way at all. The Bible says he then became angry and killed his brother Abel. You see, Cain figured if God was not going to accept him the way he was then he was not going to accept God. This set the pattern of rejecting God that rests with us to this day. Man will not allow the Holy Spirit to raise him up to the level of God's acceptance. Instead, he insists on pulling God down to his level in some other form which he can understand. This is ultimately idolatry at its highest level.

The tug-o-war continues. Men are trying to pull God down to their level and He won't budge. So what do they do? They change their concept of God. They want Him to fit into their world because they want to be in control. This pastor believes there is only one true God, the God of the Bible.

Jesus said "I am the way, the truth, and the life." This same God is the same God that gave the 10 commandments (not suggestions) to Moses on Mount Sinai in Exodus chapter 20; the first of which is "You shall have no other gods before me." God's law is established and it is firm. We must stop trying to fit God into our mold of morality.

It broke my heart to hear "Magic" Johnson, after being diagnosed with the H.I.V. positive disease, stand up and say that he was going to be a spokesman for the disease and safe sex. Once again God's law has been changed to accommodate the morality of someone else. The only safe sex outside of marriage is NO sex. That's God's provision for safe sex.

Let's put down the rope and quit pulling on God. Let's surrender to Him. After all He created us for His purpose anyway.

Venetian Festival fireworks cancellation report released

By B. J. Hetler

The Venetian Festival fireworks were halted almost immediately after they began last July, and an official report stating the reasons has been filed with the city.

The report was compiled by Charlevoix Fire Chief Doug Carver in early September. It includes statements by Petoskey Fire Inspector, Art Shaw, and U.S. Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer J.B. Shull. Shaw and Shull were the authorities who stopped the Round Lake fireworks display after about 90 seconds on July 24. Shaw said the display was stopped because tbey saw burning debris landing outside of the fallout zone.

Although National Fire Protection Association guidelines were followed and a professional fireworks display company hired, nerves were on edge as people remembered the 1997 fireworks explosion that killed one person and injured 15 others. At that time, a firework malfunctioned and exploded in its casing, sending shrapnel into the crowd.

After much deliberation this summer, the City of Charlevoix gave the go-ahead for a Venetian Festival fireworks display in Round Lake. It hired Petoskey's fire inspector Shaw who has overseen Petoskey and Harbor Springs' fireworks displays for many years. Shaw was given the authority to monitor Charlevoix's display and the discretion to stop the display if he deemed there to be any danger.

"During the fireworks display, ... I observed falling fireworks debris that I determined was landing outside the safety setback distances that had been established when planning for the display," fire inspector Shaw said in his part of the report. "Some of the debris . . . was flaming and continued flaming after it had landed."

Shaw further states that based upon conditions allowed under the Coast Guard permit, it was determined that adjustments could not be made to mitigate this fallout.

"Therefore, I asked that the display be stopped," Shaw said.

U.S. Coast Guard Chief J.B. Shull said that he heard reports of embers falling onto spectator boats, the crowds and the LeHavre docks.

Charlevoix police officer Gerard Doan was outside of the LeHavre Condominiums during the display and said he saw a burning ember falling.

"This burning ember did travel over the head of a young man sitting, with his child on his lap, in the courtyard of the LeHavre Condominium," Doan said.

The man told the firefighters nearby and one of them put the ember out, he said.

Firefighter Bob Roloff was on the scene.

"I was standing on the dock in front of LeHavre condo when the fireworks started," Roloff said. "Approximately one minute into the show several people in a boat in the first slip jumped off of their boat on to the dock stating that they had ashes in their eyes."

Shull made a recommendation for future displays.

"Move the fireworks barge outside Round Lake where the safety zone can be extended to allow for fallout drift, possibly into Lake Charlevoix," he said.

State accepts county's new policy

The state Bureau of Construction Codes' demands were prompted by the complaint of code violations filed with the state by a former employee of the building inspection department. In one of her charges, Margaret Inman stated that violations occurred when James Eisley of Eisley Electric was allowed to inspect his own company.

The bureau decided to investigate the Eisley Electric charges separate from the building inspection department charges. Both Eisley and the county have admitted errors were made.

The county rectified the situation by hiring Bill Eaton of Eaton Electric to handle inspections of Eisley Electric.

Eisley has arrived at a settlement agreement with the bureau, Green said. The terms include Eisley relinquishing his contractor's license, and a six-month suspension of his master license. He has received a journey license for six months and will have the opportunity to reapply for a master license in the future.

Women's Resource Center kicks off food and supply drive

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan announces its annual Harvest Food and Supply Drive.

Domestic abuse continues to be a major issue in our society. One out of every four American women report they have been physically abused by their partner at some point in their lives. The Women's Resource Center provides critical emergency services to domestic abuse victims in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties.

In the past year 84 women and 107 children took refuge at Safe Home to escape the peril of emotional, verbal and/or physical abuse. Almost 3,000 nights of housing were provided; averaging eight persons per day, 365 days a year. During the past year, food and supply costs exceeded $20,000, of which more than $15,000 was donated by groups and individual supporters.

The annual Harvest Food and Supply Drive is an appeal to the Northern Michigan community to assist Safe Home in providing food, household goods and personal items to the families who reside there. Non-perishable foods such as canned goods, boxed meals and soups are a major need. The Shelter is also faced with raising more than $100,000 each year to physically maintain the facility, to staff and operate the home 24 hours per day and to provide its special services. Cash donations toward a specific line item in the budget are also needed and appreciated.

"The Safe Home has housed families in crisis for the past 23 years," shelter coordinator Jamie Winters said. "We would be hard pressed to provide this safe haven without the generous support of our community."

To drop off a donation, receive a copy of the Safe Home needs lists or for more information, call the Women's Resource Center: Petoskey, 347-1572; Cheboygan, 627-2380; Mancelona, 587-8891; or Gaylord (517) 731-0918.

Casual Singles' social hour slated for Friday

Casual Conversation recently reorganized as Casual Singles Organization was formed in November 1996. We are a group of individuals aged 40 and over who meet once a month to share conversation, fun and friendship. We meet at different area restaurants for a social hour and dinner.

Our mission is to provide singles in the northern Michigan area a place to meet other single people and to share various activities with one another. The Casual Singles Organization provides a person who is single, divorced or widowed the opportunity to meet others in a casual setting.

Over the past years we have attended movies, plays, picnics, dinners and boat trips together. This winter we plan to have cross country skiing parties, attend plays, have a bowling party and other activities as requested by the membership.

Each month members receive a monthly newsletter that informs the member of current activities and news regarding the group. Annual membership in the organization is $12.00, which covers the cost of mailing the newsletter to members.

The gatherings are casual and informal..Members are from all areas as far south as Ellsworth, east to Cheboygan and north to Mackinaw City and Trout Lake and all areas in between. Some members are semi-retired, others retired and still others are working.

Monthly get togethers are usually held the third Friday of each month. Tea Table Talk in the Petoskey News-Review addresses the meeting date,.time and place for these meetings.

We cordially invite all singles who want to meet other singles to join us at the next social hour which will be held at LaSenorita, 1285 N. U.S. 31, in Petoskey on Friday, October 29. 1999 at 7:00 p.m. Complementary hors d'oeuvre's and a cash bar will be available. There will be door prizes and a 50/50 drawing.

For further information about the Casual Singles Organization please contact Nancy at 547-4867, Jim at 347-2892 or Terri at 548-5390.

Happy Halloween in Charlevoix County

The big day is almost here. The costumes are ready and the children of Charlevoix County are ready to haunt the streets. The Michigan Sheriffs' Association and Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to take this opportunity to remind parents and children that fun can turn to tragedy if proper precautions are not used.

It's really a matter of common sense, says Sheriff Lasater, "There are things you really need to watch for when allowing your kids to go trick or treating."

The Sheriff offers these tips to make your child's Halloween a safe and fun one:

Young children should be escorted by an adult, and should go out before dark.

Costumes should not be too restrictive; masks that cover the entire face and restrict vision should not be used.

Older children should still be supervised by an adult, but if that is not possible, a time limit should be set and stuck to.

Never let children go into a neighborhood that they and you are unfamiliar with.

Encourage children not to eat their treats while trick or treating. Wait until they bring them home so it can be inspected.

Discard any unwrapped candy or anything that looks as if it may have been tampered with.

According to Sheriff Lasater, every year tragedies occur that could have been avoided by simply following the rules of common sense.

"We hear of reports from around the state of children either finding foreign objects in their candy, or of kids being approached by strangers," said Sheriff Lasater.

"Although not great in number, we can make sure that these types of incidents don't happen in our community by using the precautionary methods outlined here."

The Children of Charlevoix County deserve to have a safe, fun Halloween," said Sheriff Lasater, "We'll do our part, but you need to do yours, too."

HAVE A SAFE HALLOWEEN

LET'S ALL BE AWARE OF CHILDREN ON HALLOWEEN NIGHT! WE WANT THEM TO BE SAFE AND HAPPY AND HAVE A GREAT HALLOWEEN!

- Try to Trick or Treat when it is still light outside.
- Children should wear their masks on top of their heads when walking, and pull them over their faces when they reach the door.
- Carry a flashlight so you can see, and be seen easily.
- Pick up ladders, play things and other objects from the yard so children won't trip.
- Give your children a meal or snack before they go out, and emphasize that no treats should be eaten before they get home.
- Discard commercially-produced candy if the wrapper is loose or the seal has been broken.

- Use a reflective tape on your costume so people driving cars can see you.
- Trick or Treat in groups of two or more for added safety..
- Say thank you at each house children visit.
- Stay in familiar neighborhoods if possible. Try to avoid homes of total strangers.
- Children should be accompanied by an adult. Cross streets with care.

- Trick or Treat during specified hours only.
- Trick or Treaters should always go in groups, and younger children should be accompanied by an adult.
- Children become careless from excitement and may run into the road.
- Dusk is the time of poorest visibility for drivers.
- Choose a costume that is easy to walk in, easy to see out of and can be seen by drivers.
- Remind your children to look both ways and cross streets only at corners.

Council to consider bids for airport expansion

By B. J. Hetler

A new terminal for Charlevoix Municipal Airport is a step closer to construction as bids were opened on Monday.

Fuller-Nichols Architects are reviewing the bids. Airport manager Loraine Luepnitz hopes a decision is made on the bids at city council's Nov. 1 meeting.

Plans for a 3,400-square-foot terminal will double the current space. A preliminary cost estimate for the project is $362,000. The state Bureau of Aeronautics will grant $75,000, and the city is responsible for the remaining estimated $287,000.

"The current terminal has outlived its useful life," Luepnitz said. "We need more space for travelers, especially Beaver Island travelers and freight."

The manager's office is her desk that sits in the terminal's waiting room.

The new terminal will be handicapped accessible and have automatic doors. A heated sidewalk leading up to the terminal is planned.

Luepnitz is hopeful that construction will begin yet this year. Other long-term plans are improvements to the parking area and relocation of the airport road access off of U.S. 31.

The municipal airport accommodates single and twin engine airplanes and small corporate jets. The runway is 4,550 feet.

Island Airways operates out of the municipal airport. It completed construction of a new hangar this summer that can hold up to six airplanes.

"The old hangar was circa 1930s," station manager Chris Welke said. "It had been moved three times and there was no door or ceiling."

Island Airways provides daily flights to Beaver Island, South Fox Island, and has charter service to other locations, said Welke.

The hangar was constructed so that it will connect to the new terminal building.

Girls State provides many lessons for Charlevoix student

The following is a guest commentary from Charlevoix High School senior, Jessica Halverson. Last summer Jessica joined 700 girls from around the state who met at Michigan State University for one week to participate in Girls State.

By Jessica Halverson

Girls State is a hands-on, mock experience with running local and state government. Students run for office, sit on committees, and problem-solve.

Jessica was sponsored by the Charlevoix chapter of the American Legion. This is a reprint of a letter she sent on July 18, 1999 to the American Legion, following her experience.

Dear Members of the American Legion:

Jessica Halverson

My name is Jessica Halverson. I was this year's participant with Girls State. I am a senior at Charlevoix High. I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks and tell you a little bit about my experiences at Girls State.

When I arrived at Girls State, my first thought was, oh my goodness, this is what it's going to be like when I go away to college. It was a scary thought and I wasn't sure if I wanted to think about it just then. But as the week went on, sometimes rather slowly, and other times way too fast, I thought to myself that yes, I would be able to survive college, and yes, I would also thrive. You see, that's what Girls State did for me — it equipped me with essential knowledge of myself.

Girls State was in no way an easy experience. It challenged my mental strength and stamina. I attended many meetings that tested my ability to believe in our government, but first and foremost, our nation. I think that Girls State also played an important role in strengthening my fierce determination to stand for what I believe in, and that with our government, complaining without doing is meaningless, but if I am willing to do something and take that stand, our government is put to the test and justice is served. Several girls did not stick it out through the entire week, including my roommate. This was discouraging, but I realized that if I had made the same choice, if I had decided to take the easy way out and not stayed through the whole week, I would have, in the end, regretted it. I built friendships that will last a lifetime, and like I said before, I learned something important about myself.

Besides the character developing side of Girls State, there was so much knowledge to learn about government as well. That was also extremely beneficial to me. I'll be the first to admit that I don't know enough about our government. With this issue, I've always believed that knowledge is power, which was backed up by my week at Girls State. I took part first-hand in the government at Girls State. I ran for a seat on our city council, which I won. I was also elected to be the head of my city's Public Safety Committee (rather ironic, don't you think?). I realized that by taking part and becoming involved, the week went by more quickly and that what one puts into Girls State, one certainly gets out.

Thank you again for allowing me this opportunity. You have given me a gift — one that I will be able to open from time to time and say, yes, it was worth it. I hope that by my letter, you, too, feel that it was worth sending me as a representation of our town and your American Legion.

Nice day for a boat ride

Tremendous winds last weekend created sport for a kayaker on Lake Michigan. Winds estimated at 45 mph with gusts up to 55 mph, causing a couple of power outages in the area, but no damage or injuries. (Photo by B. J. Hetler)

County planners deny request

A request by Waste Management for a landfill to take construction waste at Cedar Ridge was denied by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission on Tuesday, Oct. 19.

The county's solid waste plan requires that any landfill of this type be within a six-mile radius of Advance. This was put in the plan years ago so that a coal-fired power plant located in Advance would have convenient use of it, planning department director Larry Sullivan said.

The power plant is not operating, but the county must follow the current solid waste plan until a new plan is in effect, planning commission member Larry Levengood said.

"It's not personal to Waste Management," Levengood said. "It's due to the location requirement."

SPORTS

A heartbreaker

Rayder soccer team falls, 1-0, in OT to Harbor in district opener

By Andy Sneddon

HARBOR SPRINGS — Josh Block took a deep breath and exhaled.

"I don't see an error on our part," he said. "We just lapsed in overtime. In overtime, we controlled it.

"That's sports. It happens sometimes. You do everything right and still come up short."

Yet when it's the state tournament where one loss spells the end of the season, it stings a little more.

The Rayder soccer team, poised to make a run to the first boys' district soccer championship in school history, fell to Harbor Springs, 1-0, Tuesday on a sudden-death overtime goal by Ben Osetek on the Rams' field, Black Forest Hall.

The goal came early in the extra session, ending the Rayders' season at 12-6 just three days after they had beaten Roscommon, 3-2, to claim the first league soccer title in school history.

"It's disappointing," Block said. "Our players worked very, very, very hard to win this district and it was a reachable goal for us.

"It's the third year (in a row) that I felt it should have been our title and we didn't get it. They (the Rayders) did what they were supposed to do."

Osetek's goal came on a direct kick from about 45 yards out. The kick was low and it skipped into the end under diving Charlevoix goalie Chris Tilley, who appeared to be screened on the play.

"You have so many players in between him and the ball," Block said. "It was a hard shot too."

The goal capped what to that point had been a back-and-forth battle that lived up to its advance billing.

Harbor Springs, with the wind at its back, controlled play in the first half. The Rayders, with the northerly wind behind them in the second 40 minutes, were in command and it appeared at any moment that they would break through against Harbor netminder Michael Craig.

But shot after Rayder shot missed the mark, or Craig came up with save after save.

"There wasn't a person out there that was a weak link," Block said. "Defense had been lacking for us, but our defense played their best game yet.

"This is a very motivated group of people. It's just unfortunate that it has to come to an end."

Rayder gridders finish with a loss

SUTTONS BAY — The injury bug turned out to carry a crippling venom for the Charlevoix High School football team in 1999.

Suttons Bay topped the Rayders, 25-13, in a non-league game Friday, ending Charlevoix's injury-prone season 1-8.

"The year was a disappointment for all of us," third-year Rayder coach Todd Klinger said. "We went into the year hoping to be a little bit better. It just seems like things that could go wrong, went wrong."

The Rayders lost their first six games of the season, defeated Elk Rapids for their lone victory, and finished with a pair of losses.

Part of Charlevoix's woes can be traced directly to the Rayders' health.

"We had four (players) that were starters that missed multiple games," Klinger said. "Throughout the year, we lost five other kids for games at different times."

In fact, in one game this season, all three captains were on the sidelines in street clothes because of various injuries.

"It's hard to lose those kids," Klinger said. "Not only are you losing their playing ability, but you're losing their leadership.

"I hope it's just an unfortunate year and it's not something that's going to continue. Two years ago, we played seven games with just 16 kids and we didn't have anybody get hurt. We hope it's something that goes in cycles."

Still, there is somewhat of a silver lining in the Rayder misfortunes.

"A positive is we were able to get a lot of young kids some experience," Klinger said. "We were starting nine kids that'll be coming back next year.

"But on the other side of that, we were putting kids in there that weren't quite ready experience-wise to be a big factor in a varsity game."

That inexperience was telling, especially in close games, Klinger said.

"You look at most of our games," he said. "We had some chances and we didn't take advantage of a break or make a break for ourselves.

"On the positive side, these kids kept coming back and worked hard, week in and week out. The kids gained valuable experience that, hopefully, will help us for the future."

Matt Hinzmann had a hand in all four Suttons Bay touchdowns on Friday. He scored on runs of four, eight and 21 yards, and he tossed a 26-yard touchdown pass. The Norsemen won their final two games to finish 2-7.

Ryan Rafacz scored both Charlevoix touchdowns. He caught a 6-yard TD pass from junior quarterback Jeremiah Teuscher, and he recovered a Suttons Bay fumble in the end zone for a score. Sean Stockman kicked an extra point for the Rayders.

Rafacz, a split end/cornerback, was one of three sophomores who started on both offense and defense for the '99 Rayders. The others were tackle Rob Boss and center/defensive end Nick Schwein.

Klinger said he expects to build around that solid trio along with a good corps of juniors next season. Among that group of juniors is tailback/cornerback Ryan Leitner; Teuscher, who also plays in the defensive backfield; tailback/linebacker Troy Smith; guard/linebacker Matt Horon; and fullback/linebacker Ben Coen.

Against Suttons Bay, Leitner rushed for 78 yards on 20 carries, while Teuscher threw for 43 yards on 6-of-11 passing.

Leitner was the Rayders' top rusher on the season with 870 yards on 139 carries for a 6.26-yard average. He also scored a team-high eight touchdowns.

Teuscher, who took over for injured Adam Wood at quarterback two-thirds of the way through the season, completed 19-of-36 passes for 246 yards and three touchdowns.

Harbor Springs plays at 4 p.m. Thursday in a district semifinal match against Burt Lake-Northern Michigan Christian Academy. The winner of that game plays for the district title at 1 p.m. Saturday. Both of those matches will be at Harbor's home field, Black Forest Hall, where the Rams are unbeaten this season.

The Rayders closed a 12-6 season and, with their league title, put together perhaps the finest season in school history.

"Charlevoix, they're a good team," Harbor coach Hagen Manker said. "They won the league, they've got some good players. It's probably as satisfying as any game we've won.

"It's because they're a good team, in shape, with skilled kids. You've got (Sean) Stockman, (Ryan) Vogelheim and Jon Boss and Tilley, who's either the best goalie or the second-best goalie in the district and, hey, it's a 1-0 game."

In Saturday's 3-2 win over Roscommon in the league championship match, Michael Ricks scored two goals and Stockman had one to lead the Rayders.

Boss, Ricks and Thomas Barczynski picked up assists, while Tilley captured the victory in goal.

The Rayders earned the right to play for the league title with a 5-1 victory over McBain-Northern Michigan Christian. Stockman notched a hat trick in that game, while Boss had three assists.

Ricks and Vogelheim each had a goal and an assist, and Tilley picked up the victory in goal.

Also last week, the Rayders dropped a 5-3 decision to Elk Rapids at Kipke Field.

Barczynski had two goals and Stockman one in that contest, which Charlevoix led, 1-0, at halftime.

Boss and Vogelheim each had an assist.

Freshman scores 41 in hoops win

Natashia Kleiber scored 41 points in leading the Charlevoix freshman girls' basketball team to a 63-47 victory over Gaylord on Saturday.

Erin Burns added 11 points for the Rayders, who won their third game in a row.

Charlevoix's top rebounders were Candace Boss (16), Jamie Left (11) and Michelle Swem (9). Left also dished out seven assists.

The Rayders, who were scheduled to play host to Harbor Springs on Tuesday, Oct. 26, play at East Jordan at 4:15 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 30.

Rayder runners ready for regional

By Andy Sneddon

Talk about close.

In a regional that promises to be tougher than a $4 steak, the Charlevoix High School cross country teams will attempt to qualify for their respective Class C state meets on Saturday.

Rayder coach Ken Plude said the Rayder girls are among five teams with legitimate shots at the top three spots, while the Rayder boys are among a group of seven top teams.

The top three from each regional advance to the Nov. 6 state meet.

"It's so close," Plude said of the girls' meet, where the Rayders are expected to slug it out with Benzie Central, Boyne City, Suttons Bay and Maple City Glen Lake for the right to go on to the state meet. Benzie is the defending state champion.

"Right now, it looks like Benzie, Suttons Bay and Boyne City have the upper hand," Plude said. "It's too bad two really good teams will be sitting home (for the state meet), we just hope we're not one of them."

The Rayders finished second to Boyne City, 44-45, last week at the Lake Michigan Conference meet at East Jordan. On Saturday, Oct. 23, the Rayders were third behind champion Suttons Bay and runner-up Glen Lake at the Elk Rapids Invitational.

Regardless of what happens at the regional, Plude said that the Rayder girls' season would be considered quite a success in that four runners graduated from last season's team — including all-stater Tricia Hodge — that placed seventh at the state meet.

"I think they've got as good a chance as anybody and I think they're definitely coming into their own," Plude said.

As tight as the girls' regional race is to call, the boys' race may be even closer.

"East Jordan's ranked No. 1 in the state, Benzie's ranked No. 3, Mason County Central has been ranked sixth most of the year, and McBain, us and Rogers City are honorable mentions," Plude said, referring to the state Class C coaches poll.

That, he said, boils down to this: Seven of the top 15-20 teams in the state will vie for three qualifying spots in the same regional.

East Jordan, the defending state champion, is Plude's pick to win the regional. Beyond that, "there's no prediction I'm going to make on that one," he said.

"I don't think anybody's going to really challenge EJ this year," he said. "Those next four (teams) are all within 20 points of each other."

Whether the Rayders qualify for the state meet or not, their rugged regional will serve them well down the road, what with four sophomores among the top seven runners.

"The youngsters, what an experience that would be for them for next year," Plude said.

East Jordan's Tarn Leach was first and teammate Micah Middaugh second in leading the Red Devils boys to first place in the Lake Michigan Conference meet on Oct. 19. The Red Devils, running on their home course, put five runners in the top 10 en route to 17 points, while Charlevoix was second with 44. Kalkaska was third with 90.

Leach's winning time was 17 minutes, 2 seconds. Zack Hopkins was Charlevoix's top performer, placing fourth in 17:45 to earn a spot on the all-conference team. Other Rayder places: Josh Popenhagen, eighth, 18:07; Gordie Selph, 11th, 18:22; Luke Whitley, 15th, 19:08; Jerred Hodge, 16th, 19:21; Jon Tebeau, 17th, 19:21; and Zack Bajos, 18th, 19:24. Popenhagen and Selph were named all-conference honorable mention.

Traverse City St. Francis' Rachel Masserant won the girls' race in 21:04, but the real race was for the team title, where Boyne City edged the Rayders by a point.

Charlevoix freshman Liz Ulrich was second to Masserant in 21:06, while Boyne's Jackie Cyr placed third. Ulrich earned a spot on the all-conference team.

The other Charlevoix places: Laura Schairbaum, seventh, 21:55; Winter Kyvik, ninth, 21:57; Heather Probert, 13th, 22:45; Erica Kammermann, 14th, 22:48; Amy Kurtz, 31st, 25:14; and Betsy Tebeau, 33rd, 25:58. Schairbaum and Kyvik were named all-conference honorable mention.

At the Elk Rapids Invitational on Saturday, Oct. 23, Ulrich led the Rayder girls to their third-place finish with a 20:54 clocking, good for fifth place. Other Charlevoix places: Schairbaum, 21st, 22:01; Probert, 24th, 22:17; Tiffany Fisher, 40th, 23:32; Kurtz, 45th, 23:54; and Tebeau, 76th, 27:22.

Bear Lake won the boys' team title with 74 points, followed by Rogers City (75) and the Rayders (88). Charlevoix's top finisher was Hopkins, who placed ninth in 17:47. Also for Charlevoix, Popenhagen was 19th in 18:10, followed by Selph, 20th, 18:14; Whitley, 27th, 18:36; Tebeau, 29th, 18:44; Hodge, 41st, 19:11; and Bajos, 43rd, 19:14.

Charlevoix girls' basketball team enters second half of league slate on high note

It's unlikely the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team will win the Lake Michigan Conference in 1999.

Still, the Rayders have a good opportunity over the next several weeks to show that they have improved immensely since a 2-8 start to the season.

"I'm pretty pleased with what we're doing," first-year coach Jason Otter said. "They go hard in practice. Our girls are always bruised up. After the game, they're always looking at who has the biggest floor burn."

Floor burns and bruises don't help when it comes to a beauty contest. But they are tell-tale signs of a basketball team that has come a long way since August and has won four of five games entering an Oct. 26 contest against powerful league rival Harbor Springs.

"I think we've come a long ways," said Otter, who has the Rayders at 2-5 in the Lake Michigan Conference and 6-9 overall after losing last week on the road to Elk Rapids, 61-47, and beating Class A Gaylord, 69-60, at home on Saturday. "They're really working hard at doing the things I ask of them.

"We've still got a lot to work on."

The Rayders enter the bulk of the second-half league schedule with Tuesday's Harbor game. On Saturday, they travel to East Jordan, 4-4 league, 7-5 overall, for a league game. Next week, the Rayders take on Traverse City St. Francis at home on Nov. 2, and travel to Kalkaska on Nov. 4. Both are league games.

East Jordan nipped the Rayders, 55-54, in the teams' first meeting this season (Oct. 1).

Against Gaylord, Kerstin Larsen, Leslie Hoffman and Meghan Vogel again paced the Rayders. Larsen scored 24 points, grabbed 11 rebounds and made five steals, while Hoffman scored 17 points, and Vogel finished with 20 points and a career-high 19 rebounds.

Sophomore point guard Jennifer McClellan dished out 11 assists against just four turnovers — a ratio that makes Otter smile.

"That's what we look at, turnover-to-assist ratio," he said.

Vogel, Otter said, helps set the tone with outstanding defense.

"Vogel took two charges ... That's the biggest play in the game," Otter said. "Our girls get all excited because I talk about it so much in practice."

Against Elk Rapids, the Rayders were saddled with foul trouble as three Charlevoix players fouled out in the game.

The Elks outscored the Rayders, 22-8, in the fourth quarter. Elk Rapids, which got 19 points from Carrie Meyers and 16 from Kim Ridge, enters this week 10-4 overall and 7-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference, one game behind first-place Harbor.

Larsen led Charlevoix with nine points, seven rebounds and six assists.

Voter seeks discussion on site selection

By Andy Sneddon
and B. J. Hetler

A Charlevoix school district voter has taken issue with the Charlevoix Board of Education's land site selection of the new high school, by asking for a public discussion of the location at the board's Nov. 8 meeting.

Jeffrey Porter wrote a letter dated Oct. 26 to board president Allen Telgenhof asking for the opportunity.

"The proposed location of the new high school was never publicly discussed at a Board of Education meeting, and this meeting would be the perfect opportunity for the first public discussion of the site," Porter said.

Telgenhof said he would respond by letter to Porter, but indicated on Thursday that Porter, and anybody else, is welcome to attend the Nov. 8 meeting and voice his opinion.

"During the public comment portion of the meeting, if he wants to come and address the board on that issue, he has the right to do that, just as anybody who wants to discuss any other issue may," Telgenhof said. "People are welcome to come and talk about it."

As for putting the land site on the meeting agenda, Telgenhof said the board has discussed the issue at a number of meetings.

"There was a meeting where there was one item on the agenda, and that was the purchase of this exact piece of land," he said. "Anyone could have come to that meeting and spoke out about it."

But, Telgenhof said, no citizens did.

Porter expressed appreciation for the work done by both the board and the facilities committee.

He went on to say that the voter approval margin was small and that he, and others, think it would be "politically wise" for the board to seek a more suitable site. Porter would not say who the other people were who shared his opinion.

"The fact that the location did not appear on the ballot, allows you, the Board of Education, to continue to explore sites that not only will benefit the students and taxpayers, but also insure the future health and welfare of the Charlevoix 'community' as well."

Telgenhof said he has heard citizen input on the site, some positive, some negative. He said he has also heard from citizens who are all for the selected site — 74 acres along Marion Center Road — and want to get on with the project.

"I think once we break ground and get going on it, people are going to be happy," he said.

Telgenhof did say that the school system may be able to "get out" of its purchase agreement, but it is unlikely now that the process has come so far.

"We haven't closed yet," he said. "But, it's just a matter of time."

Carlson unseats Timms

By B. J. Hetler

The only challenger in the city council election on Tuesday won his quest for the first ward seat of a long-time incumbent.

Norman "Boogie" L. Carlson Jr. took 101 votes, while 18-year council veteran Robert Timms took 80 votes.

"I'm pleasantly surprised," Carlson said.

Tuesday morning he set up his headquarters, a patriotically decorated table and chair, at the required 100 feet from city hall. For more than 12 hours Carlson, 33, braced himself against strong winds and cold temperatures and passed out stickers to voters. He said it was worth it.

"I'm thawed out officially," Carlson said. "I don't think I would have won if I hadn't stood out there."

Timms admitted that he didn't work at getting re-elected.

"I figured the people would come out and vote for me," he said.

Timms said he didn't know if he would run again.

"It's quite a responsibility, to be there at the meetings," he said. "I haven't missed very many meetings. I hope Mr. Carlson will take the time to do the job.

"I'm not pleased that I lost. But you win a few, you lose a few."

Carlson said he was encouraged to run by several people, including city council member A.J. Witthoeft, and former mayor Dave Novotny.

"Dave Novotny told me to do the job right, to be dedicated, and to do the home work," Carlson said. He said he was advised to consider the time it will take, not only in attending meetings, but doing the research on the issues.

Letters to the editor

Please reconsider school site selection

Editor:

In a recent letter to the Charlevoix Board of Education President, Allen Telgenhof, I requested the issue of the proposed site location be placed on the agenda for board discussion.

Receiving no reply, I contacted him by phone. Mr. Telgenhof said that such a meeting had occurred Friday, Sept. 17 with board discussion of the site beginning at 5:23 p.m. However, the meeting was adjourned at 5:26 p.m. Mr. Telgenhof told me there would be no further public discussion by the board of this site.

Three minutes of public discussion is not enough time for this important issue. School board members should address publicly the many concerns that citizens have concerning the site location, and the site-selection process. I would encourage individuals who are concerned about the site location, that have questions for the board of education, to attend the Nov. 8 meeting en-mass, and make known their concerns, during the public comment portion of this meeting.

The Board of Education should be encouraged to:

- Delay or forgo the purchase of the property at this time.
- Insist on a "community impact study."
- Answer the hard questions that have been asked.
- Allow taxpayers to decide the proposed site issue through a public referendum.

Few issues in our community have had the potential impact for change as this one. It is time to study this issue further, and select the course that will minimize urban sprawl and maximize the use of tax dollars.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey L. Porter, DDS

Voters have spoken, now let's get on with it

Editor:

In response to your Charlevoix Courier editorial of October 20th:

So, you like the idea of bulldozing Kipke Field, tearing up the expensive all-weather track, demolishing the bleachers, locker rooms, press box, lighting, and athletic storage facility? After destroying these facilities to make room for a high school where would you have students go for physical education and marching band practice during the school day or for team practice after school? Did I read your editorial correctly? "The school board might even consider moving the football field to the Marion Road (sic) property ..." All alone out there, right? Not a hint of a school nearby. Then what? Bus the various teams, marching bands, physical education classes, etc., back and forth between the field and the school all day and evening?

I believe that when the existing high school is converted to middle and upper elementary schools, Kipke Field will be a wonderful asset for the students attending there. Our middle school and upper elementary students can participate in track and field, flag football, soccer, and marching band as well as physical education classes, all of which will benefit from having Kipke Field right where it is today.

Certainly a gymnasium, practice fields, a track, and other athletic facilities will be part of the new high school at the Marion Center Road site. However, the school board will still have the option of using Kipke Field for Friday night football games or other high school events.

The school board presented a plan to the voters of the Charlevoix School District. Those opposed to the plan made their opposition known via letters in the newspapers, personal campaigning, and even paid advertisements. I have no problem with that. However, in spite of the opposition, the plan was approved. The voters have decided. One hundred votes is a reasonably comfortable margin. There have been other votes that passed or failed by much smaller margins. I remember an attempt in the 1960s to pass a bond issue for building an addition to the high school which failed, by just nine votes. Speculation that the winning margin might have been wider if a different plan had been presented to the voters is unproven, irrelevant guessing. The election is over. Let the school board proceed to carry out the plan that was approved by the electorate.

Sincerely,
Vincent Chew

Kur right to slam letter-writers

EDITORIAL

County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur was right on target when criticizing those who used official school stationery to write letters of support for a former Boyne City teacher and coach convicted of criminal sexual conduct.

The letters were sent to 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas for his consideration in the sentencing of 44-year-old Christi Jean Brilinski of Boyne City.

Brilinski pleaded guilty to attempted fourth degree criminal sexual conduct with a former student. The letterheads used came from the Boyne City Public Schools and the Michigan High School Athletic Association. Both organizations criticized Kur for not discussing the issue first with them before sending out a press release on Oct. 12.

While they may have made a minor point, the letters were already out in the public and probably not much was left for Kur to talk to the two organizations about.

Using an organization's official stationery often leads one to believe that the writer has the group's backing, which apparently was not the case with Boyne City Public Schools.

School superintendent Dana Compton told the Courier he was unaware that some employees had sent letters using school stationery, and asked for the names of the employees.

Compton said he felt it was inappropriate for staff members to use school letterhead for personal use and the school had not condoned the actions.

On the other hand, state athletic association director John Roberts argued it was very appropriate and declared Kur owed his organization an apology. Roberts told the Courier that he had been authorized to write the letter using the group's official letterhead.

Sending out letters from school organizations supporting convicted sex offenders, particularly a teacher and her student, causes us serious concern. What message are those organizations attempting to give a judge about to sentence an individual found guilty?

In both situations, we would encourage the governing boards to consider the actions that were taken and consider a written policy addressing the personal use of school stationery.

Regardless of whether or not a policy had existed, common sense should have dictated that inappropriate actions were taken. We're particularly disappointed with the response from the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

All things in nature are attuned to cycle of season

By Roger M. Knutson

Ear to the ground

Time and Life.

No, this is not about two magazines. With the early morning dew and the bite that the breezes are developing, you may have noticed that the hours of daylight are fewer. We have passed the autumn equinox when we get 12 hours of light and 12 hours of darkness and from now on darkness reigns until next spring. It is not surprising that we, with our big and more or less efficient brains, would notice just how long the days are, but it may come as something as a surprise that nearly every living organism on earth also notices and responds. Plants have a built-in clock that is accurate to within minutes in measuring the amount of light and darkness and in telling the plant that the days of wine and roses are over and the days of waiting and resting are about to begin.

Since the 18th century people have noted that some kinds of plants folded their leaves at night. It is still possible to buy plants sold as "prayer plants" that do just that. What the more careful observers at the time noticed was that the leaves began to fold a considerable time before darkness arrived. How did the plant know it was going to be dark in a few hours? Such a plant (even the common garden bean does this), if placed in perpetual darkness, would continue to fold and unfold its leaves in concert with day and night for several days. After that, the plant began to starve and didn't respond properly. A century or more later when dependable artificial light was available, botanists placed plants in constant light and found that they would continue to fold and unfold their leaves just as if they were out in the normal world of day and night. People concluded that plants possessed a built-in clock of some sort that told them just how many hours of daylight and darkness the plant had been living in.

If we whisk such a leaf-folding plant across the country or across the world, it will continue to fold its leaves for some days on the time schedule that applied where it had been living its life before we moved it.

Even microscopic, single-celled organisms behave in ways that tell the careful observer that they know just how many hours of daylight and darkness they have been exposed to. I wish I could tell you just where the clock is located in all of these living things and just how it works, but I cannot. No one can. After several centuries of observation and experiment we know a good deal about the clocks that all living organisms, plant and animal, possess, but we don't know just how they work or precisely where they are located.

The clock is not a miracle. We know enough about it to be sure it is some sort of chemical machine, but we don't know what chemicals. Next time you are out early and thrill to the spectacle of the sun appearing over the horizon, know that every living thing around you is paying some attention to the same event. The cycle of seasons is known to all that lives, not just those of us with a printed calendar.

County property taxes will increase

By B. J. Hetler

> "You're going to gouge me again. You're going to take the extra few dollars out of my pocket."
> — Brian McGillivary
> Charlevoix resident

Property taxes in Charlevoix county are going up beginning with this year's tax bill.

The owner of a home with a taxable value of $100,000 will see an increase in property taxes of $436.

Following a public hearing, five of the six county commissioners voted to levy 4.6 mills for general fund millage, up from 4.2 mills. Commissioners Carl Price, Jim Behling, Phil Johnson, Vic Patrick and Shirley Roloff approved the increase in taxes.

Commissioner Don Smith voted no.

"When I ran, my campaign pledge was for a reduction in taxes for the county," Smith said. "I'm against raising mills. I promised my constituents a cut, so I would like to have a cut, or at least stay the same."

But the board said the increase is within Charlevoix County's authorized millage rate of 4.7. It also said that the jail addition costing approximately $4 million has reduced the general fund balance lower than the county's auditor recommends.

The auditor advises that the county keep six months of operating cash as a backup in the event of unforeseen events. The county has historically kept a healthy fund balance — this year it is over $1 million after allowing for the jail addition.

Resident and former reporter Brian McGillivary was the only citizen to speak at the public hearing on raising the millage. He met the board head-on with questions about its fiscal practices.

"I looked at the last audit," McGillivary said. "Once again the county has underestimated revenue and overestimated expenses, this time by $1 million. You don't have to raise property taxes.

"Consistently, year after year, you underestimate revenue and overestimate expenses to the tune of $1 million or more."

McGillivary said he saw no big debt in the county and doesn't believe the county needs to carry $1 million more in the general fund budget than it needs. He also pointed out that the county has more revenue from the Delinquent Tax Revolving Fund.

Commissioner and chairman Phil Johnson said the board didn't want to ask voters for a bond issue for the jail addition funds.

"There's a real problem with crime," Johnson said. "Instead of asking for a bond approval, we saved for it. This board is conservative."

McGillivary didn't argue about the conservative bent.

"This board has always been downright cheap," he said.

"Can we not say cheap, can we say conservative?" Johnson asked.

Commissioner Behling defended the new mill levy.

"The tax rate is still one of the very lowest in the state," he said.

But McGillivary wasn't consoled.

"You're going to gouge me again," he said. "You're going to take the extra few dollars out of my pocket.

"I thanked you last year when you reduced taxes. I'd like to be able to thank you again ... ."

Contaminated dry-cleaners site will get a cleanup

By B. J. Hetler

The state has designated $170,000 to clean up contamination that occurred some time ago at the site of the former Hooker's Cleaners.

The contamination is a result of PCE, a solvent used in dry-cleaning, that was disposed of improperly.

The site, located at 701 1/2 Bridge St., is still a dry-cleaning establishment, but the current owner, Bradford's Master Dry Cleaners, properly disposes of the solvent.

Bradford's did not create the contamination and is not liable for it, said Elaine Pelc of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ).

An MDEQ investigation found PCE concentrations in the soil and groundwater exceeding acceptable standards. The levels are threatening down-gradient surface waters of Round Lake, Jon Hansen of State Rep. Andy Neumann's office said.

MDEQ is monitoring Round Lake with wells it has placed near the Beaver Island ferry dock. So far the levels of PCE are within the department's criteria, Pelc said.

"It's not a risk to Round Lake and its ecosystem," she said.

But, the level of contamination "is high enough for concern" at the source area on Bridge Street, Pelc said.

"We'll treat the source area to reduce the level so it doesn't continue to migrate to Round Lake," she said.

The cleanup is scheduled to begin in the spring. MDEQ is working with a consultant to design a system to remove the contamination. Pelc said there would not be a disruption of business in the area.

Carlson captures council seat

Carlson said he took some time to think it over before running. He and his wife, Lisa, have a 4-year-old daughter and are expecting another child in January. But he said he believes he can do the job on city council and still have time for his family. He also runs his own construction firm.

Carlson said he loves the Charlevoix area and wants to be a part in decision-making. He and his family were away from Charlevoix for several years, and he said he appreciates the area even more now.

"I want to preserve the beauty, and help take us into the future," Carlson said. "We don't want to spoil what we have here."

City council members up for re-election in the other two wards and the city clerk were uncontested and retained their seats in this year's election.

Voter turn-out was light, with under 800 out of 2,418 voters coming to the polls.

Schreiber named Acacia's Sailor of the Quarter

Petty Officer Steven J. Schreiber was recently selected as U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia's Sailor of the Quarter for July 1-Sept. 30.

The distinction marks Schreiber's exceptional job performance as well as the noteworthy dedication he has demonstrated toward his shipmates and the Coast Guard.

The Sailor of the Quarter award recognizes one individual who has excelled in every aspect of performance as determined by his shipmates. The coveted selection represents the best of the best for a given quarter in terms of job performance and embodying the Coast Guard's core values of honor, respect and devotion to duty.

Schreiber reported aboard the Acacia in March, 1997. As an engineer, his primary duties revolve around maintaining the ship's propulsion plant and auxiliary machinery in fully operational condition. He is also responsible for operating the ship's hydraulic boom during buoy-tending operations.

He is also an active member of Acacia's morale committee and fulfills the duties of the ship's store operator. During his time on board, Schreiber has been a key player in organizing Acacia's annual Halloween Ghost Ship.

Originally from Winona, Minnesota, Schreiber joined the Coast Guard in December, 1992. After attending basic training, he was assigned for a one-year tour of duty at a Loran station in Japan. He then spent three years at a Coast Guard small boat station in Honolulu. Now, after almost seven years in the Coast Guard, he is planning on giving up life on the seas to pursue employment in the civilian sector. He plans to return to his hometown of Winona to work as a locksmith.

Middle school students get a taste of working world

Charlevoix Middle School students recently have had opportunities to ponder what is ahead.

On Oct. 14, career day was held for sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders. Each classroom was filled with students interested in discovering more about a specific career. They listened to speakers from the workforce focus on what their jobs involve and the training required for their particular field.

Those exploring computer careers went on-line with graphic designer Laurie Lesser Hodgson in the school's computer lab. Sports medicine representative Amy Bartling hooked kids' wrists up to instruments that stimulated their hand nerves — not at all 'unnerving' for the grinning students. Halls were buzzing afterwards with the names of famous people that flight attendant Francie Martin said she had served high in the sky. Diane Huff kept the interest of her roomful of potential lawyers as she related her career path to the students' lives.

Beyond doubt, some seeds of, "Wow, I could do that" were planted in the kids' fertile minds.

Speakers related how the school classes connect to the workplace. Everyone heard the news: School counts and English, math, and science are important on the job. In addition, all eighth-graders had the chance to view "The Interviews," an amusing role-play contrasting good and bad interviews — useful input for that upcoming summer job.

A second opportunity for some students was a day at Raven Hill Discovery Center, exploring science careers. Hands-on interactions were the order of the day as they administered IVs on dummies, bored for soil samples, trampled through the woods exploring ecology, and even stroked the enormous resident snake, an experience more appealing to some than others!

Groups gather for Watershed Ramble

Grassroots conservationists from around the Lake Charlevoix Watershed gathered recently for the Watershed Ramble, during which participants updated each other on their activities and goals.

Friends of the Boyne River president Tom Sheets led the group along the Boyne River below the Boyne River Dam. He said that trout need cold water fisheries in order to survive.

He said that data recently gathered by his group show conclusively that elevated water temperatures cannot support trout populations in the lower reaches of the river. This has affected the Jordan River and other streams in the Lake Charlevoix Watershed also.

Elevated water temperatures are the result of rivers becoming shallow when stream bank erosion and road construction fill rivers with sand and sediment.

A goal of Friends of the Boyne River is to stop additional sand and sediment from entering the River and to work with private citizens as well as civic and governmental agencies to restore the fishery.

The tour proceeded to Deadman's Hill, and to East Jordan where John Richter showed participants around the new Jordan River Watershed Center. That part of the tour included an introduction to the State Land Reserve Act, which will protect public lands within the Jordan River State Forest Boundary.

Jo Ann Beemon of the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy led a tour of the new Jordan River Sedgemarsh Preserve. Steve Hansen of the Lake Charlevoix Association, gave a history of the buoys at the Ironton Narrows, an overview of riparian rights on the Great Lakes and inland lakes and rivers, and an update on the cleanup activities at DME on Ferry Road in Charlevoix.

OF BLESSINGS

By Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Some things are not as they appear.

A story is told of a woman who was awaiting her flight at an airport one night who had several hours to wait. She found a book in one of the airport shops and also purchased a bag of cookies at the checkout counter. She dropped into an open seat, became engrossed in her book, and began to munch from the bag of cookies beside her. Before long she noticed that the man beside her was occasionally reaching into the bag and taking some cookies. She tried to ignore the insensitive thief and not create a scene.

As the minutes ticked by, and the stranger kept helping himself to the cookies she became more aggravated by his impertinence. She thought to herself, "If I weren't so nice, I'd blacken his eye". Each time she took a cookie, he took one too. Finally, only one was left. She wondered what he would do. Finally, with a smile on his face and a nervous laugh, he took the last cookie, broke it in half, offered her one piece and ate the other. She snatched it from his hands and thought ... oooh brother, this guy has some nerve and he's rude. Why didn't he even show her some gratitude!

She was relieved to hear her flight called as she gathered her things and headed to the gate. She boarded the plane, found a seat, and reached into her bag to get the book and continue reading. She gasped with surprise when she noticed the bag of cookies she had bought. If mine are here, she moaned in despair, the others were his and he had tried to share. Too late to apologize, she realized that she herself had been the insensitive, rude, ungrateful thief.

How many times in our lives have we absolutely believed that something was a certain way only to later discover that what we believed was true ... was not? How often have we observed another's actions and judged their motive, only later to discover that we were wrong? How often have we heard a comment about someone (called gossip), embellished it a little out of our own prejudices, and passed it on, only to learn that what we heard (and what we added) were not really true?

The New Testament in Contemporary Language, The Message, paraphrases Ephesians 4:32 this way; "Make a clean break with cutting, backbiting, profane talk. Be gentle with one another, sensitive. Forgive one another as quickly and as thoroughly as God in Christ forgave you." May these principles guide our actions, and our responses.

St. Mary sleepout hopes to raise awareness of homeless problem

The first Homeless Awareness Sleepout is scheduled for Nov. 12-13 at the parking lot beside St. Mary of the Assumption Parish.

The purpose is to raise the awareness about the realities and the causes of homelessness. It is an evening for the church community to come together to unite in prayer for the plight of the homeless and to become educated about the situation.

The sleepout targets youth in junior and senior high youth ministry programs. One adult chaperone must be provided for every eight youths. Covenant House of Michigan, an assistance center for youths with nowhere else to turn, will also be a part of the evening. Three Covenant House representatives will be on hand to share stories of working with homeless youth.

For more information, call Patty Furtaw, 547-6438.

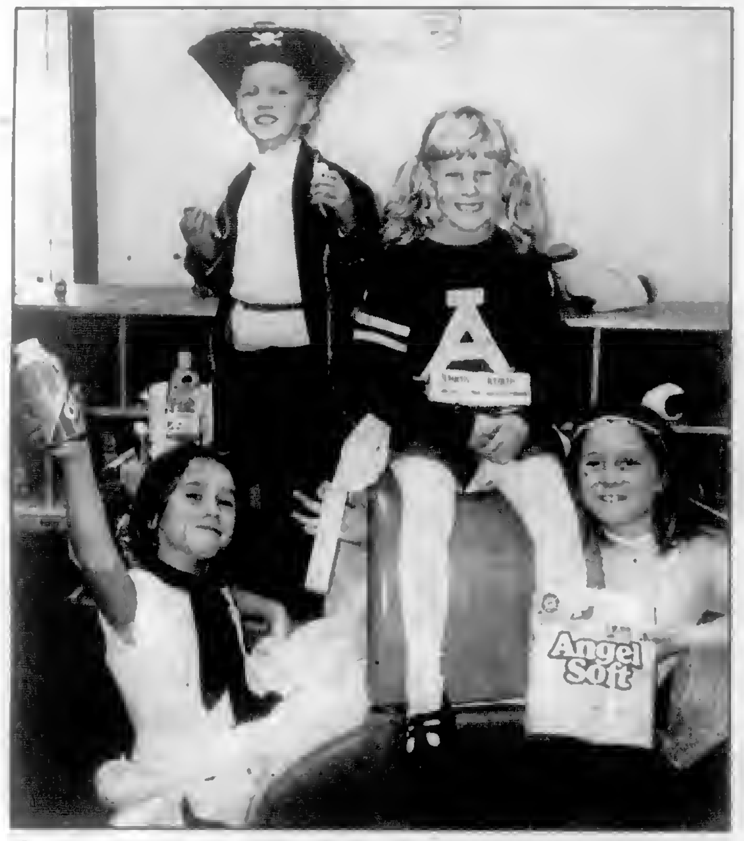
A different kind of trick or treating



Four youngsters participated in Early Head Start Halloween. They are pirate Christopher Young, cheerleader Katie Young, Katie Withrow, a 1950s bopper, and angel Rebecca Jadwin. (Photo by Ginger Winter)

Special to the Courier

Most Charlevoix residents expected the arrival of ghosts and goblins on Sunday, Halloween, but for certain homes on and near Prospect and Dixon streets, four trick or treaters got a head start on Saturday. Make that an Early Head Start.

Early Head Start is an offshoot program of Head Start, a program implemented more than 30 years ago by Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency, which provides families with life's basic needs. Early Head Start is designed to help pregnant women and families with infants and children up to 3 years old. It has been in Charlevoix for a little more than two years. Head Start programs serve more than 100 children in Charlevoix County.

Eager to help, and to have a little fun in the process, the gang of four dressed as if it were Halloween night. Katie Young, 7, dressed as the cheerleader; her brother, Christopher, 5, the pirate; Rebecca Jadwin, 8, the angel; and Katie Withrow, 9, the '50s bopper.

The group scurried from house to house on an unusually warm and beautiful fall afternoon. With customary candy bags in hand, they were to harvest treats of a different kind. The merry band secured a pirate's booty of everyday household items such as soap, shampoo, cleaning supplies, toilet paper and paper towels. The three older girls ran from house to house while the little pirate tag-along kept tripping over his big boots, several sizes too large, trying to keep up with his older sister and her friends.

Head Start participants seek different kinds of treats

They slowed only to munch the candy a few kind souls gave out as little treats for their efforts.

"We go to church members' houses for items," John Young, father of the cheerleader and the pirate, said. "We put a notice in the newsletter and make an announcement right before we do this."

The former electrical engineer currently works on the home front and may possibly return to college teaching when the kids are older. On this particular occasion, however, he was covered in a white sheet with two cut holes for the eyes.

"This is a tie-in with outreach (type programs) in the First Congregational Church," said John Young of the informal program that he and his wife, Dr. Anna Young, supervise. "We have a program for the older kids that do some activities for fun and some activities for service. Last year, this was one of our first activities for the younger kids. We did caroling and some other things, but the trick or treating did so well we thought we'd do it again this year."

Anna Young, a seven-year veteran of the East Jordan Health Center, dressed in navy overalls with a wild shirt and wore her hair in rainbow-colored curls. A painted smile and red nose finished her look. After a little more than an hour working the neighborhood, the ghost, the clown, the cheerleader, the pirate, the angel, and the '50s bopper delivered the goods to the Early Head Start Child Development Center on U.S. 31 north.

Head Start Team Coordinator, Phyllis Hess, and Patty Clark, Early Head Start Child and Family Specialist, greeted them at the door and invited the crew inside to fortify themselves with donuts and apple cider.

Clark, also a professional storyteller, entertained the small group as her personal thank you. She played the dulcimer, sang a song, then told a story about a magic pumpkin with handmade props that she had sewn herself.

After sitting spell-bound while lost in her tale, the smiles on the kids' faces and light in their eyes told yet another magic story: The one where the giver receives much more than the receiver.

For more information on Head Start programs to either volunteer time, donate items, or benefit from the services, please call Patty Clark, 547-1755, or Phyllis Hess, 547-1141.

Harbor Industries plans $12 million expansion

By B. J. Hetler

Harbor Industries Inc. is expanding its Charlevoix facility at its present site, near the airport.

The company met with city council members on Monday to ask the city to sell two parcels of land to it for the expansion. Council unanimously approved the sale of the eight acres of land for $470,000, one on the north end of the company and one on the south end. Added to the seven acres on which the facility sits, the company ground will cover 15 acres.

Harbor Industries' director of managing resources, Tim Parker, made a presentation of expansion plans.

"It's been two years of efforts by lots and lots of people," he said.

The company will increase its square footage from the present 150,000 square feet, to more than 283,000 square feet. It will construct the new facility over the existing structure.

Almost four times the size of usable space will be created. Two phases are planned. The first phase involves more than 180,000 square feet and development of the north parcel. The second phase covers approximately 93,000 square feet on the south parcel.

Parker said the company will build an aesthetically-pleasing new facility.

"We're planning on nice landscaping," he said. "We're concerned about a nice entrance into the city."

The new building will sport plenty of glass, both for a pleasing appearance and so that employees have a view of the outdoors, Parker said.

"It'll be a drastic improvement to what's there now," he said. "It'll be a showpiece."

Harbor Industries is a woodworking entity. It designs, manufactures and sells racks for store products. Familiar fixtures are the racks found in greeting card stores, used to hold cards, wrapping paper and such.

Another product is the interactive displays that hold tapes and CDs and allows customers to listen to musical samples before making a purchase.

Harbor Industries' customers include Sears, Kmart, Phillip Morris USA, and Nissan Motors.

The company was founded in 1946 in Grand Haven. It has been in Charlevoix for 18 1/2 years.

"We've seen unprecedented sales growth in the last few years," Parker said.

The company expects that the expansion will create about 150 jobs, most in manufacturing, but some in administration.

Along with Harbor Industries funding of the estimated $12 million expansion, the Michigan Economic Development Corporation is funding $1.2 million with a community development block grant for infrastructure. A $75,000 Economic Development Job Training Grant and a six mill State Education Tax abatement is also planned.

The company will ask the city for a 10 percent match of the block grant as required by the state, and will seek a tax abatement of local property taxes.

Parker said the company hopes to break ground in spring 2000. Phase I completion is scheduled for fall 2000. Project completion is planned for fall 2002.

Two Rayders head to state meet

By Andy Sneddon

Two Charlevoix High School cross country runners will participate in their respective state meets Saturday at Michigan Speedway.

Liz Ulrich, a freshman, and Zack Hopkins, a sophomore, will partake in the girls' and boys' Class C state meets, respectively.

"They're both right on the edge (of medaling)," coach Ken Plude said of Ulrich and Hopkins. "They've got to come down (in time) a little bit if they're going to make it. They're right there."

Ulrich and Hopkins earned spots at the state meet by virtue of their finishes at the regional last week at Elk Rapids. Ulrich was fourth in the girls' race, Hopkins seventh in the boys' race. Both earned medals.

Both Rayder teams just missed qualifying for the state meet. Defending state champion East Jordan finished with 57 points to win the boys' event, followed by Benzie Central (91), McBain (95), Mason County Central (117) and the Rayders (151). The top three teams advance to the state meet.

Maple City Glen Lake won the girls' team title with 90 points, followed by Benzie Central and Suttons Bay (106 each) and the Rayders (111).

Ulrich came in at 20 minutes, 46 seconds in the girls' race, placing fourth. Lauren Fairbanks of Rogers City won the race in 19:16, followed by Chase Edwards of Maple City Glen Lake (19:54) and Lena Wolf of Mason County Central (20:00). Fairbanks and Edwards are freshmen, while Wolf is a junior.

"Liz had an exceptional race," Plude said, adding that Ulrich has been impressive all season. "She's a find. She's coachable, loves running, loves competing — there's a bright future there."

Also for Charlevoix, Laura Schairbaum placed 21st in 21:52, followed by Winter Kyvik, 25th, 22:00; Heather Probert, 30th, 22:21; Erika Kammermann, 36th, 22:36; Tiffany Fisher, 53rd, 23:34; and Amy Kurtz, 69th, 24:26.

Schairbaum "just missed going to the state meet by 3 seconds," Plude said. "She was 21st and the top 20 individuals get to go."

Schairbaum, Kyvik, Kammermann and Fisher are seniors. Kurtz and Probert are sophomores.

Jake Flynn of Benzie Central, the two-time defending state Class C champion, won the boys' regional race in 15:44. Hopkins came in at 17:15, and his seventh-place finish was better than expected, Plude said.

"Going into it, he was ranked about 12th," Plude said. "He beat some guys that he had never beaten and it looked like they had their normal races."

Plude said going into the regional that the Rayders were in the mix with about seven teams with the potential to finish in the top three and reach the state final.

"For awhile there it looked like we could pull it off," he said. "McBain, that was the team that looked like it had the least chance, but they ran exceptional.

"It was a good team effort. We hit our goal (fifth place in the regional) which we set at the beginning of the year and the boys are pretty proud of that, we had a good season. It's too bad we're not in another region, because we'd be going to state."

Charlevoix runners and their places and times at the regional: Gordie Selph, 27th, 18:09; Josh Popenhagen, 33rd, 18:27; Luke Whitley, 43rd, 18:47; Jon Tebeau, 51st, 19:01; Zack Bajos, 56th, 19:14; Jerred Hodge, 82nd, 20:17.

Hodge overcame severe tendinitis in his right leg to run on Saturday, Plude said.

"He held on enough to make the varsity team last week and somehow finished the race," Plude said.

Plude praised his seniors, Hodge, Whitley and Tebeau. Hopkins, Selph, Popenhagen and Bajos are sophomores.

"I think they set a good example for these young guys," Plude said, adding that Tebeau "did an exceptional job of leading this group this year as far as making them do the little things to keep them focused. Jon took them under his wing, he really brought them together."

Rayder girls' basketball team heating up at the right time

Charlevoix High School girls' basketball coach Jason Otter has said from Day One that he expects the Rayders to be a better team in November than it was in August.

So far, his prediction looks right-on.

The Rayders got 19 points from Meghan Vogel and 10 from Leslie Hoffman on Saturday in topping East Jordan, 56-49, in a Lake Michigan Conference game at East Jordan.

The victory avenged a bitter one-point loss the Red Devils hung on the Rayders a month ago. Charlevoix is 7-10 overall, 3-6 in the league.

Earlier last week, Charlevoix played league heavyweight Harbor Springs very tough before succumbing, 63-58, at home.

Harbor Springs is 14-2 overall and 9-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference. The Rams are vying for their fourth straight league championship and have won regional titles in two of the last three seasons. They have not lost a league game since 1996, when they shared the conference crown with Kalkaska.

Christi Shibata, an all-stater, scored 21 points as did Sarah Adelaine to lead Harbor past the Rayders.

Charlevoix trailed 33-31 at halftime and 49-45 after three quarters.

Hoffman scored 19 points, Vogel had 14 and Kerstin Larsen 11 for the Rayders. Vogel also had 10 rebounds and Larsen dished out five assists.

Against East Jordan, the Rayders trailed 26-25 at halftime, but started quickly in the third quarter and seized the lead for good.

"Charlevoix scored six, eight points off their press — we went from one up to five down in like the first minute of the third quarter," East Jordan coach Steve Hines said.

Rachel Boss scored 12 points to lead East Jordan, which is 9-8 overall, 4-6 in the league.

The Rayders could overtake East Jordan and Boyne City in the league standings and finish third. They played host to Traverse City St. Francis on Nov. 2 and are scheduled to play at Kalkaska on Thursday, Nov. 4. Both are league games the Rayders are capable of winning. They beat St. Francis by three points at St. Francis in their first meeting, and they hammered Kalkaska by 40 points in their first matchup.

The Rayders then play host to Boyne City in their regular-season and home finale on Tuesday, Nov. 9. That game could very well determine which school finishes in third place in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Rayder JV team 10-7

The Charlevoix junior varsity girls' basketball team split its last four games, and stands 10-7 entering the stretch run of the season.

On Saturday, the Rayders fell to East Jordan, 42-37.

Chelsea Newcomb scored 13 points and Kelly Ward added eight to lead the Rayders. Ward also grabbed 19 rebounds. Jackie Haley led East Jordan with 10 points.

Earlier last week, the Rayders topped Harbor Springs, 58-52. Newcomb scored 16 points and Krista Swenor added nine and seven rebounds for the Rayders. Kati Swenor had five steals. Erin Long scored 16 points to pace the Rams.

In the previous week, the Rams downed Elk Rapids, 63-42, before falling to Gaylord, 59-57.

Newcomb scored 22 points and Kelly Zimmerman added 13 in the victory over Elk Rapids. Kate Madison had eight rebounds and Krista Swenor six steals for the Rayders. Erika Morris scored 14 points for the Elks.

Krista Swenor scored 16 points and had six boards in the win over Gaylord. Zimmerman added 10 points, Kati Swenor had eight and Elissa Wood grabbed six rebounds. Krista Swenor also added five steals.

The Rayders are 7-2 in the conference. They play at Kalkaska on Thursday, Nov. 4, and play host to Boyne City in their season-finale on Tuesday, Nov. 9.

'Diplomats' coming to town

The Charlevoix High Basketball programs are hosting the Harlem Diplomats, a traveling basketball show, 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 9.

The Diplomats model themselves after the world-famous Harlem Globetrotters and play hundreds of games a year. They will play a team comprised of Charlevoix Public Schools faculty.

Tickets are available at the main office at Charlevoix High School or at the gate. Advanced tickets: Adults, $5; students sixth-grade through 12th, $4; children fifth-grade and under, $3. At the gate: Adults, $6; students sixth-grade through 12th, $5; children fifth-grade and under, $3.

Man faces trial on charges of bilking elderly Charlevoix County couple

An ex-con, who won the trust and fondness of an elderly Charlevoix couple, was ordered to stand trial in 33rd Circuit Court for allegedly cheating them out of their property.

Kent Arland McNeil, 40, of Bellaire, faces up to 15 years in prison if convicted of charges of false pretenses-$20,000 or more, and being a habitual offender-second offense.

McNeil is accused of cheating Paul Lambert Sr., 90, and his wife Evelyn, 84, out of their land in Charlevoix County and out of valuable personal property.

Authorities allege McNeil tricked the Lamberts into selling him their land and house on Loeb Road in Marion Township, and another 80 acres on U.S. 31 near Burgess Road in Hayes Township.

McNeil allegedly convinced the Lamberts that the local sheriff was out to get them and they should leave the state.

The Lamberts told the court at a preliminary hearing in district court on Oct. 26 that they feared for their lives. They said they left the state in September 1998, with only the clothes they were wearing.

One of the couple's adult children testified about the long and close relationship McNeil had with Paul Lambert.

"He treated Kent like a son," Ellandah (Lambert) Wolf said. "He trusted him with all his heart."

McNeil promised he would send their personal items to them in North Carolina where they planned to stay. But, other than some books and photo albums, McNeil has not done so, according to testimony.

McNeil remains free from custody on a surety bond, ordered to have no contact with the Lamberts and their family.

McNeil, formerly of East Jordan, was convicted of kidnapping and extortion in Emmet County in January 1988.

He pleaded guilty and served less than 10 years on two concurrent prison terms of 13-20 years.

McNeil was released from state prison on parole status in 1997, to a town in Ohio. He returned to Northern Michigan in 1998 and has been living in the Bellaire area.

The case will be set for a scheduling conference with Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas in preparation for trial.

Getting ready

Police caution drivers to beware of deer

It's that time of year again: Car-deer crashes are on the rise in the area.

Over a recent two-day period, Michigan State Police at Petoskey said they handled six car-deer collisions.

Car-deer collisions often result in serious injury or even death. Too often motorists are injured while taking evasive action to avoid striking a deer, resulting in a collision with a fixed object or another vehicle.

The following are some interesting facts for motorists to keep in mind:

- The majority of car-deer collisions occur during the months of October, November and December. However, these collisions occur every month of the year, so always stay alert.
- Most car-deer collisions occur between 6 p.m. and midnight, so be especially cautious during this time of the day.
- Most car-deer collisions occur on rural two-lane roadways.
- Deer are found even in highly populated areas.

Police advise motorists to keep their eyes on the road, never drink and drive, always wear a safety belt, and consider the following tips to help avoid a car-deer collision:

- Use special caution in those areas marked with deer crossing signs.
- If you see one deer, expect there will be others. Slow down and stay alert.
- Do not swerve your vehicle to avoid striking a deer. It is better to strike a deer than another vehicle or a fixed object.
- Continually scan the fields and area adjacent to the roadway for deer. Often you can see them approaching the roadway and can slow down.
- During hours of darkness use your bright lights when no traffic is approaching. The high beams will illuminate the eyes of deer on the roadway or approaching the roadway much sooner, allowing a greater reaction time.
- Always drive at a safe and prudent speed.

SCRAPBOOK

Town celebrates fall of Keiser

People go wild with joy over announcement; business suspended, school closes, whistles blow, bells ring, city turned upside down

EDITOR'S NOTE: Reprinted from the Charlevoix Courier dated Nov. 13, 1918, courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

It is over. The war is a thing of the past. We have won, and Charlevoix most fittingly celebrated the occasion.

Charlevoix gave vent to her joy Monday, upon receiving news that the armistice had been signed by the German envoys at General Foch's headquarters in France.

Rumors received over the Western Union and railroad telegraph lines were circulated on the streets early in the morning, but no official confirmation was received until during the middle of the forenoon.

On account of the false reports received on Thursday of last week and the consequent celebration, people of Charlevoix were at first disposed to place little credence in the reports, taking the attitude of "show us" before we make any demonstration. About 10:00 a.m. W.E. Hampton, chairman of the city war board, received confirmation of the report from Grand Rapids, which was posted in the window of the post office. Within the next hour several telegrams were received confirming the report—then plans were made to celebrate, and celebrate we did.

Just after dinner signs appeared on the doors of business places bearing these words: "Who in h--L wants to work today." And, it seemed to strike the key note of the real situation, for within the next half hour every store on the street was closed and both employer and employee made ready to celebrate in a manner not soon to be forgotten.

People shouted, horns were blown, bells rung, whistles blown and in every way possible the people made their joy known. School was dismissed and the students, both large and small, paraded the streets, singing patriotic songs, waving flags and making noise in every conceivable way.

Automobiles soon made their appearance decorated with flags and filled with occupants beating pans, ringing bells and blowing horns. Other cars drawing a string of old tin pails, wash boilers, furnace pipes, and other noise-making contrivances paraded the streets, adding greatly to the already ever increasing din.

An automobile drawing a dummy labeled Kaiser Bill was dragged up and down the streets, a man riding on a sled alongside of him frequently throwing "the hook" into Bill. Later he was burned.

The celebration continued during the afternoon until about five o'clock, when the tired bunch went home for supper. Between six and seven it was resumed with greater vigor than ever and continued until after ten o'clock. Cannons were fired, shot guns and pistols added to the din, Kaiser Bill was hung in effigy and riddled with shotgun wads. Later he was dragged through the streets until the celebrators were compelled to quit, thoroughly tired out.

False reports that Germany had accepted the terms of the armistice and that fighting had ended threw the city into a delirium Thursday and turned out to be the greatest hoax of recent years.

Official assurances that the report was false failed to check the almost riotous demonstrations which swept over many American cities.

A cable dispatch from France to the United Press by its own president, and picked up and circulated through the country by another agency declared the armistice signed at 11 o'clock, and that fighting ended at two o'clock.

Charlevoix celebrated, but outdid herself when the correct announcement came Monday.

Afloat in Lake Michigan

Captain Charles Allers of St. James has miraculous escape from drowning

EDITOR'S NOTE: Reprinted from the Charlevoix Courier dated Nov. 10, 1920, courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Afloat in the raging seas on Lake Michigan in a boat without power for nearly ten hours, was the experience of Capt. Charles Allers of St. James, Tuesday.

Capt. Allers, his 15 year old son, and Jerry Palmer, left the island about eight o'clock Tuesday forenoon bound for Charlevoix. His son and Palmer were in a fish boat, and Capt. Allers in another boat which was being towed. Shortly after leaving St. James the wind increased in violence until the heavy seas nearly swamped both boats. When about fifteen miles from Charlevoix, the tow line broke. Attempt after attempt was made to pick up the broken line, which was made impossible on account of the high seas. Finally the fish boat continued on its way to Charlevoix, leaving Capt. Allers alone in his boat without motive power of any kind.

Upon reaching Charlevoix, the local coast guards were appealed to for help, and they immediately set out in search of the boat containing Capt. Allers. After a search until dark the coast guard life boat returned without finding any trace of the boat containing Allers.

Father and son arrested after scuffle with police officer

A 36-year-old man and his 14-year-old son were arrested on Monday on one count each of assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest.

The father is also charged with fleeing and eluding and assaulting a police officer, driving under the influence of alcohol and driving on a revoked license.

Sgt. Patrick Avery of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office observed a vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed on Flagg Road, turning onto South Ranney Road in Eveline Township. Sgt. Avery began a pursuit of the suspect vehicle in excess of 80 mph.

The vehicle pulled into a private residence and the driver and the son bailed out of the vehicle and attempted to flee into the residence.

Sgt. Avery pursued the suspects into the house where he attempted to take the driver into custody. The son physically attacked the officer and the father began attacking the officer as well.

Sgt. Avery was able to fend off the attackers for several minutes before East Jordan Police Officer Paul Timmons arrived on the scene.

Both subjects were then taken into custody.

Sgt. Avery was treated for minor cuts and a knee injury at the Charlevoix Area Hospital and released.

Captain survives adrift in Lake Michigan

A patrol of the beach was instituted, but hope for the missing boat was about given up, as it was thought that it would surely capsize and go to the bottom of the lake.

But being afloat alone, in a boat without power, had no terrors for Capt. Allers. When the tow line broke, and he was cast adrift, his chief thought was for the safety of his son and Palmer in the other boat. He took a heavy piece of iron which was in the boat, tied it to a rope, which acted as a drag, and kept his craft headed into the seas. About ten o'clock he landed in the bay near Big Rock point. As the boat struck bottom, two oil barrels in the stern of the boat smashed the cabin, and as they came through the rear, Allers went overboard and walked ashore.

He found a fence near the shore, which he followed, and arrived at the Waller home at about 10:30. After resting awhile, he borrowed a lantern and came to Charlevoix, wet, but still in good condition for a man who is nearly 70 years of age, having undergone the hardships and exposure he had gone through.

Snowmobile ride-in gets council OK

By B. J. Hetler

City council decided to show snowmobilers that the city is snowmobile-friendly by granting a request for parking at Ferry Beach.

The decision made at a Nov. 1 meeting means that snowmobilers will have a place to park their trucks and equipment during a one-day "ride-in," scheduled for Jan. 8, 2000. Council passed a resolution at the request by the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

But the convention bureau's second request requires amending an ordinance and is a more true test of just how snowmobile-friendly Charlevoix will be.

The convention bureau and some downtown businesses want snowmobilers to be able to travel along Belvedere Avenue to get downtown to visit the stores, restaurants and motels.

The downtown area is defined as Dixon Avenue on the north side, State Street on the west side, Hurlbut Street on the south side, and May Street on the east side.

Convention and Visitors Bureau spokesperson Dorian MacGillivray presented to council the signatures of business owners who want the winter business.

Veterans mark their much-deserved day

By B. J. Hetler

Most veterans will say they don't need a pat on the back from people. That's fortunate because it's rare to get one. So rare, that when a veteran is shown appreciation it's usually a surprise.

Russ Strand, who served in the Navy in World War II, and in the Air Force in the Korean War, was surprised recently while taking the ferry to Sugar Island at Sault Ste. Marie.

"This young man on the ferry was collecting fares and when he came up to my car he noticed the veteran's plate," Strand said. "He asked me where I had served, then he put his hand in the window, shook my hand and said 'I want you to know that I really appreciate what you've done.' I was shocked and told him that was 50 years ago. He said it doesn't matter."

As well as appreciation, area veterans Charlie Butcher, Dave Goldstick and Larry Laske, said they would like to see more public patriotism and knowledge of the problems facing veterans.

Butcher served in the Army Air Force in World War II. He is captain of the Combined Color Guard and Rifle Squad, Commander of the

Some defendants dismissed from fireworks lawsuit

A request by defendants in the fireworks lawsuits for their dismissal was partially granted last week by 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas.

Defendants City of Charlevoix, city manager Mike Wiesner, police chief Dennis Halverson and fire chief Doug Carver asked the court for summary disposition, dismissing them from the lawsuit without a trial. They based their request on the law of governmental immunity.

Pajtas said that plaintiffs in the case stipulated that police chief Halverson and city clerk Jo Anne Patrick could be dismissed. The court granted dismissal of the City of Charlevoix and Wiesner.

The court determined that these defendants were protected by governmental immunity.

Another defendant, John Taylor, who was the Venetian Festival chairman in 1997, was dismissed from the lawsuits in July due to insufficient evidence.

But, fire chief Doug Carver remains as a defendant. Judge Pajtas said Carver has some immunity, but does not have "absolute" immunity.

If a jury finds Carver's actions were only ordinary negligence, his immunity would protect him. However, if a jury finds Carver acted with "gross negligence" he would not be protected.

The court noted that the National Fire Protection Association standard at the fireworks was a crowd setback of 840 feet. The barrier at the 1997 fireworks display on Round Lake departed from the recommended standard by some 740 feet, the court said.

One person died, and several people were seriously injured when a firework exploded in its casing, sending shrapnel into the crowd during the Venetian Festival fireworks in 1997.

The remaining lawsuits continue with the court ordering completion of mediation by Feb. 22, 2000. Mediation brings the parties together in an attempt to settle issues before the necessity of a trial.

Charlevoix veterans discuss issues, memories

CHARLEVOIX

American Legion, and Senior Vice Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"I'd like to see more awareness and participation by residents and businesses," Butcher said, suggesting that perhaps more residents and businesses fly the flag in honor of holidays, and that television could carry more thorough coverage of events.

Laske was with the Army Military Police Corps and served in Vietnam. He said he would like to see children taught patriotism.

"It would please me to see more children honor the flag — ensuring that schools go back to the Pledge of Allegiance, some schools don't have it," Laske said. "And at parades and such some kids don't know to put their hand on their heart."

Laske was encouraged when he viewed a television documentary about a teacher who assigned her students to interview their grandparents who had served in the military. The assignment gave the students a new outlook and respect for their grandparents.

Goldstick was in the Air Force and served in Vietnam. He, along with the others, wants people to become involved with the difficulties veterans face.

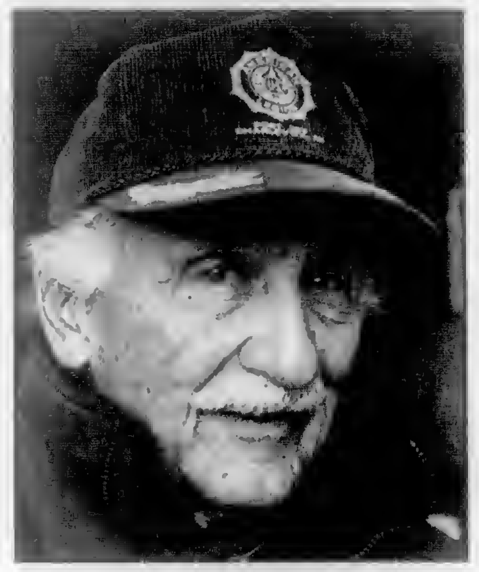
A major problem is the cutbacks in the Veterans Administration (VA), limiting the services for veterans.

When Goldstick needs hospitalization, he must travel at his own expense to a VA hospital in Ann Arbor. Fortunately, once he is there he receives good care, something that is not always true at VA hospitals.

"Most are scary looking from the outside," Goldstick said, adding that the hospitals are badly in need of repair and remodeling and it appears that funds are not available for good care and services.

But, under pressure from the national American Legion, President Clinton on Oct. 20 signed a health care bill for $19 billion — $1.7 billion above the president's request. The funds will help with services and to update equipment, but veterans like Goldstick will still have to travel many hours for hospital treatment.

The veterans say they are concerned about the health problems from Agent Orange, a defoliant used in Vietnam, and about the Gulf War illness. The illness is a result of the drug given to thousands of U.S. military personnel in the Persian Gulf as a defense against nerve-agent attacks.



World War II veteran Russ Strand: "I remember two things in particular that give me a lot of pride in this country." (Photo by B.J. Hetler)

Vietnam veteran Laske says the government isn't doing enough.

"I believe the government masked information regarding the detrimental aspects Agent Orange had on soldiers in Vietnam," Laske said. "They're just posturing until enough time has passed and people forget about it."

Forgetting military service is something the veterans will never do.

"I remember two things in particular that give me a lot of pride in this country," Strand said.

"One is when I heard how the 24th infantry and the Marine Corps in hand-to-hand combat fought back the Chinese and the North Koreans at the 38th parallel.

"The other ... " Strand stops and massages his eyebrows with his hand.

Laske understands. "You can't say it," he says to a nodding Strand.

"The other," Strand begins again, "is when I saw our flag go up at Iwo Jima." Strand was there watching from a landing craft. He couldn't believe the men had made it up the treacherous terrain.

Laske has a memory or two that make his throat catch and his eyes tear. One in particular is his visit to the wall, the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C. Before it was built he was skeptical about the plans.

"I thought, what are they doing? A wall?" he said.

When he saw it for the first time though, "I just cried," Laske said.

The stark beauty of the monument with its thousands of imprinted names of those killed in action changed his mind.

The veterans are cautious about the future of care for them. The best avenue for help that they see is through state and national senators and representatives.

Area veterans will participate in a formation on Veteran's Day, Thursday. The brief event begins on Clinton Street at 10:50 a.m. and will end in East Park at the memorial.

Snowmobiles in town would help business, some say

One of them is Village Inn Pizza owner Pat Henige.

"They should be able to get downtown," Henige said. "But not allowed to roam freely. We should have parking designated downtown, within walking distance to the stores."

Terry Amick, owner of Subway, wasn't so definitive.

"I think it would be fantastic," Amick said. "They can go anywhere they want as far as I'm concerned."

Police Chief Dennis Halverson reviewed the proposal and responded in a letter to city manager Mike Wiesner.

"I would suggest ... that this proposal would drastically liberalize the use of snowmobiles in the city," Halverson said.

He pointed out that although the proposal calls for only one route from the Ferry Beach lot to a downtown parking location, it would be difficult to deny a city resident living on Sheridan Street, for example, the same access to downtown.

Halverson said he has concerns about access to gas stations on Bridge Street.

"I would doubt that the majority of the owners would go back to Ferry Beach, load their sleds, go gas up and then drive back to Ferry Beach to unload," he said. "The temptation would be to access fuel, from downtown or Ferry Beach, via the sidewalks along Bridge Street and M-66."

Halverson said enforcement would be difficult. Although he would not support a total revision of the snowmobile ordinance, he would consider facilitating the Jan. 8 event planned by the convention bureau.

Council asked the city attorney, Jim Young, to research its right to amend the ordinance to permit decisions on snowmobile policy on a case-by-case basis. Young said he will present his findings at the next regular council meeting scheduled for Nov. 15.

Snowmobiles downtown a good idea

EDITORIAL

A proposal to allow snowmobile travel through a portion of the city of Charlevoix deserves serious consideration.

City council has been asked to consider the move in an effort to help area businesses improve their wintertime business.

Dorian MacGillivray, who represents the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, asked the council to change a city ordinance so snowmobiles could travel along Belvedere Avenue and park at a designated location downtown.

The group is working with the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club in trying to drum up more business during the colder winter months.

Charlevoix historically has had a challenging time developing its winter business trade, unlike the summer and fall when tourists flock to one of the state's most beautiful waterfront communities.

Between the traditional resorters and summer visitors, downtown Charlevoix doesn't have a difficult time keeping its businesses alive. The streets and harbor are filled with people and boats.

Winter has been a different story, primarily because most of the downhill skiers and snow enthusiasts tend to stay closer to the slopes in Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Petoskey and Harbor Springs.

Until the recent addition of new lodging spots in those communities, particularly Petoskey, Charlevoix would get some of the overflow.

However, in recent times that story has changed, and the convention and visitors bureau is wisely looking for other opportunities to develop the trade.

Council has agreed to consider the proposal and has decided to allow use of the Ferry Beach parking lot for a "one-day ride-in," an event when families can come into Charlevoix on snowmobiles and spend the day in town.

We know there are some safety issues to consider when looking at the proposal, but we're confident council can work out those issues.

Mother's memorable Thanksgiving

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Some people read the "Gettysburg Address" on the 4th of July. Some people read "Twas the night before Christmas'" on Dec. 24. In my family it is traditional to read a letter every Thanksgiving that my mother wrote many years ago when she lived in Beverly Hills, California. There's always someone who has not heard it before, and I must confess I usually end up laughing so hard that I have to stop reading.

Mother writes: "My day started smoothly. My table is set for seven guests, my daughter, Margot, her husband, Jerry, his mother and our three grandchildren, Walter, age 4, Janet, age 2 and baby Peter. The turkey is in the oven, my famous Bing cherry ring laced with brandy, is in the refrigerator, the red cabbage is on the stove, and I am more than ready, when the phone rings. It is Aunt Jeanette who has just arrived in San Pedro on a cruise boat. She wants to surprise me for Thanksgiving.

"'Wonderful!' I exclaim and reset the table for one more.

"At the appointed hour the doorbell rings and Aunt Jeanette is helping her sister Kate (whom I did not expect) into the living room saying, "Kate had a slight accident on the boat and she needs a doctor right away."

"After numerous calls to emergency rooms and hospitals, we finally arrange for a doctor to see Kate in his office. Upon examination, he arranges for her to go to the Professional Building nearby where they give Kate a sedative, take x-rays and find that she has a broken shoulder.

"In the meantime, daughter Margot arrives with her family and I see Grandma Smith getting out of the car with a bleeding nose. She had slipped getting into the car and fallen on her face. We help her into the house, calm her down and wash her face when the phone rings and the Doctor calls that someone should pick up Kate.

"By this time, Aunt Jeanette has had a couple of Scotches on an empty stomach so she can't drive. Fortunately Jerry offers to go, and when they return I calmly say, 'Let's eat.' When I step into the kitchen I find that 2-year-old Janet has turned the gas on high and the red cabbage is badly burned. Then I hear Walter and Janet screaming. They have locked themselves into the bathroom and can't get out. Someone has to climb through the window, which is stuck. After much hammering and pushing, their mother, Margot, is able to open the window and climb into the bathroom and unlock the door.

"Finally everyone sits down to eat — but not at the dinner table! People eat wherever they feel like eating. After dinner the older children fall asleep and I realize they had picked out the cherries laced with brandy from my fruit ring and they are both slightly tipsy!

"About nine o'clock, with the baby crying for his bottle, Margot and her family decide it is time to leave. But not for long. Now their car won't start. I know it will take too long to wait for the Automobile Club on Thanksgiving Day and I can't face another hour of this togetherness with the family, so I give Jerry my car keys and off they go.

"In the meantime, Aunt Jeanette has soothed her nerves with Scotch, and her sister Kate is bemoaning her mishap. They weep in each others arms. At this point, I don't care. I am tired and all I can think of is going to bed. I gather up bedding for my unexpected guests and finally at two in the morning we are all tucked in for the night."

Mother concludes her letter, "I will remember this Thanksgiving as long as I live. Wouldn't you?"

Preparations under way for Holly Daze

Holly Daze, Charlevoix Area Hospital's annual fund-raiser, occurs the week of Thanksgiving, and organizers are working on this year's extravaganza.

The festivities begin with businesses and individuals donating and sponsoring decorated Christmas trees, which go on display Nov. 22 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Wreaths, decorations, holiday quilts and pillows, along with many other items are also donated for auction. On Nov. 26, the trees are auctioned off to the highest bidder, with the purchasers taking home the entire tree, ornaments, lights and all on Nov. 27. All proceeds benefit the not-for-profit hospital.

Holly Daze committee members are now collecting donated items and organizing this year's week-long fund-raiser.

Items for sale during Holly Daze include poinsettias, gift cards, afghans, Christmas ornaments and a craft room will be filled with handcrafted items for sale. Other items, donated by area businesses, will be sold through silent auction during the event, including a special child's rocking horse, wreaths, toys, candles, gift certificates, and a "mystery" bag from Malice Domestic XI containing a signed program with over 100 autographs from mystery writers and experts from the Malice XI convention, 12 autographed mystery books (including Mary Higgins Clark, Carol Higgins Clark, Joan Hess, Patricia Moyes and Leslie Glass), additional books, mugs, bookmarks, pens, pins, door hangers, programs, and other memorabilia from the convention.

Holly Daze committee members display a few of the many items that will be sold or auctioned at Charlevoix Area Hospital's annual fund-raiser during the week of Nov. 22-27. Obituary

Margaret B. Smith

Margaret B. Smith, 86, of Boyne City, who with her husband owned and operated Gregg Publications of Boyne City for many years, a publisher of newspapers, shoppers and resort publications throughout Northern Michigan, died Tuesday, Nov. 2, at Boulder Park Terrace.

She was born Margaret Bridget Gallagher on Aug. 28, 1913, in St. James, Beaver Island, one of five children of Elizabeth and Andrew Gallagher. Following graduation from the island's high school, she attended Michigan's Nazareth and Aquinas colleges, earning a degree from Aquinas in Grand Rapids.

She then returned to Northern Michigan to work for the state's Old Age Assistance Department, forerunner of today's Family Independence Agency, in Boyne City. It was there she met her future husband, A. Gregg Smith, a native of Boyne, and they were married on March 27, 1941, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

During the war years they resided in the Long Beach and San Francisco areas of California, where her husband was stationed as a naval ship's officer. While stationed in Long Beach, Margaret was employed in the navy's command center, charged with tracking and planning fleet movements throughout the South Pacific war zone. She carried a top secret intelligence clearance, and worked as a special assistant to the center's commander.

After the war, the Smiths returned to Boyne in 1946 to make their home and raise a family of three sons.

In the late 50's Margaret returned to college to earn a teaching degree and certificate from Central Michigan University. In 1960 she and her husband purchased the "Boyne Citizen" a community newspaper.

With a talented and loyal staff they built a multi-publication firm and web printing facility, Gregg Publications, head-quarted in Boyne and publisher of state and national award winning community newspapers, resort and shopping guides in five Northwest Michigan counties. She served as business manager, co-publisher, and in advertising sales for the company that culminated with her retirement in 1977 and sale of the firm.

A longtime secretary and board member of the Boyne City Housing Commission, Margaret was instrumental in the planning and construction of Conkle Development and Litzenburger Place, a public housing project for the elderly that has served the community since 1970.

She has been a resident of Boulder Park, a Charlevoix County facility for the aged, as well as rehabilitative center, since June of 1992. Margaret was preceded in death by her husband, A. Gregg, in September, 1996.

Family survivors include three sons, Michael A. Smith of Ft. Thomas, Kentucky; Dr. Timothy V. (Lynn) Smith, M.D., of Holland, Mich.; Gregory P. (Dee) Smith of Interlochen, Mich.; and four grandchildren, Markelle, of Portland, Ore., Joelle of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., and Keegan and Braden of Holland, Mich.

She is also survived by two brothers, John A. Gallagher of Charlevoix and Grand Haven, Mich., Captain (ret.) Daniel E. Gallagher (Shirley) of Cocoa Beach, Fla.; and a sister, Elizabeth Wilmont of Westminster, Calif., and many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by a sister, Mary McDonald of Charlevoix; a sister-in-law, Lillian Gallagher of St. James, Beaver Island and Charlevoix; two brothers-in-law, J.C. "Mac" McDonald of Charlevoix and Warren "Chub" Wilmont of Westminster, Calif.

A memorial mass to celebrate her life was held on Saturday, Nov. 6, at St. Matthew's Catholic Church, Boyne City, where the Smiths were longtime parish members. Fr. Frank Partridge, parish rector, celebrated the mass.

The family asks that memorials be directed to: Frs. Deters/Kerner Scholarship Fund, St. Matthew's Catholic Church, Boyne City; Litzenburger Place, c/o the City of Boyne City; Boyne City Historical Society.

In accordance with her wishes, cremation has taken place.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Mark Hofstra
Associate Pastor of Community Reformed

Hey everyone, here is a story of something special that happened while I was at the Evangelism Conference at Willow Creek in Chicago.

I called my wife, Kimberly, one of the nights upon returning to the hotel. She told me that our 3-year-old son, Pieter, said the most interesting thing during breakfast. He said that he went outside and saw God come down to him on a star.

Kimberly asked if God said anything. Pieter said that God said, "I love you Pieter." And Pieter said, "I love you too God." Kimberly asked if God said anything else. Pieter responded, "Oh yeah. God said that He's coming down."

When I hung up the phone I turned to my devotional (Face to Face, Vol. 1) and this was the next passage for my reading: "The hour has come for me to wake up from sleep, for my salvation is nearer now than when I first believed. The night is nearly over; the day is almost here. Therefore may I cast off the works of darkness and put on the armor of light" (Romans 13:11-12).

Now I'm not interested in scaring anyone into the kingdom of God or into action on behalf of King Jesus. But the way God brought the Evangelism Conference, Pieter's vision and this reading in my devotions together has called me to be more urgent about sharing the Good News of Jesus Christ.

When I came home, I asked Pieter about the vision in a manner attempting to not coax a desired story from him. He recounted the same story. I asked Pieter what God was wearing. He said, "A shirt. A white one."

Another passage that came to mind is, "In the last days it will be, God declares, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions and your old men shall dream dreams" (Acts 2:17).

May God wake us all up and conform our hearts to His, for God desires that everyone should be saved and come to the knowledge of the Truth (1 Timothy 2:4). And what is that truth? That, "there is one God; there is also one mediator between God and humankind, Christ Jesus, himself human, who gave himself a ransom for all" (1 Timothy 2:5-6a).

Grace and Peace friends.

Long journey, growing family

Charlevoix man, wife, son travel to China to adopt infant

EDITOR'S NOTE: First of two parts. Part two will be published in the Nov. 17 Charlevoix Courier.

By Ginger Winter
For the Charlevoix Courier

"I awoke at 5 a.m. this Sunday morning almost as though someone had shaken me awake with that little quick charge of urgent adrenaline. I lay in bed only for a moment and sense a rather potent and spiritual conversation going on in my head and heart."

So began one of 13 letters e-mailed to family and friends from 43-year-old Charlevoix dentist Dr. John Merrill in China last month.

This particular e-mail was written on the day Merrill, his wife Jan, 45, and their oldest son Jonathan, 13, would meet the newest addition to their family of six. The Merrills' two-week trip to China was for one purpose — adopting a little girl.

Jan has strong ties to China. Her great-grandparents were missionaries in the late 1920s outside of Peking (now Beijing). They raised eight children in those pre-communist days. One of those children, a daughter, met, fell in love with, and married an American missionary.

The couple founded a school for children in an age when foot binding was still common practice for infant girls in China. Girls were not allowed to attend if their feet were bound. It became clear that this was the best way to influence and perhaps slow the inhumane treatment of girls. Parents who wished their daughters to get an education began to stop the practice.

Jan's mother was born in China during those turbulent times. With those strong family ties, Jan says she feels compelled to help the people of China, especially the girls.

The Chinese government, in effort to control the population, has limited parents to having one child, usually boys. Infant girls are abandoned at an alarming rate, with lucky ones going to orphanages. Families like the Merrills, who feel a moral and sacred duty to help, adopt the luckiest ones.

Besides Jonathan, the Merrills have three other children: David, 7; Zachary, 5 and Jaclyn, 3. They are an active family. Between school and church activities, they enjoy water activities at their Lake Louise cottage during summer weekend trips. Hiking, biking and wintertime sports round out the year.

The opportunity to adopt a Chinese child (Jon and David are adopted) meant this family would never be the same.

The reality of China can be difficult. Thick blankets of coal-fed pollution cover everything. Not many living things thrive there. Even a colorful mound of red and yellow flowers in a peaceful garden setting looks familiar enough from a distance. Closer inspection reveals the flowers are still in their pots, with roots never destined for the soil. It's a temporary garden, a residual and dying reminder of China's celebrating the birth of communism 50 years ago.

"Today I meet and welcome with all that a father holding his new baby for the very first time enjoys. The pregnancy has endured 18 months. The ultrasounds have been little messages from agencies and governments. The listening of heartbeats and feeling someone kick are continually those of my own," Merrill's e-mail read.

Barbershop group seeks new singers

The Windjammers Barbershop group will host an Open House at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 23 at the United Methodist Church, 104 State Street, in Charlevoix.

All men and boys are invited. The event includes the "4 Man Fishing Tackle Choir," one of Michigan's premier quartets, which will provide entertainment and its members will share the benefits of their stage experiences.

The Windjammers were formerly known as the Gaslight Chorus and were originally formed in Boyne City under the name of the Snowbelt Chorus. After spending several years in Petoskey, they relocated to Charlevoix this fall. Last week, the Windjammers Chorus sang for the Men's Fellowship Dinner at the United Methodist Church and plan to support future fellowship events.

The Windjammers has planned a very active calendar for Christmastime, including singing during Petoskey's downtown open house, a visit to the Northern Michigan Hospital, and stops at several homes for the elderly throughout the area.

The Chorus will also be supporting events in Boyne City and Charlevoix during the pre-Christmas celebrations and is already preparing for its Valentine's Day "Say it with Flowers and a Song" program.

Meanwhile, the chorus has also just started a program to bring acapella singing to the students in Charlevoix high and middle schools. This is an extracurricular activity and organizers hope that boys and girls groups will be ready in time to sing at their Christmas school concerts.

The Chorus is seeking more men to join it. For more information, call (231) 238-0300.

Large turnout for board meeting

Lively discussion centers around site selection of new high school

By B. J. Hetler

Aah, Charlevoix. Summer's ended, fall closed out with Applefest, it's time to settle in, get cozy, open up a new book, right? Wrong.

The rumblings you heard weren't snowmobilers downtown — not yet anyway. Those rumblings were coming from Monday night's school board meeting.

Armed with posters to help make his statements, Dr. Jeffrey Porter came to the meeting to address the board and audience.

After direction from board president, Allen Telgenhof, prohibiting any in-depth questioning of board members, the board was ready to give Porter, and anyone else, their allotted time.

Porter has taken issue with the process of site selection for the new high school and with the choice of site.

The site was not on the ballot when the bond issue for new school facilities was voted in 1,440 to 1,340 on Oct. 11. But the board announced its site selection to the public at a board meeting on Sept. 17.

"Public input is important," Porter said. He said he does not believe the public was given enough time or the venue to evaluate the choice for the site. And he says the No. 1 criteria for voters was to keep the high school in town. He called for public discussion by the board to voters.

Porter said he was concerned about the costs associated with the board's choice of land. The costs of sewer, water, heat, the lack of insulating trees, snow removal, and busing of students. He is concerned about the loss of productive farm land from the planned purchase of 74 acres of land.

The site is located on Marion Center Road, between Clark and Veenstra roads. The purchase price is $250,000. The board has not closed on the purchase, but has signed a purchase agreement.

"It will destroy scenic vistas," Porter said. "Marion Center Road is the last bastion of scenic vistas."

He questioned the traffic that would occur in the area, and how senior citizens would get to the high school for after-hour activities.

When Porter's time to speak was up, a couple of audience members volunteered their time to him so he could continue.

At first, Telgenhof denied the requests.

"We're not going to let this meeting turn into a Porter presentation," Telgenhof said. But after being assured that others in the audience would speak on the issue, he relented.

Porter concluded by asking the board to let voters decide on a referendum.

"Let's not have a second-rate site — let's go out and find the best site," Porter said.

Board members made no statements, nor did they ask any questions during the public hearing.

The meeting was attended by approximately 300 residents, many of whom took the mike to state their opinions.

Dave Strawbridge argued that the public was given the necessary information about the land.

"The information was out there and it was a positive vote," he said. "A positive vote is a positive vote."

Shannon Smith said she sees no need to change anything.

"I felt that I was well-informed," Smith said. "I felt I had the information I needed. I continue to support the bond issue that passed. I feel comfortable with what happened."

Others in the audience where supportive of the board, but were still concerned about the site.

"I'm grateful for the new schools for the kids," JoAnne Beemon said. "We needed to come together on this for a long time.

"But, I am concerned about the site. I've studied land use and sprawl. The first two things you do to create sprawl are to put your post office out of town and your schools out of town."

Beemon asked the board to study land use and controlling sprawl.

Stewart Boal spoke for keeping the schools in town.

"The bond issue was great," Boal told the board. "I'm glad it passed. But, you should use the grounds you already have. Rebuild on the land we already have, and keep the schools in town."

Joanne Curtis agreed. The land site was not on the ballot, so the board still had the opportunity to reconsider. There is land available at the current elementary school and the high school, she said.

"Maybe, the board should consider expansion at the grade school and the high school," Curtis said. "I urge the board to seek alternatives to the land (on Marion Center Road)."

But Bill Trubilowicz said the land issue was thoroughly researched. He served on the facilities committee and the committee to pass the bond issue. The board used an extensive list of criteria when looking at land. It came up with the best site available, he said.

"Let's move forward," Trubilowicz urged the audience.

Family travels to China for infant girl

FAMILY

The 18-month period before the Merrills could hold their baby girl, included initial contact with Bethany Christian Services in Grand Rapids, a leader in the number of Chinese adoptions by American parents. The agency helped with endless paperwork.

Finally, on Oct. 15, six couples and two single women adopting children made the emotional trek to China with the Merrills.

Beijing was the first stop. It was the group's chance to recover from the exhausting 13-hour flight from Detroit and play tourist with visits to Tiananmen Square, the Forbidden City and the Great Wall. They discovered a whole other world a world away.

"Today in the early hours of Sunday morning while nearly all those I know are on the other side of the world enjoying the present moments as I know as yesterday."

Nothing would prepare the group for China. No amount of guidebook reading prepares one enough for the traffic — thousands of bikes, cars and pedestrians all competing for limited road space, and the pollution, noise, throngs of people and exotic food.

E-mails to and from friends in the U.S. were their only connection to anything remotely sane.

The Merrill's oldest son, Jonathan, had come along for many reasons. His parents wanted him to witness the adoption process while exposing him to another culture. They also needed his help.

The meeting would take place at their hotel in Nanning, a surprisingly clean, tree-lined city where the skies were clear and blue.

"My future begins with delight and with fear. Today I meet a little girl all of 2 years old. She is waking up for the last time from this little bed with all she knows as home. She too is at a high precipice with everything in her life about to change. I wonder what sounds and sights she takes in clearly today but that will be forgotten forever. The place, the faces and voices, the touch of everything that is familiar and everything from this day forward in her life that will be no more."

Part of the tour was to an orphanage where three of the adopted girls had lived. It was much cleaner and better staffed than expected. Adoption services in China opened to foreigners only eight years ago with joint ventures between China and Hong Kong.

The Merrills fear agencies like the one they visited will shut closed to people like them, as government-funded agencies become more self-sustaining and less dependent on foreign money.

They said orphanage caregivers were loving and attentive. Oddly, they observed that no child seemed more than 6 years old. With non-existent child labor laws and questionable human rights, an unspoken question remained unanswered. Where do all the older unadopted children go?

"In some ways I feel as though God is giving me a treasure. In some ways I feel as though I am stealing the crown jewel, yet in still another I am finding a piece of discarded refuse in which no one else recognizes its awesome value.

"This is a big day, a shining moment, a day when so much changes, when so much begins anew. This is a day when my world becomes much, much bigger and the world itself becomes a little smaller. Today I will meet Wu CaiPon."

Wordsmith and friend remembered fondly

By B. J. Hetler

Chuck Duerr, shown in this 1983 photo, parlayed his love for words to design double acrostic puzzles, which involve solving a clue, usually misleading and with a double meaning. Duerr's double acrostics puzzles were published by Simon & Schuster as "Dur-Acrostics." (Courier file photo)

A family man, businessman and author who died recently will be missed by many.

Charles A. Duerr II, died at his home in Charlevoix on Oct. 20, 1999 at the age of 86. Duerr was a contributing writer to the Charlevoix Courier, submitting his columns, Amos and "Quote ... Unquote:"

Known as Chuck to his friends, he used his love for words to design double acrostic puzzles. Double acrostics are more complicated than ordinary crossword puzzles. Invented in 1934 by Elizabeth Kingsley, acrostics involve solving a clue, usually misleading and with a double meaning. The answer to the clue provides the letters to fill in the crossword puzzle-type square to form a quotation.

Duerr's double acrostics puzzles were published by Simon & Schuster as "Dur-Acrostics."

His daughter, Susan Logie, admired her father's knowledge of words.

"He had a really astonishing vocabulary," she said. "Even a short time before he died, he had an elite dictionary by his bedside.

"His acrostic puzzles will be very missed because people get addicted to them, and there aren't that many people creating them."

His wife of 62 years, Margaret, said he always received plenty of fan mail.

Chuck formed the puzzles by working with small blocks of letters.

"He never got into computers, so he would sit shoving little words around on a table to make the puzzles," Margaret said. "He managed to turn out a lot of them that way."

Fran and Bob Tollas were neighbors and friends of the Duerrs for 30 years.

"He was a very entertaining man," Fran Tollas said. "It was marvelous the things he could do with his mind."

Bob Tollas called Chuck a "gem of a man." His use of words is legendary and the annual Christmas letter he wrote was a highlight for them, Bob said.

"We played golf for years," he said. "He was a great competitor and a good friend. I will miss him."

The Duerrs attended the First Congregational Church. A friend, Dave Smith, said Chuck loved to sing. He was a part of the community men's glee club that meets at the church.

Rev. Phil Schairbaum knew Chuck well.

'Chuck' fondly recalled by family, friends

'CHUCK'

"He was quite active in the church programs," Schairbaum said. "He was very schooled and loved debate. We had terrific exchanges. He would speak about issues that matter, and he wasn't afraid to discuss them.

"When we would get to a point that Chuck would differ from my belief, he would say 'let me think about that.' I very much enjoyed his company."

From a man who engaged in many intellectual and physical activities comes this advice from one of his writings:

> He has the vision and the will to do
> What needs doing for us here today --
> And tomorrow, for folks half a world away --
> Let not his mind be cluttered, nor his eye,
> By what he did or didn't do in days gone by.

Just what do they do with those leaves?

Residents are about to put away their rakes and the city will soon trade its leaf vacuum for a snow plow.

By the time city workers dump the last truckload at the leaf dumping grounds on the south end of town, 4,000 cubic yards of crunched-up leaves will lie in a huge, elongated heap more than 20 feet high.

In another enormous pile next to the leaves of 1999, are the leaves of 1998. These leaves are well into the decomposing stage.

Street superintendent John Martin asks a worker to dig into last year's pile with his front-end loader. He does and steam billows out when the leaves are turned up.

"That's from the heat of the leaves decomposing," Martin said.

The composted leaves eventually end up in a third pile. By this time, the leaves, twigs and other material is rich dirt, used by the city in various ways.

Martin, a fire chief for 10 years, and now with the street department for the last seven years, gives a wry smile as he explains the method for determining which neighborhood gets its leaves picked up first.

"We start on one side of town one year, and on the other side of town the next year," he said.

With more than 26 miles of streets in the city, Martin and his crew keep busy. Three employees and two trucks are out to pick up the leaves, working 10-hour days during the week and five hours on Saturday. When one truck is full, it is driven to the dumping grounds, and the other truck continues to vacuum up the leaves. The trucks continue in this cycle so there is no interruption in collection.

Despite the hours put in by the department employees, residents were still calling city council members because their leaves weren't picked up as soon as they would have liked.

Martin said the department is hiring another worker, making a total of eight employees.

With winter coming on, the new employee will start just in time to help with the city streets, the 10 miles of sidewalks and the parking lots kept clear from snow and ice by the department.

ABOVE: Street department worker Kevin Morrison operates the city's vacuum to pick up neighborhood leaves, a task about to end as winter approaches. LEFT: Steam rises from a pile of decomposing leaves as a worker turns them over with his front-end loader. Within a year or two, the leaves turn into rich soil that the city uses. (Photos by B.J. Iceman, state champion

Todd Freidinger of Charlevoix placed first in the age 15-18 Expert Division in the Iceman Cometh cross-country mountain bike race on Saturday.

The race covered 27 miles from Kalkaska to Traverse City.

Freidinger, a senior at Charlevoix High School, earlier this fall wrapped up the age 24-under Expert Division Michigan Cup Point Series championship when he placed first in the State Mountain Bike Championships at Boyne Mountain.

The point series is based on six races throughout the summer.

Freidinger, 18, is in his fourth year of mountain bike racing.

Freshman Ulrich medals at state meet

Hopkins second sophomore across the finish line

By Andy Sneddon

There is no teacher like experience.

And Charlevoix coaches Ken and Mary Plude hope Liz Ulrich and Zach Hopkins have learned their lessons well. If they have, the dividends will pay off sometime in the next few years.

Ulrich, a freshman, finished 27th at the Class C state girls' cross country meet at Michigan Speedway in Brooklyn on Saturday, while Hopkins, a sophomore, placed 45th in the boys' race.

Ulrich, who took up serious running just about six months ago, finished in a career-best 20 minutes, 9.4 seconds. Her finish earned her a medal — one of her goals — but she fell short on two of her other goals: A top-20 finish to earn all-state honors, and a sub-20-minute clocking.

"She's a great goal-setter," Mary Plude said. "It was definitely a fast race. She went out with the top group and hung with them. Basically, it's a whole different experience (at the state meet) — 200 some people. She'd never been in an invitational that big.

"She did exactly what she was supposed to do."

And she likely will continue doing what she is supposed to do, Plude said.

"She is extremely coachable," Plude said, adding that not only will Ulrich benefit from her trip to the state meet, but her teammates will as well.

"By her standing up there on the stand with a Charlevoix sweatshirt on" Charlevoix's other runners, almost all of whom went to Brooklyn to cheer on their teammates, saw what a feat a state medal actually is, Plude said.

"That meant so much," she said. "Liz and Zach both said it was great because their teammates were there every step of the way.

"Many of them were seniors who aren't going to go back, but they came down knowing the significance of what it holds for the future."

Both Ulrich and Hopkins started strong, Plude said, but faded a bit in the middle of their respective races.

"She (Ulrich) got a little nervous after the (first) mile," Plude said, adding that it is not uncommon for first-time state-meet participants to go through such an experience. "It's the excitment and everything. All of a sudden it kind of hits you, it's the state meet and a few thoughts go through your head.

"Both she and Zach went through it and both broke through it. They're so coachable and they responded and listened."

Both Ulrich and Hopkins survived their mid-race slumps to pass many runners and improve their respective standings. Hopkins, in fact, passed some 50 runners in the final mile and a half, Plude said, to finish 45th in a career-best 16:59.8.

"He'd never run in the 16:00s," Plude said. "At first I think he was a little disappointed because he wanted to be a medalist also, but when we looked at the numbers ..."

Just two underclassmen — one sophomore, one freshman — finished ahead of Hopkins.

"Once you look at that, you realize how good he did," Plude said. "He's a lot happier now that he's looking back and realizing that 'I ran 16:59.'"

Plude said the entire experience will help the Charlevoix cross country program.

"Now they understand it," she said. "By getting out there and not just running, but getting out there and racing — now they want to come back and get the team back to state."

Kalamazoo Hackett won the girls' team title with 107 points. Pittsford was second with 178. Caryn Waterson of Benzie Central won the race in 18:55.8.

Allendale unseated defending boys' state champion East Jordan, 104-124. Jake Flynn of Benzie Central won the boys' race in 15:15.6. It was his third consecutive state title.

Frosh 12-3 heading into season finale

The Charlevoix High School freshman girls' basketball team will take an impressive 12-3 record into its final game of the season on Thursday when the Rayders play host to Boyne City at 4:15 p.m.

The Rayders picked up a pair of wins last week as they topped East Jordan, 75-45, and the Boyne Falls junior varsity, 61-51.

Against East Jordan, Natasia Klieber and Ashley Ager scored 24 points apiece to pace the Rayders. Erin Burns added 12 points and Candace Boss had 11.

Ager had 11 steals, Klieber had eight assists, Boss pulled down 19 rebounds, and Michelle Swem had 10 boards.

Against Boyne Falls, Klieber scored 21 points; Jamie Left had 17 points, 11 rebounds; and Burns had 15 points, six steals and four blocks.

Area men do well in marathon

Two Charlevoix men turned in outstanding performances recently in the 30th annual New York City Marathon.

Doug Bergmann placed 151st among all racers in the event with a time of 2 hours, 43 minutes, 9 seconds. Bergmann, 30, placed 142nd among men and 81st in his age group.

Bill Crook, 27, finished in 2:47:15 to place 216th overall, 205th among men and 51st in his age group.

Rayders close with Boyne, then comes the tournament

By Andy Sneddon

More than a month ago, the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team cruised by Kalkaska, 73-37, at home. A week ago, the Blazers turned the tables on the Rayders, winning 45-35, in Kalkaska.

The Rayders entered the game having won six of their previous eight starts and the two losses had come by a combined 14 points to the Lake Michigan Conference elite, Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids.

So what happened against Kalkaska, a Class B team with a 7-12 overall record playing primarily Class C competition?

"Kalkaska was really out to get us because we beat them by 37," first-year Charlevoix coach Jason Otter said.

It was also senior night at Kalkaska, and the Blazers were surely sore from the early season pasting the Rayders had put on them. But the big key, Otter said, is that Kalkaska forced the Rayders into a slowdown game, and the Rayders suffered through a poor shooting night.

Slowing things down and not letting the Rayders get out and run is a sign that opponents are beginning to sit up and take notice of Charlevoix, Otter said.

"They played pretty well, they did what they wanted," Otter said of the Blazers. "I think a lot of teams are trying to do that (slow down). I kind of like that kind of atmosphere where teams are out to get you.

"I wasn't disappointed at all. I like that environment. I think our girls needed to experience that, to get a feel of that and see what that's like. I think it was a learning experience for us."

Otter hopes to apply those experiences on Thursday when the Rayders close the regular season at home against Boyne City (6 p.m. JV tipoff) in a league game.

Boyne is 10-8 overall, 6-5 (third place) in the Lake Michigan Conference. The Rayders stand 8-11, 4-7 and in fifth place in the league.

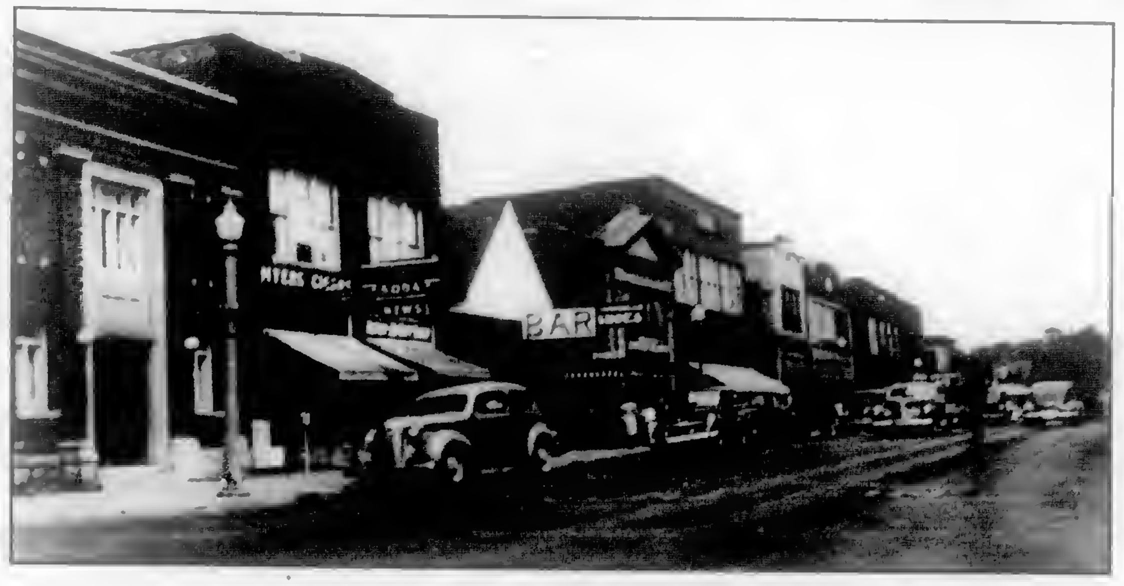
SCRAPBOOK

Back to our stroll down Bridge Street ...

By Marilyn Boss



A look down Bridge Street as it once appeared. (Photo courtesy of the Charlevoix Historical Society)

Continuing our stroll down Bridge Street, on the northwest corner, traveling north, was the Charlevoix County State Bank, at 227 Bridge. It was known as "the bank on the corner." Robert Bridge, the president, also had an insurance agency there. Bob was the mayor of Charlevoix for several terms, and was instrumental in promoting the buying up and demolition of the greater part of the buildings on the east side of Bridge Street, which were turned into our city parks. He was a very progressive man, and had a lot of vision for the town.

The next building north was occupied by Ted Pearl's Barber and Beauty Shop. At 223 Bridge, was Emrey's Men's Store, and upstairs were the offices of Arthur L. Fitch, lawyer, and George Haggard, Insurance. One day, the police gave Art Fitch a ticket for speeding on Bridge Street. Dale remembers him driving a 1941 black Ford four-door sedan. When they went to court, Art represented himself, and said the ticket was incorrect. He was not on Bridge Street, but Michigan Avenue, which began at the north side of the bridge. He won the case, and no fine.

At 221 Bridge, was the Bracken Tavern, which is now the Town House. In the alley behind, where Seeley Printing is today, was Maxbauer's Creamery. On Saturdays, the farmers came to town to bring their 5- or 10-gallon cream cans, filled with cream which they had accumulated during the week. They would have the cream weighed and tested by Dale's dad, John, and they would be paid immediately for their product. Dale remembers that one farmer went over to the Bracken Tavern to have a 10-cent glass of beer while his cream was being tested for its value. He came back and made the announcement that the tavern had just received a box of 24 5-cent Hershey bars. It was war time, and they couldn't be had. Dale's dad gave him 20 cents to get four bars, one for each of his family. It was the first candy bar they had in several months. Dale went over to the bar and got them, and it was the one and only time he was ever in that bar.

Campbell Boot Shop was the next business. Don Campbell was the owner, and most people in town bought their shoes there. I remember the X-ray machine which we kids loved to use (not knowing the dangers at that time). We would put our feet in the machine, and it would let us see all the bones through our shoes. What a treat! Charlie Lamphear had a shoe repair business in the back of Campbell's. He was a happy little white haired man who had crippling arthritis.

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank was next door. This is now where Village Inn Pizza is located. Archie Livingston was the president, and also had his insurance agency there. He ran a tight ship, but if he knew you were honest, he would give you anything you needed, usually on your signature. Dale can attest to that.

Meyer and Freda Levinson owned M.A. Levinson and Co. Dry Goods at 215 Bridge. I remember the floors were wood, and he had glass cases with merchandise in them, with polished hardwood stools to sit on while selecting sweaters from the shelves, or goods on display in the cases. They were very friendly people, and hard workers. Upstairs in the building were the offices of Rollie Lewis, lawyer; Doug Nettleton, dentist; and Michigan Bell Telephone Co. Doug was my dentist, and I remember when we had to have a tooth filled, that he would roll a bit of mercury around in his palm to make a silver filling for the tooth. Oh, the dangerous things that were done in that time, before the effects of mercury poisoning were known.

213 Bridge was vacant in 1940, as the post office had just moved out of the building to the corner of Antrim and Bridge. John Nordrum, chiropractor, was upstairs, and also Dr. McMillian. Town talk was that at one time, Dr. Nordrum believed the end of the world was coming, and he sat for several days in the middle of Round Lake in a boat, waiting for it to happen. Dr. McMillian was a very active doctor in town, and he always kept his blue 1941 Chevy in the alley, heading west. Dale remembers when he would get a call to someone's house, and he would go like the shot out of a gun, up the alley, toward the Methodist Church, to get to his client. He would wind the Chevy up, and zoom up past the creamery as hard as he could go. Dale's dad would tell his employees to stay out of the road when they saw him coming. Duty called, and he would answer.

The building located at 209-211, where Mettler's is today, was the location of the largest grocery store in town, which was Krogers. Wayne Belding had his sign shop upstairs. The words "Charlevoix the beautiful" in script, were first done by Wayne. He was a very talented artist, and his work can be seen in the Harsha House Museum. The Polly Kay Sport Wear and Polly Kay junior children's wear shops were in the 205-207 building. It was owned by Polly Haggard and Kay Fitch. They catered to the upscale resort trade. Upstairs was the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

On the corner of Bridge and Park Avenue, was the Dahlquist Store, a five and dime variety store, which originated in Charlevoix. A man by the name of Harold Dahlquist, began here, and he later had a chain of stores located in various northern Michigan cities. Charlevoix had many good, and friendly merchants, and recalling them is a treat.

Rayders could finish in fourth-place tie in league

The Rayders could finish tied for fourth in the league if they beat Boyne and East Jordan, which is alone in fourth place now at 5-6, loses its league finale at Harbor Springs.

Win or lose on Thursday, it will be Otter's final game on the Charlevoix bench this season. He was ejected from two games earlier this year. Under Michigan High School Athletic Association rules, a coach ejected twice during the regular season may not coach in the tournament.

One of those games was at Harbor Springs, the other at Ellsworth. The same crew officiated both games. Otter said he has not received so much as a technical foul in any other game this season.

"I'm not pleased with that crew," Otter said. "I just don't feel like it's fair. There needs to be some (appeal) process."

Assistant coach Jim Parrish will take over and run the team in Otter's absence.

"I'm pretty confident in Jim Parrish to do the job," Otter said.

In any event, Otter said he believes the Rayders can win their district, a six-team Class C tourney at Mancelona. Charlevoix received a first-round bye, and will play either Elk Rapids or Mancelona 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 17. The winner of that game plays for the championship 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 19.

The other side of the bracket is comprised of Harbor Springs, East Jordan and Boyne City. The Rams and Elks have got to be considered the teams to beat in the tournament based on the fact that they are the top teams in the Lake Michigan Conference. Harbor is vying for its fourth straight district title.

Still, Otter said, anybody is beatable.

"I feel like it's anyone's district," he said. "Everyone's been beaten. I really felt like we had the upper hand on Elk Rapids when we played them here without two starters. We're going to approach it (the opening game) like all the others and go after it."

The district champion advances to the Grayling regional.

Against Kalkaska, Leslie Hoffman and Kerstin Larsen scored 10 points apiece to lead the Rayders. Meghan Vogel added nine points.

Earlier last week, the Rayders topped Traverse City St. Francis in a conference game, 68-50.

Larsen made all 11 of her free throw attempts en route to 24 points. She also had 13 rebounds. Hoffman scored 13 points and Vogel added seven rebounds.

Board closes on school property

By B. J. Hetler

It's a done deal.

Charlevoix Public Schools' superintendent Dr. John Sturock and Board of Education president Allen Telgenhof signed closing papers on Monday, and on behalf of the school board purchased the land the board chose for a new high school.

The purchase was announced at a special school board meeting on Monday. It came on the heels of a lively meeting on Nov. 8 during which several residents joined Jeffrey Porter in denouncing the site. Concerns included urban sprawl in the area, the increased busing needs, and the site not situated in the city. It is located in Marion Township, approximately 2.7 miles from the city.

The school district now owns 74 acres of land on Marion Center Road, between Clark and Veenstra roads. The purchase price is $250,000. The sellers are two sisters who live in St. Louis, and summer in Charlevoix.

"I feel really good," Sturock said. "I'm really excited about the property."

Plans are for a 120,000-square-foot high school, an auditorium, practice fields for football and soccer, and regulation fields for baseball and softball. These plans are projected to use approximately 30 acres of the 74 acres. The remaining land will be available for school use in the future, board members say.

Voters approved a $18,825,000 bond issue by 100 votes on Oct. 11. The funds will build a new high school on the new site, renovate the existing high school for upper elementary and middle school students, remodel the elementary school, as well as provide the money for other improvements.

The board heard a presentation by A. G. Edwards & Sons, Inc., investment bankers, at the meeting. The firm will finance the bonds at an average net interest rate of 5.62 percent. The interest rate is down from the 5.75 percent interest rate expected. This brings the interest on new bond issue down in dollars from $15,534,991 to $14,285,509, an interest cost savings of $1,249,482.

Brian Lefler, vice president of A.G. Edwards, said he was pleased to deliver the news.

"The school district's bonds were well received by investors in the marketplace, which allowed the underwriters to negotiate competitive interest rates," Lefler said. "For this reason, the school district was able to fund its building projects in a cost-effective manner."

The board voted for a motion to approve the A.G. Edwards presentation and execution of the $18,825,000 bond purchase agreement.

A.G. Edwards said the school district will have the money on Dec. 1.

Plans are for board visits to other schools to get building and planning ideas.

Commission: 'We need funding'

By B. J. Hetler

Charlevoix county lags behind many other Michigan counties in millage funding for its seniors.

For instance, 75 percent of Michigan's 83 counties have a senior millage of .5 mill to help provide services to the senior populations. But Charlevoix county does not have millage funding for senior services, according to Susan Bergmann, the director of the county's Commission on Aging.

Bergmann, and others concerned about the needs of Charlevoix's growing senior population, requested at the Nov. 10 county commission meeting that a .25 senior mill be put on the November, 2000 ballot.

The .25 mills translates into approximately $273,000 per year, which would be used in many areas, Bergmann said.

Recycling is an idea as old as nature

By Roger Knutson

Ear to the Ground

We may haggle about what to recycle and how it is to be done, but as with many problems, the natural world provides us with magnificent examples. What to do with the leaves each year is one of those problems that nature has had a few hundred million years to solve. For most of us, all those leaves that fall on our lawn are pretty much a seasonal inconvenience, but for forest trees they are the stuff of life itself and none of them can be wasted. The maples, oaks and other large trees that line our streets and shade our yards were not bred especially to provide for our comfort and visual pleasure. Most of them are the direct offspring of forest trees, and it is only in forests that we can see something of what they are really like. What seems to be a ton of leaves in my yard is really only a few tens of pounds of dry leaves, even if I count those that blow over from the neighbor's yards.

Out in their original forest home, each tree may be making fewer leaves, because it's crowded out there, but the total is impressive. I have measured leaf fall amounts here in Northern Michigan, but in the northeast corner of Iowa where I worked for 30 years, leaf fall in a forest of maples, basswoods and oaks averaged close to three tons of dry leaves per acre per year. I imagine it would be very close to that number in any local forest with the same types of trees.

The question that may come to mind at this point is just what happens to all those leaves in the forest with no one to rake them up and take them away? In that same Iowa forest it took on the average about two years for the fallen leaves to be turned back into the soil they originally came from. And since leaves were not accumulating, there must have been as many leaves decayed each year as there were falling. All that decomposition of leaves is absolutely essential to the continued health of the forest. Guesses are that about 80 percent of the nutrients that the forest trees need come from the leaves they have dropped. The molds and fungi that live in the forest soil not only decay the leaves and twigs, they funnel the necessary nutrients directly back to the trees. If we keep track of just what atoms of nitrogen or phosphorous are in the falling leaves from a single tree, within months of their being dropped to the forest floor, those same atoms of necessary nutrients are found in all the surrounding trees. The next year's leaves will contain most of the necessary fertilizer they acquired from the decaying leaves of their neighbors.

There are a couple of benefits to that sort of remarkable recycling. One of the most important is that almost none of that potential tree fertilizer ever leaves the forest. It does not run into streams or lakes that are nearby. It is permanently held in the live things of the forest. It goes from tree to leaf to fungi and back to tree again without ever being loose in the soil where it might be washed away. We don't need to fertilize forests to get the trees to grow well, they take care of it themselves in cooperation with the forest fungi.

One further thought about trees and fertilizer. If you rake up and dispose of all or most of your falling leaves (and you must if you want a lawn), your trees are deprived of their most valuable source of readily available fertilizer to enhance their growth. A tree outside of that forest network needs annual application of fertilizer if it is to grow as well as it can. You could add composted organic material or the inorganic fertilizer from the local garden store, but the tree needs something. Your tree won't die without fertilizer, but you would be amazed at how much better it grows with it. The growing roots of trees extend out just about as far as the leaves and branches do, and most of the active roots are near the soil surface. You could kill a tree with too much fertilizer, so be careful. Give your tree a hand and remember that it does much more for you than providing autumn exercise in getting rid of its leaves.

Merchants, ready for Christmas?

'Tis the season to decorate your storefront, light up your windows and be ready for judging from 5-7 p.m. on Dec. 9 in the annual Christmas Decorating Contest.

Storefronts will be judged on holiday spirit, originality and sales appeal. Only businesses that have registered will be judged. For more information or to register, call the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office, 547-2101.

Excessive speed a factor in wreck, sheriff says

On Nov. 11, at 5:48 p.m., the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department responded to a personal injury car accident on Ellsworth Road near Addis Road in South Arm Township.

Ricky Edward Yawn, 18, and two teen-agers were injured when the 1988 Ford Mustang driven by one of the teen-agers, a 17-year-old male, left the roadway and rolled several times and came to rest on it's top.

Both teen-agers were believed to have been ejected from the car, according to a press release from Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater.

Yawn and one of the teen-agers were treated and released from Charlevoix Area Hospital. The other teen-ager, a 15-year-old female, was still undergoing care at the time of the news release.

Excessive speed is believed to have been a factor in the accident, according to the sheriff.

The sheriff's department was assisted by East Jordan police, the East Jordan Fire Department, and the East Jordan Ambulance Service.

OPINIONS

School district should do its homework

EDITORIAL

A proposal for Northern Michigan schools to participate in a long-term exclusive agreement with a national beverage company, such as Coca-Cola or Pepsi, needs further study.

Schools in the Char-Em Intermediate School District (ISD), including Charlevoix Public Schools, are considering an opportunity that could give them thousands of dollars in exchange for exclusive distribution rights and promotional opportunities.

The proposal is similar to a consortium formed in the Grand Rapids area last spring with Coke, which earned some 18 schools a share of a 10-year, $28.5 million contract.

Nearly 100 Northern Michigan schools on both sides of the state are considering a similar deal by forming a consortium.

Signing up for the deal would call for exclusive use of one beverage vendor on the school district premises or at school district activities and events. It would mean only one brand of vending machines, cafeteria food service, school stores and concession stands unless earlier contracts had been made.

School districts signing up for the deal would not only get retail sale profits or vending machine commissions, but receive fees for agreeing to the exclusivity and promotion opportunities.

Superintendent John Sturock presented the proposal at a recent school board meeting, and is only in the exploratory phase of looking at participating in the consortium.

While the money from the contract may seem tempting, school officials need to ask themselves if they should be locking themselves into some type of exclusive contract for that length of time with any organization.

Charlevoix school board members quite correctly asked if the district could pull out of the deal at any time, and how much control they would have over the type and amount of advertising going up over the schools.

Another important issue is whether or not it is good public policy to bypass suppliers, who pay local taxes, and go directly to larger companies. As was also pointed out by Char-Em ISD deputy superintendent Rick Diebold, it would be important for any deal to be put out in some kind of bid process before deciding what company to go with.

We also wonder what kind of statement is being made by promoting soda pop instead of healthier beverages like juice or milk for school children.

We will look forward to hearing more details of the proposal as they are made available to Charlevoix and other Northern Michigan school districts.

Letters to the editor

Centrally located school would have physical fitness benefits

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following was sent to Charlevoix School Board President Allen Telgenhof.

Editor:

Mr. Telgenhof, I attended the school board meeting on Nov. 8 to add to the discussion of the site for the new high school. What I had to present did not fit within your restrictions on the discussion, so I have chosen another venue.

My issue with the site chosen by committee is that it is not centrally located. This precludes students and faculty/staff from walking or bicycling to school. It makes us rely on cars and busses to get to school, contributing to our environmental pollution and to our serious lack of exercise.

A recent article published in the Petoskey News-Review ("Michigan right in the thick of obesity trend") quotes a study by the Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The study indicates that the number of obese people is rapidly accelerating. It is known that obesity, long term, leads to medical problems such as heart attack and stroke as well as diabetes.

One of the studies' co-authors, Dr. William Dietz, was quoted on National Public Radio's Morning Edition, as having the opinion that the lack of functional exercise is partially to blame for the rapid increase of obesity and it's related diseases. He indicated that neighborhood design, that encouraged people walking and bike riding to functional activity such as shopping and school, could help to change the balance of overeating and under exercising. It could help change our childrens' lifestyles to a healthier system. Our children deserve a healthier lifestyle.

Placing the high school out of town on Marion Center Road simply propagates all of the problems associated with sprawl and is a poor choice.

The site committee did a lot of work to select the site, however I think that allowing a small committee to study and make recommendations to the school board, for decisions that will effect our lifestyles, without a public vote on the specific site, is inappropriate. The site for the Kindergarten-4, was specific on the ballot as was 5-6 and 7-8, however the ballot had no reference to the proposed site for the high school. There were stories, rumors, opinions, but nothing written on the voting ballot.

It is important for the people of Charlevoix to be able to say where the high school is to be built and what kind of lifestyles are promoted by the school system, as they did for the grade school and middle school.

Reprints of the original study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, and the Morning Edition segment interviewing Dr. William Dietz are available from myself upon request.

Thank you for your consideration.

How much is enough?

Editor:

I couldn't believe my eyes when I read the article about the county raising our taxes. The school passed their mills (which I voted against) by 100 votes and raised our taxes almost $300 a year, then this: YOU-WHO, what are you thinking of?

There's something wrong with this picture when you have a million dollars on hold somewhere and ask us to dig deeper. Why don't you pour a little more salt into the already-gaping wound. I hope I'm not alone when I say this is really not only dumb, but inconsiderate. There are going to be a lot of people struggling to pay for the new school. I have no kids in the public school, but I have to pay, and what about the senior citizens on fixed income with no kids in school who have to pay, too?

Now you want us to give more. Why not dig into that million dollars you have tucked away, I guess for a rainy day. Well, guess what, it's pouring.

Kiwanis honored for work with Boy Scouts

By B. J. Hetler

Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix was recognized for sponsoring the Boy Scouts of America, Troop 11, for 60 continuous years at a recognition dinner on Thursday, Nov. 4.

The Scenic Trails Council held the annual event at the Park Place Dome in Traverse City. The 46-member Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix had the most years of sponsorship among the 12 sponsors honored this year.

Kiwanis member Ken Weller accepted the award for the club.

"I think it's a big accomplishment to sponsor for 60 years," Weller said.

The club works with the scouts in providing some funding, finding a meeting place, and organizing leadership, among other services.

Also recognized at the event was Charlevoix's Jonathan Tebeau, 17, who obtained the sixth-rank Eagle Scout. Jonathan's parents are Bob Tebeau and Sue and Pram Acharya.

Jonathan has earned 21 merit badges and has his favorites.

Kay Bartz, 56, of Charlevoix, died at home in the company of her family, on Monday, Nov. 8.

A Resurrection Mass was held on Friday, Nov. 12, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated. Burial followed at St. Mary's Cemetery.

She received her nursing degree in 1994, graduating with a 4.0 grade point average. Kay became a licensed practical nurse and worked in different facilities in northern Michigan including Emmet County Medical Care Facility and The Red Cross.

Howard F. Neilson

Howard F. Neilson, who died on Nov. 15, 1999, was born in Johannesburg, South Africa in 1917 of United States parentage and citizenship. He and his family moved to Detroit in 1929 where he attended Cooley High School and later attended Albion College where he was a member of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, graduating in 1940 with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Chemistry and Economics.

Mr. Neilson took great pride in his American heritage. He was a member of "The Society of Mayflower Descendants" being a direct descendant of a signatory of the Mayflower compact in 1620. His great-great-grandfather, Captain John Neilson, fought in the Battle of Saratoga in September and October of 1777, on the Freeman and Neilson farms in New York. The ancestral home of Captain Neilson still stands on the site of the battlefields, which is now a historical park.

Mr. Neilson was a devoted family man with keen interests in community, youth, environmental and sports affairs. He had a distinguished business career in the automotive sales area as vice president of Neilson Chemical Company, and later with Amchem Products and Diamond Shamrock. He resided in Pleasant Ridge for 38 years where he was active on the recreation and planning commissions and chaired the Pleasant Ridge Historical Society. He was elected and served as co-chairperson of the Pleasant Ridge Charter Commission (revised in 1976).

In 1960 he was an organizer and co-founder of the Pleasant Ridge Community Pool and elected as the first president of what was to become the first community-owned pool in the Detroit area. He was also an incorporator of the Pleasant Ridge Foundation, a member and director of Pine Lake Country Club, a founder of the Forest Lake Golf Club, a director of the Detroit Golf Club, and a member of the Belvedere Golf Club following his retirement in 1982.

In his prime he was a 3-handicap golfer, made six holes-in-one, and won club championships at Pine Lake Country Club in 1948, 1959 and 1962, and at Belvedere Golf Club in 1984.

Mr. Neilson was elected as a governor of the Golf Association of Michigan (GAM) in 1957, serving actively until 1971, at which time he was appointed as an honorary governor, faithfully serving the GAM until his recent death. During his tenure as a governor, he served as co-chairperson of the Michigan Amateur Championship Committee for 10 years.

Sensitive to the needs of protecting the air and water resources of Charlevoix County, he formed and incorporated the non-profit Water and Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH). He served as president of the 700-member organization from 1983-87, during which period more than $200,000 was raised for implementing the WATCH agenda.

He was directly responsible for working in conjunction with the newly formed U.S. Environmental Super Fund in getting a new fresh water facility built in Lake Michigan when it was discovered that the Charlevoix potable drinking water system had become significantly polluted. During his active and productive life, Mr. Neilson believed very sincerely in the axiom, "If you want to get something of importance done, ask a busy person to do it."

He is survived by his wife of 59 years, Ruth Appel Neilson; three sons, Howard R. "Skip" Neilson II, David L. (Karen) Neilson and Jeffrey T. (Susan Bieke) Neilson; five grandchildren, Lisa Marie Casciaro, Christy Zarin Kauffman, Bradley David Neilson, Elizabeth Courtney Neilson and Mary Katherine Neilson; one great-grandson, Kellen Patrick Kauffman and one great-granddaughter, Ella Grace Kauffman. Mr. Neilson was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Birmingham, Mich. and a former member of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, it is suggested that tributes be sent to the Chick Evans Caddie Scholarship Program in care of the Western Golf Association, 1 Briar Road, Golf, IL 60029.

RELIGION

OF BLESSINGS

By Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Matters of tolerance are very important in contemporary society. "Tolerance" has become the standard by which people are deemed worthy of respect and the attitude that every public figure must have to maintain credibility.

Originally, tolerance meant to honor the right of others to believe and live in a manner that reflected their own personal tastes. But in recent years the definition of tolerance has subtly shifted. In the world of the new tolerance it is not enough to let others have their beliefs and lifestyles. The "new tolerance" demands that we accept all beliefs as equally valid without any evaluation or question. The idea of not evaluating "truth" seems to be supported by a widely held view that all religions ultimately lead to the same God.

It's like the story of four blind men and an elephant. They were each asked to feel the elephant, then describe it. The man who touched the trunk describes the elephant as snake-like. Another man who touched the leg describes it as tree-like. The third man feels the elephant's tusk and describes it as smooth and bony. The fourth man feels the ear and says it is leaf-like. This little story illustrates the conclusion that is drawn about different religions — that they are in touch with the same God, they just know him from different perspectives.

As logical as that may sound, it does not match what we discover when we closely examine what major world religions actually teach about God. For example, one world religion presents God exists. Another teaches that God is a totally good Being who personally cares about each member of His creation. These descriptions are not just different perspectives. They represent totally different world views. They are describing very different gods, not just various perspectives of the same one. So, what we find when we evaluate the beliefs of the various world religions is that the four blind men in the elephant allegory are not in touch with the same object. They may not even be in the same arena.

True tolerance allows us to believe different things, but it also allows us to evaluate if one belief is better than another. The new tolerance, based on accepting all belief systems as equally valid, can only result in the allusion of unity. We must avoid giving in to the myth that ignoring our irreconcilable differences leads us all to the same God. The more challenging but far better path is to acknowledge our differences, yet continue to search for one truth that can bring all people together in a union of divine love.

Jesus Christ has given us a clue for discovering the one truth when He spoke these words, "I am the way, the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father but by Me." He is saying that genuine spirituality is not found in a religion or a ritual, but in a Person.

Groundbreaking

Pastor Mike Dennis (right, holding shovel) and other members of the Ministry Center Building Committee of the First Baptist Church break ground on an addition to the church. Plans call for the addition, which will be 120-by-96 feet, to house a gym with a full-sized basketball court that will be used for family activities, banquets, sporting events and outreach activities. It will also have space for a commercial kitchen, rest rooms, enlarged nursery and seven classrooms. The gym is expected to be fully functional by next summer. The church is located on M-66. Other members of the Ministry Center Building Committee are John Dobulis, Frank Hamilton, Brent Knapp, Tim May, Bill Thorp, Mike Wheat and Rich Wojan. (Courtesy photo)

Charlevoix family welcomes toddler

EDITOR'S NOTE: Second of a two-part series on the Merrill family's odyssey into China to bring home their adopted daughter. Much of the story is based on the e-mails sent to family and friends by John Merrill, a Charlevoix dentist.

By Ginger Winter
For the Charlevoix Courier

Wu Caipon, as the 2-year-old girl was named at the Chinese orphanage, was abandoned outside a police station in the city of Woujzou in December 1997, approximately two months after her birth.

John and Jan Merrill can only guess at possible reasons why her mother would leave her in such custody, but Chinese laws are tough for families: One child per couple and most want boy babies for that only child. A sweet and sturdy toddler, Pan Pan, her nickname and pronounced Pon Pon, is one of the thousands that actually make it to an orphanage. One evening in October, 13 baby girls were given to anxious American parents. John, Jan and their oldest son, Jonathan, met their new family member in a mist of emotions. Parents cried from sheer joy and children cried because children cry.

Pan Pan's caretakers told the Merrills that she loves to dance and is stubborn at times. Over the course of a few days, they learned first hand that she was generally quiet and well behaved. She was kind to others and even shared her toys. She seemed healthy with a strong appetite, and slept soundly. She would wake with a smile and reach for her new mother.

Affection came easily. Except towards John. He couldn't hold her without her tearful protests. John said he had to "swoop in and make a quick kiss or touch while she (wasn't) looking."

Jonathan fared much better. Pan Pan would even reach out for him and let him hold her a half a minute before the fickle squirming to get away began. There would be many others wanting a chance to hold the little girl with the large brown eyes full of curiosity's sparkle. Pan Pan's quick smile will charm anyone within sight of her. Outstretched arms are wide open for hugs. But men are usually viewed with suspicion. Pan Pan recognized her name when called. Her new parents, sensitive to all the sudden changes she would soon have to process, wanted to keep whatever was familiar to her as long as they could. It soon became apparent that her name was the only thing that could stay the same, but even that is changing.

Her official birthday is Oct. 26. It was the day she began her journey to her new life as Kathryn Caipon Merrill in Charlevoix, Michigan, USA.

> "She didn't want to take off her shoes and would look for them when I did. They were the only things she owned."
> – Jan Merrill

"She didn't want to take off her shoes and would look for them when I did," Jan Merrill said when reflecting back on her family adventure. "They were the only things she owned."

A name change and new shoes are not as monumental as the other changes in her life. Food, for example, will no longer be her favorite rice broth, called kongee, which Pan Pan ate for most meals.

While in China, the Merrills tried fried sandworms. John seemed the only adventurous one at mealtimes and braved other things like pig's stomach and camel. He and Jonathan found time to visit a female dentist's office and the Nanning dental school to see what those were like. In one of his e-mails he reported: "The dental equipment at the school is 50 years or so behind. The dental school library is smaller than that of my own. But they do enjoy very nice Ping-Pong tables."

The last of Merrill's 13 e-mails marks another phase of a family's continued adventure.

City seeks new airport bids

The city council on Monday, Nov. 8, rejected the two bids it received for construction of the City Municipal Airport terminal building.

The two bids, which were received on Oct. 25, were far higher than anticipated, airport manager Loraine Luepnitz said.

The airport's cost estimate on the project was $361,560. A bid by O'Boyle & Co. of Marquette came in at $668,000, and a bid by G.P. Graham Construction was $585,000.

The city will rebid the terminal construction project.

Grant sought for acquisition and demolition of Wharfside building

A resolution was passed by city council on Monday, Nov. 8, to request funding assistance from the Michigan Department of Transportation's enhancement fund. If received, the funds will be used to purchase the Wharfside building. Plans are to demolish the building and expand East Park. The city does not expect a decision by the state for several months.

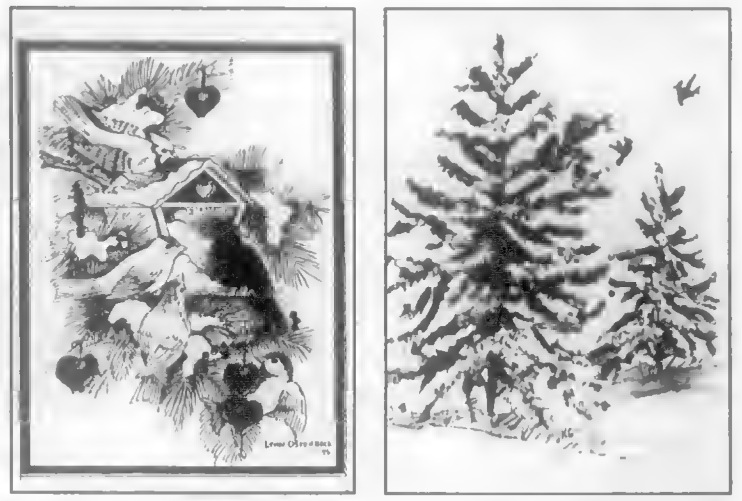
Public hearing for rezoning for Harbor Industries expansion

A rezoning for two parcels of city-owned land desired by Harbor Industries for its expansion was set by council for a public hearing on November 29. If approved, the rezoning will change from PR-public reserve to I-industrial.

City council approved negotiations for a contract with John Adams & Associates for engineering services for the Harbor Industries project.

New addition

Charlevoix native Lenore Morgridge has returned to the area to practice landscape architecture for a growing landscape company, Vidosh Landscape Centres. Morgridge previously worked in landscape architecture and Land Use Planning in San Francisco and the Lake Tahoe area for nearly 10 years. Morgridge is working at the Northview Design Centres in Bay Harbor as a designer and land use planner. (Courtesy photo)



Two varieties of Christmas cards are being offered this year by Charlevoix County Hospice.

Hospice offering two Christmas cards

The Charlevoix County Hospice is offering two Christmas cards for the holiday season.

The first card was designed by Kay Gee of Harper Woods, and features snow-covered fir trees with red cardinals flying about. Inside, the inscription reads, "Christmas is Love, Dream it, Believe it, Share it!"

Gee is the mother of Carol Loomis, a Charlevoix County Hospice board member.

The second card is designed by Lynn Osterbeck, who has been designing cards for Hospice for several years. It displays a birdfeeder, with several perched birds and red hearts and berries. Inside, the inscription reads, "Let us keep the magic of the season, holding it close to our heart, for its meaning never ends."

The cards are available in Charlevoix at The Clothing Company and Trademark Clothiers. The cost is $12 for a package of 20, $6 for a package of 10. The cards are also available at Boyne Country Books and The White Rose in Boyne City and Busy Bridge Gifts and Antiques in East Jordan.

The proceeds go to the Charlevoix County Hospice.

Charlevoix teen earns Eagle Scout rank

"I enjoyed rifle and shotgun," Jonathan said. "Wilderness survival and first aid are the most useful."

One of his major feats was building the stone decor around the First Baptist Church bell tower.

"It was my responsibility to organize people to help," Jonathan said. "We went out and got the rock ourselves from old barn foundations and hauled it to the church. We put in about 130 hours."

Tim May is Jonathan's scout leader. He was with him at the awards ceremony.

"He was at second rank when he moved to Charlevoix from Dearborn in 1994," May said. "It took pressure to get him to do it, but he would have done it anyway. He's attained so much to come up from such a low rank," May said.

Jonathan said May is a great scout master.

"He lets the older scouts practice leadership skills with the younger scouts," he said.

Jonathan said his older brother, Tim Tebeau, who in 1998 attained Eagle rank has been a lot of help to him.

"He's always been there for me, to keep me going," he said.

The future for Jonathan will involve the military, he said.

"I've always wanted to be in the military. I will be applying to the Air Force Academy. I want to be an engineer."

But, Jonathan said, "I'll definitely stay in touch with scouting."

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club will continue its work with the Boy Scouts and looks forward to another recognition at 65 years of sponsorship.

Family welcomes newest member

"The kids arrived with Kathryn in the tub and then descended upon her as a pack of wild dogs. She smiled and seemed to love the commotion. She even came to me later to pick her up (the first time ever). This could be modeling of the other small children or this could be just raw fear. Probably a combination. Anyway, another milestone."

The scene back at home now is illustrative of one family's love for each other and their commitment to make our smaller world a better place. It is filled with a modern American family's activities. Kathryn fits right in. She seems to love the interaction of her new family and has plenty of baby talk and giggles to express how she feels. She watches her new brother, David, 7, who is organizing his Pokémon trading cards. Eyes follow Zachary, 5, as he shows off his latest crayon drawing.

Then she'll watch her older sister, 3-year-old Jaclyn, as she puts on pretend lipstick. Kathryn's attention shifts to a Mickey Mouse calculator.

"It was a wonderful experience," John said looking at his expanded family. "The people were very kind and gracious to us, but China is not a place I would go to just to visit. But I can see taking her back when she's 16 or 18.

"Jan, Jonathan and I decided a few minutes before arriving home that this trip could not have gone better. Someone was really watching over us all."

> "It was a wonderful experience. The people were very kind and gracious to us, but China is not a place I would go to just to visit."

Developers file suit against city

By B. J. Hetler

Although warned by its attorney that it was setting itself up for a lawsuit, the City of Charlevoix denied approval of a development plan application on Sept. 20.

Developers Robert Brooks and Scott Dietze, of Le Day, Inc., filed a complaint on Oct. 25 with the 33rd Circuit Court. They allege that the city broke the law when it denied their application.

Brooks and Dietze want to build a 24-unit government rent-subsidized apartment complex on land they own at 1007 May St. They originally sought and received city council approval for the plan and for rezoning from R-1, single-family residential, to R-4, planned residential, in late 1991.

But the developers never went ahead on the project, due to circumstances beyond their control involving government-financing red tape, said their attorney Steven Bratschie. Now they are ready to do so, but the city claims the rezoning has reverted back to single-family residential as required by ordinance 556. It refuses to let Brooks and Dietze commence the subsidized-housing project.

City attorney Jim Young advised council prior to Sept. 20 that the ordinance may be unconstitutional and therefore invalid, which is the plaintiffs' claim. The ordinance contains an automatic reversion provision for property zoned R-4 when no construction is commenced within one year of the rezoning.

Although he acknowledges that the ordinance may be unconstitutional, Young says that unless the court decides that the ordinance is invalid, it still stands.

"The housing project was not completed within a certain amount of time, so the zoning reverts back," Young said. "The reversion is still valid.

"Council also said that this proposal is not in line with the city's master plan at this location."

Council claims that the development plan is not consistent with the master plan which discourages clustering of multiple-family dwellings. Further, that it is not consistent with the immediate neighborhood area since three sides surrounding the proposed housing site are all zoned single-family residential.

City council says that it is reacting to May Street residents who claim that the proposed complex will increase traffic in the area by approximately 100 cars per day.

But a traffic engineer has twice determined that the additional traffic will not significantly impact the neighborhood traffic flow.

Plaintiffs' attorney Bratschie said he hopes for a quick resolution to the case.

"The city needs to acknowledge the need for this type of housing," he said. "There's a tremendous shortage."

Young is preparing a formal answer to the complaint and will file it with the court soon.

Neumann: 'Get involved'

State Rep. Andy Neumann (D-Alpena) spoke to middle school students last week. He gave examples of how politics impact individuals in so many ways and encouraged the students to get involved. "Politics is not a spectator sport," he said. (Photo by B.J. Hetler)

Police investigating death

The Charlevoix Police Department is investigating the death of a 44-year-old Charlevoix man, who was found dead in a motel room on Oct. 22.

David H. Hewitt was found dead in a room at Nanny's Motel. He reportedly had been socializing with co-workers from Skyline Erectors and one of them called 9-1-1.

Officer Jim Schlappi arrived at the scene. He was assisted by Charlevoix Ambulance Service and county medical examiner Dr. Reed Freidinger.

The death is being investigated by Chief Dennis Halverson and officer Scott Hankins. An investigation is standard procedure when the cause of death is not readily apparent, Halverson said.

Although the cause of death is unknown at this time, Halverson said it is not believed to be a suicide.

Hewitt's body was sent to a hospital in Grand Rapids for laboratory tests and an autopsy. The police expect the results shortly.

Rayders open district tonight

CHARLEVOIX — After a 2-8 start, the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team won seven of its last 10 games and takes a respectable 9-11 record into a Class C district tournament at Mancelona High School this week.

The Rayders will play Elk Rapids, 15-6, in a district semifinal game 6 p.m. today. The winner advances to Friday's championship game against either Harbor Springs, 18-3, or Boyne City, 11-9. Those two teams hook up in tonight's second semifinal game at approximately 8 p.m.

The Rayders closed regular season play last week by taking charge in the third quarter for a 54-37 Lake Michigan Conference victory over Boyne City.

The win lifted Charlevoix into a fourth-place tie in the league with East Jordan. Both teams finished 5-7 in league play. Boyne City was third at 6-6.

Harbor Springs won its fourth consecutive league championship with an 11-1 record, while Elk Rapids was second at 10-2.

Charlevoix held a slim 23-22 lead at the half against Boyne before moving out to a 42-28 advantage headed into the fourth quarter. The Rayders outscored Boyne, 31-15, in the final two quarters.

''We got off to a slow start but got after them defensively and that helped us,'' Charlevoix coach Jason Otter said. ''It was a nice way to end the season and conference.''

Kerstin Larsen led the Rayders with 22 points, 10 rebounds and five assists; Meghan Vogel collected 12 points, and Danielle Vogelheim had 11, while Jennifer McClellan picked up 10 assists.

For Boyne City, Nicole Kurtz scored 19 points.

Four Rayders earn spots on all-league soccer squad

Four Charlevoix soccer players were named to the All-Northern Michigan Soccer League team.

Seniors Sean Stockman, Jon Boss, Ryan Vogelheim and Chris Tilley earned spots on the team. Each completed his fourth year on the varsity, and each played key roles in helping lead Charlevoix to a 12-6 overall record and the league championship.

Stockman

Boss

Stockman, a halfback, scored 16 goals and added two assists on the season.

"Sean is a natural leader and a great athlete," Charlevoix coach Josh Block said.

"Even though he was usually marked in every game, he was able to fake out his opponents and distribute the ball to his teammates with deadly accuracy."

Stockman, who made the all-league team for the second year in a row, finished an outstanding career with 64 goals and 23 assists. Block said Stockman's 64 goals is a school record.

Boss, a halfback, finished the season with 13 goals and 19 assists. He too was all-conference selection last season.

"Jon is a hustler out on the field and has worked hard for every one of his goals and assists," Block said, adding that Boss' 19 assists stand as a school single-season record. "Jon has phenomenal ball control and is a tremendous offensive player. He plays with confidence and specializes in deceiving his opponents."

Boss finished his career with 32 goals and 37 assists.

Vogelheim

Tilley

Vogelheim, also an all-leaguer last fall, had 14 goals and 13 assists this season. He finished his prep career with 41 goals and 24 assists.

"Ryan has worked hard out of season, participated on travel teams, and attended numerous soccer camps during the summers," Block said. "Ryan is a great asset to the team. He possesses speed, agility and stamina. He anticipates action, plays the entire field, and is a quick shooter."

Tilley was the Rayders' goalie, leading Charlevoix to the league championship and the district title match.

"Chris is extremely quick, has great anticipation and sure hands," Block said. "He is one of the most determined athletes I have ever known."

Two other Rayders, senior defenseman Andy Granath and sophomore halfback Roscoe Serrels, earned all-league honorable mention.

Granath, who also earned his fourth varsity letter, "Is a selfless player," Block said. "He is calm, focused and a key component of our defense. He has a strong work ethic and is a positive role model for his peers.

"He is excellent at reading offensive attacks and stopping them."

Serrels, Block said, is one of the Rayders' smallest players "But he plays like he is our biggest. In the midfield he strips the ball away from opponents and redirects play to his teammates.

"Roscoe participates on travel teams out of season and is a dedicated, hard-working player."

Charlevoix freshman basketball team closes 12-4 season

The Charlevoix High School freshman girls' basketball team closed its season with a 58-44 loss at home to Boyne City last week.

Natashia Kleiber scored 26 points to pace the Rayders, who finished 12-4. Jamie Left added nine points.

Kleiber, who averaged 22 points per game this season, was selected the team's most valuable player by her teammates. Michelle Swem earned the team's most improved player award, voted on by teammates.

Meredith Clemens scored 12 points to lead Boyne City, which finished 13-3.

Millage would help with programs for Charlevoix County seniors

MILLAGE

The county would have chore service for seniors. Helen Sparks of Boyne City said she would like to have that service.

"It's the chore service that I need," Sparks said. "Like shoveling the porch and around my mail box. Mostly the outside work, like raking leaves and things like that.

"I'm going to quit driving in January, because I'll be 80," Sparks said, adding that will make the need for help even greater. A senior companion could take her to the doctor and aid her in walking, she said.

Other funds would increase in-home respite services, provide information and assistance, support the medication assistance program, fill the need for senior companion support, provide more meals, and increase activities for seniors, among other services, Bergmann said.

Mary Helen Riggle of Charlevoix cares for her husband at home. Someone comes in for respite care once a week.

"My husband cannot be left alone," Riggle said. "A lady from the Commission on Aging comes in. She's always here and she's always on time. It lets me go to the dentist or do errands. I love it."

Riggle said respite care more than once a week would be great, but she doesn't ask because she doesn't want to over-burden the service.

The Charlevoix and East Jordan Senior Citizens Centers need renovation and the Boyne City Senior Center needs a new building, Bergmann said.

The new millage may also help fund senior services on Beaver Island which is without many services and a senior center.

The Commission on Aging receives $111,277 a year from the county, funds from Area Agency on Aging and individual grants for operations and services. But federal government cuts and a growing aging population call for more funds, Bergmann said.

The Medicare cuts because of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 has created a greater need for community services, she said.

The growing population of elderly in the county is increasing rapidly. The baby boomers will soon become part of the senior population, Bergmann said.

The county commissioners asked Bergmann to put a budget together for the requested .25 millage and then submit a proposal to the board.

Don't let the blahs take the joy out of your holiday season

When the holidays come around, depression and stress can be byproducts of the high expectations people carry around with them, cautions Dr. Thomas Simmer, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan vice president and corporate medical director.

"The holidays bring out the blahs in many people, especially those who recently lost a loved one or are separated from their children," Simmer says. "This melancholy feeling isn't limited, though, to those separated from loved ones. It can be brought on by the stresses of going over-budget on gifts, and trying to complete all the tasks we have added to our schedules because of the holiday."

Early warning signs for holiday season depression include having a shorter temper than normal, sleep pattern disruption, losing interest in activities you enjoy, and overreacting to minor annoyances.

While the holiday doldrums rarely outlast the holiday season, there are ways to avoid feeling low during these festive weeks. Simmer suggests finding ways to exercise, such as parking far away from the mall entrance and walking. That exercise has the extra benefit of avoiding a stressful parking situation.

These activities can also reduce one's anxiety and depression level:

— Realize that the holiday stress is real.

— Surround oneself with a supportive network of family members and friends.

Accept family members for the way they are. They aren't about to change just because it's the holidays.

— Begin new traditions, such as creating a memorial holiday stocking, to remember those who have passed away.

— Delegate chores and responsibilities. This is the 90's. No one has time to do everything, but almost everyone has time to do something.

— Set a budget and stick to it.

— Use moderation when engaged in shopping, eating or drinking. Find a recipe for a non-alcoholic beverage for your holiday gathering.

— Remember that you are not alone.

According to the Mayo Clinic, there is no scientific evidence to date that the number of suicides increase during the holidays. Still, take the time during the holidays to reach out to family members and friends, especially those who are isolated or recovering from a loss.

If the feelings of loneliness and depression don't go away with the holiday season, you may need help from a professional.

The Blues have health education guidelines about depression and other medical conditions available to members. Boy rewarded for quick thinking

The Charlevoix Fire Department presented 10-year-old Justin T.G. Meggison with an award on Friday, Nov. 12, for spotting and helping to put out a car fire on Nov. 4, on East Dixon Avenue. The award was a surprise to Justin.

Justin was in his yard when he saw his neighbor, David Drury, drive his car into his grandmother's driveway. Justin noticed smoke coming out from under the front tire area and alerted Drury. Together they doused the area with water and extinguished the smoke.

Drury said his brakes locked up when he was heading for the driveway. That, combined with leaves packed under the car, caused the smoke.

No one was hurt during the incident.

For young Justin, his quick thinking and actions came from a long line of family firefighters. His grandfather, Don, was with the fire department for about 40 years, his uncle, Jerry, joined the department in 1969 and his father, Tom, was a firefighter for 17 years.

"His grandpa would have been proud," Tom said. "Justin spent a lot of time with him."

Youth Fest '99 is scheduled for Nov. 26 and 27 at Safe Harbor Baptist Church in Charlevoix.

The event is billed as a celebration and revival for the young people of Charlevoix.

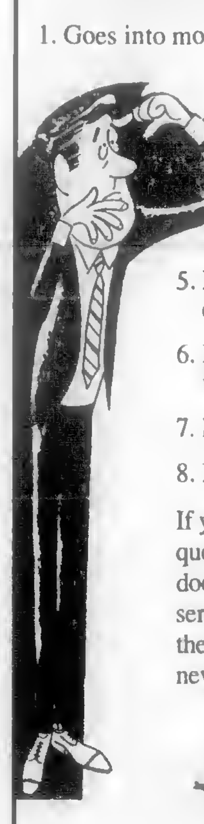
Common Vessel, a two-man Christian musical group from Newfane, New York, will perform during the event. The duo is comprised of Cliff and Allen Sliger, both of whom attended Safe Harbor from 1990-97.

Both attended school in Charlevoix and said they are excited about seeing their many friends during their visit.

Each evening will include music, message, give-aways, food and a time of fellowship.

The event is free and although the music and message is geared toward young people, anyone wishing to attend is welcome. For more information, call 547-6283.

What newspaper ???



1. Goes into more Charlevoix homes than any other newspaper?
2. Supports the community editorially?
3. Provides a forum for citizens to express their views?
4. Documents the history of the community?
5. Provides glimpses into our community's past each week?
6. Is the only newspaper devoted to the interests of the Charlevoix community?
7. Provides in-depth reporting of local issues?
8. Has served the community for over 110 years?

If you answered "Charlevoix Courier" to all eight questions you scored 100%. The Charlevoix Courier does all of these and is proud of its tradition of service to the community. We, at the Courier, know the importance of a community having its own newspaper and we will continue to serve the area.

Lake Michigan claims Warrington in 1911

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds

While the month of November is notorious in our city for its stormy weather and waves on nearby Lake Michigan, many more commercial vessels have been lost during the summer months, taking life and wealth with them. Frequently a weary vessel pushed beyond its limits for one more run.

The wooden, propeller driven Henry Warrington was built at the Detroit-based J.M. Jones shipyard in 1868. Measuring 142-by-27-by-10 and weighing 257 gross tons, she was built for the bulk freight trade on the Great Lakes. A year after she slipped off her ways and into the maritime trade she was wrecked on Lake Huron, but survived to be rebuilt as a revenue cutter and sold to the U.S. Light House Service to service Great Lakes lighthouses. During her tenure with the service she lost her first name and simply operated under the name Warrington. She remained in that service until being condemned, and for several years laid in the Erie Basin, near Buffalo, N.Y.

In 1910 the Warrington saw new life after being sold to the Chicago based Edward Hines Lumber Company. Under their ownership she regained her original name and was converted to a bulk freight lumber hooker. But her days as a commercial craft were destined to be a repeat of her early years.

Monday, Aug. 21, 1911 started out well for the crew of the Henry Warrington. After loading a large load of clear white pine at David Ward's East Jordan-based DeWard Lumber Company, Captain Britton began his run for Chicago 400 tons net burthen. The ship enjoyed an uneventful run down Pine Lake (Lake Charlevoix) and clearance through the bridge about nine o'clock, but things quickly changed once out on the lake and southwest of South Point. With a west wind she sprung a leak and was at once turned about and headed for the harbor, but, as the captain stated, it was raining enough to hide the shore in a misty fog. He miscalculated his course and struck the rocky reef as South Point gathered in another victim. She was at once filled with water and listed to the northward almost on her beam-ends. The tug Taylor, which was lying in the harbor with steam up went out only to find Captain Pugh and his crew of the life saving station in the life boat were half way to the wreck when the Taylor came along and towed them to the reef. The life savers took off seven of the crew and the tug the remainder of the 12. The captain and Mrs. Pugh housed the crew for two nights and gave them every attention in their power, the men having lost most of their personal effects including some of their money that was in the pockets of spare clothing.

The following morning the hulk was broken in two and her deck load scattered on the shore, with a stiff nor'wester blowing. As the lumber began washing ashore, watchmen were placed on the beach night and day, with a force of men working to pile it up as the steamer Louis Pahlow and consort Delta started out from Chicago, arriving a week later to load the cargo and machinery of the wrecked steamer.

Eventually, E.S. Stackes, who had the salvage contract on the lumber of the wreck, finished the work the following Saturday, putting 245,000 feet on the beach with approximately 10,000 feet lost. After retrieving everything of any value, and the hulk was soon strewn upon the beach. She remained there, slowly breaking up over the years with the wave and ice action of the lake spreading her remains over several acres of beach and shallows. In April of 1958, modern day salvager and shipwreck furniture maker, Jim Sawtelle, used dynamite to remove 2,600 pounds of her hull and her 8 inch diameter 30-foot-long cast iron drive shaft and 11-foot diameter propeller. Further removing her from local memories and future research.

If you would like to learn more about the ships that have shaped Charlevoix's maritime history please visit Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House Museum on Thursdays from 5-8 p.m. at 103 State St. or contact executive director Betsy Reynolds, 547-0373 or P.O. Box 525, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Take precautions now to protect your home during frigid winter

AAA has winter home care tips to prevent damage

Winter, with its biting winds, freezing temperatures and deep snow, is just about here.

Winter weather can be just as hard on your house as it is on your car, especially when temperatures reach the inevitable sub-zero levels. To help homeowners prepare homes for winter now to cope with the cold, AAA Michigan offers the following winter home care tips:

- Get your mind on the gutter. Eavestroughs that are blocked with leaves can cause ice dams to form and force water up under the shingles. Clear gutters now and periodically during the winter.
- Trim your trees. Through selective pruning, weak branches can be removed that might otherwise break in high winds and damage your car or home.
- Inspect your insulation. If necessary, add extra insulation to attics, basements and crawl spaces.
- Pamper your pipes. Make sure your water pipes are adequately protected from the cold. If you wish to install "heat tape" on your pipes, hire a professional. Improperly installed heat tape can cause fires. Do not attempt to thaw pipes using an open flame — hair dryers have been known to do a great job.
- Stay warm and safe. Only as a last resort, use alternative heat sources. Kerosene, propane and electric heaters are a frequent cause of home fires. When using, always follow manufacturer's guidelines and never leave unattended. Keep heaters away from curtains, corners and walls. Keep electrical cords off carpeting. Refuel kerosene heaters outdoors and use only kerosene recommended by manufacturers.
- Gas ovens should never be used as an alternative heat source.

See WINTER, page 28

Hunters, report vandalism

Hunters and others who witness someone shooting at insulators and other power line equipment should report it to Great Lakes Energy or their local law enforcement agency.

Careless gun owners who damage power line equipment can cause outages and fallen wires that could be stepped on by hunters or others, resulting in injury or death.

Because the vandalism typically occurs in more remote areas, it can take longer for utility crews to locate the damage, make repairs and restore service.

Great Lakes Energy is offering cash rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals who cause outages. Anyone who witnesses such vandalism is encouraged to call Great Lakes Energy (888) 485-2537 or local law enforcement agencies.

Get your home ready for winter

- Clean your chimney and have your furnace inspected annually. These services can each range between $50-$100, but could prevent your house from burning down. Change your furnace filter every month to 45 days.

- Do not overload electrical outlets.

- If planning to purchase a wood-burning stove, have it installed by a professional, meeting all codes and manufacturer installation guidelines. Use a humidifier to add moisture to the dry winter air.

- Use ceiling fans to distribute warm air more efficiently throughout the home.

- Install and maintain smoke detectors on all living levels and near each bedroom.

- Keep snow clear from utility meters for easy access.

- If possible, don't pile snow against the side of the home.

Spending a few hours now looking at roofs to make sure shingles are in place can save homeowners potentially expensive repairs later, said Ric Phillips, homeowner claims manager for AAA Michigan.

Township says yes to zoning change

By B. J. Hetler

An 11-acre parcel of land located behind Kmart in Charlevoix Township was recommended for rezoning from C-3, commercial, to R-4, multi-family dwellings, by the planning commission on Nov. 4.

The 3-2 vote is favorable to developer John Watson and land owner John Campbell of Charlevoix, who plan to construct up to 129 single-family residential units.

Each unit is proposed to be approximately 1,100 square feet. Up to a maximum of eight units can be contained in a single building.

Resident Margaret Martin who lives near Stover Creek is concerned about a number of issues with the development in the area.

"I'm concerned about the traffic from such a large development," Martin said. "I hope the developers look at the neighborhood and see how it would impact the quietness. There's also a number of walkers and runners who use the area and there are some places where you can't get off the road.

"Everyone knows progress has to come, but it's a mass-concentrated development," Martin said. Some of her neighbors have mentioned the area could stay commercial and house boat storage.

Area resident John Pidek wants the zoning to remain commercial.

"It would be a tragedy for this small neighborhood to have that amount of traffic pouring out onto Ferry Avenue," Pidek said. "There are children playing around here."

Whether the land remains zoned commercial or is rezoned multi-family, the area is land-locked from M-66, and traffic from any development would need to access Ferry Avenue, Dr. Edward Newcomb said. One of the driveways would be across from his street.

Newcomb questioned the township planners actions.

"There's already another large parcel in that area zoned R-4 that's not even being used," he said. "Why does the township want more R-4 zoning?"

Newcomb, and others he has talked with, are most concerned about the volume of people who could live on the parcel and the resulting traffic and congestion.

"It's better suited for commercial, but even if it were multi-family it wouldn't be so bad if there were 30 or so units," Newcomb said.

But once zoning changes to R-4, a developer may promise few units, but is entitled to put as many as 150 units on the land. The type of housing is also not restricted, said Newcomb. It could be condos, apartments or subsidized housing.

City plans for 'Harbor' expansion

An anticipated spring 2000 expansion construction date by Harbor Industries Inc. has the city working on infrastructure projects to meet the company's timetable.

Projects include sewer upgrades, building a major sewer lift station, water main extensions and storm sewer detention pond for water runoff. The cost is approximately $1.3 million, said city manager Mike Wiesner. The state's Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MEDC) has preliminarily committed to fund 90 percent of this amount, he said.

The city will also construct a new driveway that will service both Harbor Industries and the airport.

Wiesner discussed with MEDC the negotiation of a contract with engineer John Adams & Associates to perform the infrastructure engineering. Adams has worked for the city in the past, Wiesner said. MEDC is agreeable with the choice of engineering firm so long as the contract does not exceed $100,000.

"I feel it is important to have an engineer on board whom we know and is capable of coordinating this type of work in the City's best interests," Wiesner said in a statement to city council. "John Adams & Associates has the necessary capabilities to coordinate a project of this type."

City council gave the go-ahead to negotiate with Adams at a meeting on Nov. 8.

Harbor Industries, located at U.S. 31 South and M-66, announced an expansion on Nov. 1 that will result in an approximately 283,000 square foot building, up from its present 150,000 square feet. The company will sit on 15 acres, and almost four times the size of usable space will be created.

Developer John Watson said neither he nor Campbell have any interest in any other type of housing than condominiums.

"This is a good project, nicely constructed, and will add value to the area," Watson said. He said the quality will be similar to The Meadows of Petoskey development on Greenwood Avenue. He encouraged people to take a look at that project.

Traffic will have two access driveways onto Ferry Avenue to help the flow, Watson said.

The rezoning request now goes to the County Planning Commission on Dec. 9, and then on to the township board for final determination.

Newspaper publisher moves headquarters to Charlevoix

By B. J. Hetler

Sometimes logic gets in the way.

That's what Frank Shepherd said happened to him. But, with his wife, Beth, as his inspiration, Shepherd threw logic to the wind and realized his desire.

Shepherd, 57, is the owner of numerous daily and weekly newspapers in Michigan operating under his company, 21st Century Newspapers, Inc., which was formed in 1995.

Newspapers include Detroit-area papers, such as the Oakland Press, the Macomb Daily, the Daily Tribune, and Northern Michigan papers, such as the newly acquired Boyne Citizen and the East Jordan Journal.

The problem for Shepherd and his family, he said, was that their home is in Charlevoix, but business headquarters are in Mount Clemens, just outside Detroit. So for the past couple of years, Shepherd has commuted between home and business.

That got old and Shepherd decided his strongest desire was to join his family in Charlevoix. So, logically, he said he determined that he would either seek a merger or sell his business. It seemed to him his only choice.

But, Beth encouraged him to move his headquarters to Charlevoix, instead of selling.

"She kept telling me I could do it," he said.

A combination of confidence in his management staff and technology made the move a reality for Shepherd and his family.

"I feel very comfortable with them (management) handling things," he said. "They're very responsible."

Shepherd's management philosophy is to choose qualified employees and then let them do their job, he said.

"Hire superior publishers and managers," Shepherd said. "You have to articulate your vision and have key strategic goals, and then leave them alone. Hire people with the knowledge and passion, and treat people well."

Technology will allow Shepherd to be connected at any time with the financial, production and circulation aspects of his business while in Charlevoix.

Shepherd expects to complete the move by the end of the year. He said he is excited about being in Charlevoix. His wife is a Charlevoix native and their son, Ben, is a sophomore at Charlevoix High School.

Shepherd said he has been in the newspaper business for 40 years. His first newspaper job in Port Huron where he grew up, was as a paper carrier for the Port Huron Times Herald. The paper's owner brought him into the office and set him at the task of stuffing comics.

Shepherd said the experience at the Times Herald was a good one. The paper eventually paid for him to take classes at a community college. After eight years Shepherd ventured out in 1966 to Utica and bought his first newspaper, a weekly.

Shepherd says he has plans to keep growing with shoppers, dailies and weeklies.

"Owning newspapers — it's the only thing I've ever done," he said. "I love to create something new."

New World Cafe a blessing for diners

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

What Charlevoix has needed for a long time is a good carry out "tote cuisine" — which means wonderful casseroles and dishes to round out a company dinner we can serve at home. Fortunately, we now have this blessing in the New World Cafe, located on Bridge Street and owned by David Hayden and his partner Jeff Karbowski.

For the last two years their homemade breads, bagels, muffins, scones, and French toast have brought them repeat business for breakfast — they open at 8 a.m., and for lunch — they close at 3 p.m. In addition, the major thrust of the business has been catering. In summer, boaters have toted tasty treats aboard, such as marinated fresh vegetable salads, chopped shrimp salads and lasagna casseroles.

Still, the joy of catering private dinner parties is Dave's favorite pastime. He already has a number of bookings lined up for the holiday season. For example a customer may choose a savory appetizer, roast beef or tenderloin, duck l'orange, apple strudel or steamed English Christmas puddings with hard sauce.

Dave and Jeff will also follow your own recipe if you wish. They liked preparing my curried chicken with condiments, that turned out really well, and plan to feature other popular recipes such as Tomato Pudding from my book, All About Parties. This month's feature is Schnecken, which is the German name for Pecan Rolls and, confidentially, they sold out the first day!

Dave's interest in food comes to him honestly since he started cooking in his mother's kitchen at the age of three. His great-grandmother was a caterer and his whole family enjoyed extended family dinners at their home in Midland. It was Dave's uncle who first interested him in French cooking. After college he worked in restaurants full and part time. The move to Miami, however, was his lightning point. There, he became excited about the cultural difference in foods, comparing Paraguayan dishes with those of Chile or Mexican recipes from Cuba. After 12 years in Florida, Dave moved to Ann Arbor where he was associated with the well-known caterer "Movable Feast." After six years he started catering throughout the state on his own, and finally returned to Midland where he opened a vegetarian restaurant.

While vacationing in Charlevoix, he noticed that a small bakery was available on Bridge Street and he talked Jeff into making the move "up north" with him.

Unfortunately, they encountered an unexpected problem. Dave found out he had cancer and to top it off he didn't carry any health insurance! Jeff bravely carried on in the cafe, while Dave underwent radiation treatment. This summer Dave returned to work and found that the more he worked the better he felt. Today his energy level is normal and he considers himself a survivor.

People who really care about food will enjoy talking to Dave as I have. We agree that when a dash of cinnamon or nutmeg is called for, that a tablespoon will not make the dish taste better. On the contrary! Nor do we believe that new is always better! Remember the brouhaha when Coca-Cola changed their Classic Coke recipe? The public was up in arms. As we round out the century, it's a good time to salute some of the old favorites that cannot now, nor ever, be improved on. But then again if you'd like to be adventurous, be Dave's guest and try some spicy South American specialties. Either way, you can't go wrong!

Hospital Holly Daze

Two visitors to last year's Charlevoix Area Hospital Holly Daze Live Auction admire one of the many decorated Christmas trees that were up for auction. More than a dozen such trees will be up for auction at this year's Holly Daze Live Auction and wine party, which is scheduled for 6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 26 in the lower level of the hospital. Along with fully decorated Christmas trees, other items to be auctioned off include a pearl necklace, rounds of golf and dinner for four at Charlevoix Country Club, a European rocking horse, a Canadian toboggan and pad, a pine doll house, a framed photo of Lake Michigan Beach and Charlevoix Lighthouse along with wreaths, gift baskets, gift certificates, framed art along with many other items. Tickets are $20 each and include wine and hors d'oeuvres. Call 547-4024 to make reservations. (Courtesy photo)

Holiday is busy travel time in Michigan

An estimated 1.5 million Michigan residents — 16 percent of the population — will travel during the 1999 Thanksgiving holiday period, according to a press release from AAA Michigan.

That figure is up from 1.3 million last year. According to an Auto Club survey, 40 percent of those traveling will be heading to a destination within Michigan. Popular destinations outside of Michigan include Illinois (16 Percent), Ohio (11), and New York (11).

Eighty percent of travelers intend to visit with relatives during their journey, however, only 55 percent plan to stay with relatives. The average trip will include four travelers and last five days. Thanksgiving weekend is traditionally one of the busiest travel periods of the year, says AAA, prompting heavier-than-normal traffic volumes.

"Holiday travelers heading to airports should be prepared for crowds and travel lightly," says Larry Dickens, AAA Michigan Travel Vendor Relations Director. According to Dickens, some airlines may limit the size and number of carry-on items, especially during heavy travel periods when planes are at full capacity.

Detroit Metropolitan Airport handles as many as 105,000 persons per day on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving and 110,000 the Sunday following. This represents a substantial increase from the normal traffic pattern of 80,000 daily passengers. AAA recommends arriving at the airport at least two hours before domestic flights and three hours before international flights.

Other suggestions:

Expect heavy congestion in front of the terminals around curbfronts. Curbs will be reserved for active loading and unloading only. Drivers dropping off or picking up passengers will not be allowed to wait. Park in short-term parking and meet your party in the baggage claim area.

OPINIONS

Give thanks for living in Charlevoix

EDITORIAL

Thanksgiving marks the official beginning of the holiday season, although we see it starting earlier every year, with some Christmas advertising appearing before Halloween.

We like the holiday, because people take time from their busy schedules to spend time with family and friends, to share fun and friendship, often over a nice meal.

It's also the time many take a few moments to reflect upon the many things they have to be thankful for in their lives.

We've learned over the years that developing a list of those things that mean the most to us is easy to develop — particularly in Charlevoix. When we read headlines in our nation's newspapers or watch the evening news, we realize that Charlevoix has escaped many of the tragedies faced in other parts of this country and the world. Even this month, we've seen people lose their homes and businesses as a result of violent storms and earthquakes, others because of fire and violent crime.

If you've lived in Charlevoix for any period of time, you realize why our community is such a desirable place to live. People from around the country come to enjoy our fresh water, beaches and natural beauty, which is why we call ourselves Charlevoix the Beautiful.

But, there's more than just natural features that make this community so attractive. We have a wonderful school system with its dedicated staff, a strong local hospital with an excellent team of healthcare providers, a great retail community, and most important, a caring community.

When we look back over the hundreds of news stories and photographs we publish every year, it becomes apparent to us that Charlevoix is a very caring and giving community. If people truly are in need, there's always some organization or individual in the community to lend a helping hand. We've seen it countless times, regardless of the time of year.

These are qualities that money simply can't buy. Regardless of how you spend your Thanksgiving, take a minute to reflect on why we are so fortunate to live in Charlevoix.

Take another minute to look around, and if you know someone that could be spending the day alone — reach out and extend a hand of friendship. Show them why Charlevoix is a caring community.

Have a happy Thanksgiving!

Don't ship plutonium here

Editor:

On Oct. 26, I attended a public meeting in Mackinaw City held by the United States Department of Energy (DOE) regarding the Parallex Project and proposed shipment of weapons-grade plutonium through Northern Michigan. I attended this meeting on behalf of the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council because we have some serious concerns about it.

One of our concerns was the lack of public participation in the decision-making process until a very late stage in the planning. One of the hallmarks of our democracy is citizen involvement. That's why it's so important that we have this opportunity to participate in this issue that can have great impact on our lives.

We have serious questions about the rationale for the selected route. After reviewing the Environmental Assessment published by the Office of Fissile Materials Disposition, I have questions about how and why the route through Northern Michigan was selected. Aside from the obvious problems of traveling across the Mackinac Bridge and the International Bridge, based on the DOE's own data, it seems as if this particular route should not even be considered. For example, of the seven routes considered, this route is the second longest in miles, has the fifth highest affected population, and has the second-highest risk of cancer fatalities.

Based on the DOE's own data, and given the seven potential routes under consideration, there seems to be no logic to the decision to select what is clearly the second most risky route.

This route poses unacceptable risk to the region. Northern Michigan is the center of the Great Lakes which contain 20 percent of the available fresh water on the planet.

We all get the chance to make choices in our lifetime. These choices define who we are. In the past, our leaders decided to invest in nuclear arms to safeguard our ideology. Today, we are faced with the enduring task of safeguarding ourselves from the hazards of this nuclear legacy. As we proceed, we must ensure that we go forth with as much care and integrity as humanly possible.

The DOE has invested a substantial amount of resources in studying the environmental impacts of the Parallex Project. Based on the data so far presented to the public, the route through Northern Michigan, across the Mackinac Bridge and into Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, clearly does not provide the lowest risk for this project. I sincerely hope that the DOE will make the choice that respects its own research and protects the integrity of the Great Lakes ecosystem.

Sincerely,

Kristina Wieland

Great job on 'Grease'

Editor:

Hats off to Charlevoix Performing Arts students for the upbeat exciting fall show "Grease." The choice of this timeless story touched the memories of every generation in attendance. Recent school tragedy in the public forefront has touched us all with confusing sadness. This lively, entertaining example of young people, talent, and hard work was uplifting. My brother drove from Troy to attend the performance on Saturday night. He was impressed at the number of students who exhibit dedication, even if they have a background part. Equally he was surprised at the community support that rallied to make those performances a special event.

We are blessed to have a small town with so many people that care about each other. An encore applause to Charlevoix Performing Arts for promoting that spirit.

Travelers hit the road over holiday weekend

TRAVELERS

New security measures may mean more hand-searches of checked and carry-on baggage, which may cause slowdowns at check-in and screening check points.

All passengers are required to have photo identification. This is true regardless of the type of ticket issued (paper or electronic). International travelers will be required to present a valid passport, and possibly a visa, for themselves and their children.

Wrap gifts after you arrive at your destination. Security personnel may request that gifts be unwrapped at screening check points.

Stay calm in lines and during inspections. Don't make jokes or take actions that may be construed as threatening.

The 102-hour Thanksgiving Day holiday (6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 24, to midnight Sunday, Nov. 28) is traditionally a time for family travel. But the holiday also falls at the end of the firearm deer hunting season, which means hunters will take advantage of the long holiday weekend. According to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, nearly 750,000 hunters will spend tens of millions of hours hunting white-tailed deer during the 16-day firearm deer season, which ends Nov. 30.

A large deer herd, combined with large numbers of cars on the road, creates a high probability for collisions. In 1998, 65,397 deer-vehicle crashes were reported. Four people were killed as a result of these crashes and another 2,381 were injured.

Michigan motorists will find gasoline plentiful during the holiday weekend, paying an average 25 cents more per gallon than last year at this time. The statewide average of self-serve, no lead regular (as of Nov. 8) is $1.285 per gallon.

During the 1998 Thanksgiving holiday period, 22 persons died in 19 fatal crashes on Michigan roads, compared with 20 deaths in 1997. Restraints were not used by 11 (61.1 percent) of the victims who had them available. Eight, or 42.1 percent of the fatal crashes, were alcohol-or drug-related.

Parents: 'Can We Talk?'

Parents of Charlevoix Middle School students are meeting on Monday nights for the second group of the "Can We Talk?" series.

The sessions are designed to help parents start discussions with their kids about self-esteem, puberty and sexuality, mixed messages in the media, and peer pressure.

In the workshops, parents get to talk about important issues facing their children, including alcohol, drugs and AIDS. Parents receive advice on how to bring up sensitive topics at home.

The program is funded through a grant from the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency received from the Michigan Abstinence Partnership.

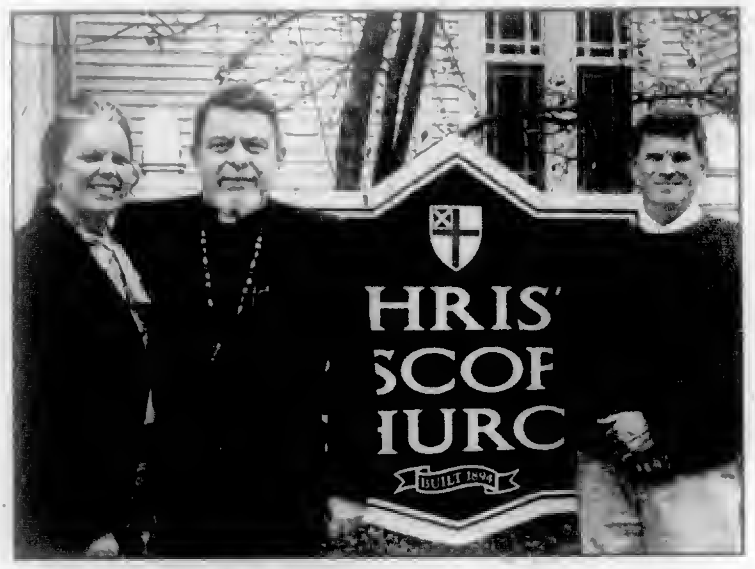
Christ Episcopal Church welcomes new rector

By B. J. Hetler



Charlevoix Christ Episcopal Church welcomed its new Rector on Sunday. With Father Jim Gunn are his wife, Jan, and (right) senior warden Bob Nicol.

After a couple of years without a permanent Rector, the congregation of Christ Episcopal Church filled the pews on Sunday to hear Father Edward James "Jim" Gunn give his first message.

"He gave a wonderful welcome message," church member Ellie Nicol said. "It was right-on spiritually. He filled us in with his spiritual growth, and we got to know him through his background."

It just happened to be the Sunday of the church's Thanksgiving dinner and was a good reception for Father Gunn and his wife, Jan, said Nicol.

Father Gunn and Jan came to Charlevoix from Fitchburg, Mass. where he was Rector at the Good Shepherd for four years. He has been a priest for 20 years.

Father Gunn was born in New York and has lived in 13 states, none of them Michigan, until now. He earned a B.S. in systems analysis from the University of Miami. He and Jan met in high school and have been married for 35 years. They have four grown children and six grandchildren.

Father Gunn served in the Navy for 12 years, and it was during this time that he felt a need to join the ministry.

"My call came while I was in the Navy," Gunn said. "I felt God directing me toward ordination." He entered the seminary in San Diego in 1975, and was ordained in 1978.

When he felt led into the ministry, Father Gunn remembers how it was confirmed to him.

"Three people within a 24-hour period who were from the church I was attending, all said I should go into the ministry," Gunn said. "I prayed and it felt real. I spent a week or two in prayer. My wife felt the same. We went to our priest and prayed. We had discussions with the congregation members and it was confirmed."

Now, 20 years later in the ministry and four years as Rector in Fitchburg, the couple find themselves in Charlevoix.

"We felt God wanted us to move on," Father Gunn said.

When he found out he was led to Charlevoix he said he knew it was a beautiful area, but he had a reservation.

"I had a long talk with God about the (winter) weather, but He didn't listen," Father Gunn said.

But they are settling in and getting to know the church and the community.

"The church is interested in strong spiritual growth," Father Gunn said. "It wants to grow and expand."

He says he wants what God wants. He will use his experience in prayer and healing.

"I've developed a course in prayer," Father Gunn said. "Why we pray and the elements in prayer, such as meditation using the scriptures, and silent prayer. My main concern is what draws people closer to God, not what their background is."

Services are held at 10 a.m. on Sunday.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

Here's a Thanksgiving Day poem, with apologies to Alfred Lord Tennyson and a prayer that you and yours might rejoice in the bounty of God's blessing in your life during this time of Thanksgiving.

I woke before the dawn had transformed darkness into day
And lay there 'neath the quilts that held the morning chill at bay.
My final thoughts as I'd lain down
last dark November night
Had been that God would see me safely through 'til morning's light.
His blessings sure, His promise true,
He'd watched o'er me 'til day
And called me early to His side, and moved in me to pray.
I praised His name and offered Him
the glory He is due
And asked the Holy Spirit to breathe life in me anew.
I spoke to Him of all the different ways I'd let Him down
And let Him know, but for His grace,
I'd still be lost, not found.
I prayed His blessing on my house,
on all my kith and kin
Then I recalled what day it was,
and offered thanks to Him.
Thank you, Father, for assurance that the sun will rise
That clouds and sun and wind and birds will fill the morning skies.
Thank you for your faithfulness to give me all I need
And thank you for reminding me
I have no need for greed.
Thanks to you I rise from bed, place one foot 'fore the other
And thanks to you I've grown to view each lost soul as a brother.
Thanks to you I'm not alone,
to face the day in fear
And when I'm weary, weak, and tired you'll always draw me near.
And whisper that you made me in your image, out of love,
Thus Jesus Christ, who died for me,
came down from up above.
Thank you, Father, that no matter what mistakes I make Your promise of forgiveness is a promise you won't break.
For even though I lie here weak and sinful through and through
I feel Your presence, hear Your voice, and place my trust in You.
Amen

— Rev. Stephen Guthrie

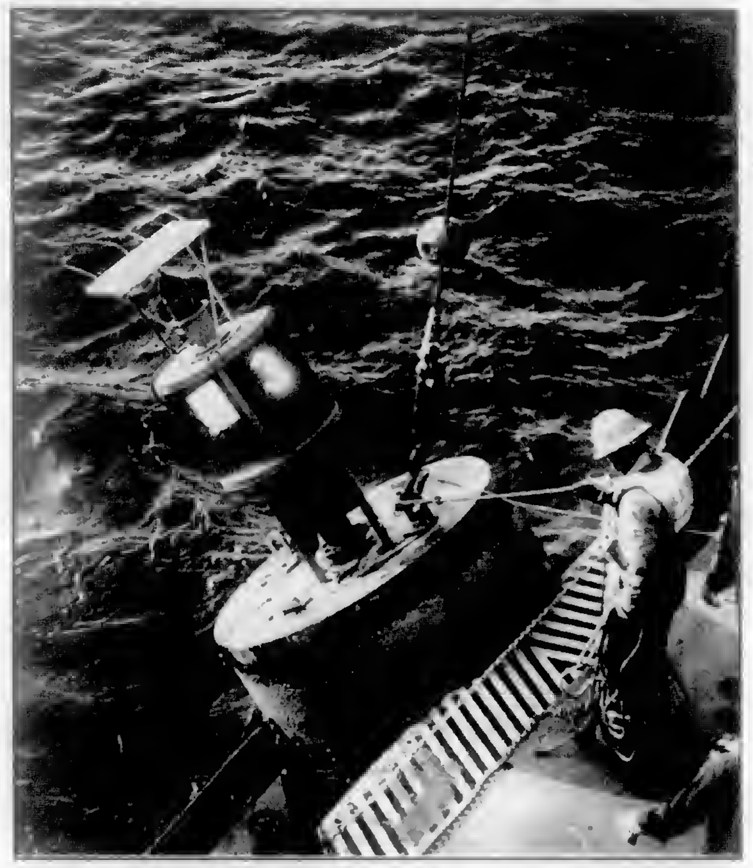
Acacia's buoy boys

Crew blessed with a 'good training day'

By Ginger Winter
For the Charlevoix Courier



A large boom powered by a hydraulic pump carefully hoists the buoys. This is the smallest buoy that the Acacia deals with and it is 17 feet long and weighs 4,000 pounds. The largest of the buoys is 9 feet in diameter, 32 feet long and weighs 18,000 pounds. (Photo by Ginger Winter)

The 48-member crew of the U.S. Coast Guard Acacia is mid-way through the fall buoy run, the seasonal removal of navigational buoys. It will last until just before Christmas — if the weather cooperates.

The crew will inspect 135 buoys. Of those, 74 will be completely removed, or decommissioned. Sometimes they are replaced with special winter markers that can withstand the ice.

Executive officer Ken Marien, 33, says the No. 1 problem is bad weather and the bitter cold winter brings. It is also dangerous.

"Ice can destroy buoys or submerge them," he said. "Ice can tear out solar panels, lights, or rip a cage right off. The deck will get a sheet of ice and when it's sprinkled with sand it gets very messy."

Navigational buoys are essential to boaters. Some buoys mark dangerous shoals while others are geared for weather satellites or other Loran navigational aids.

For this particular run on Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix, the weather couldn't have been better for the essentially new crew. It was a calm and almost windless day with less than 10 knots of wind, and warm. Unseasonably warm for November.

"This is a good training day," Marien says looking out from the bridge to the deck below. Crew members on deck are between the ages of 18 and 22 and come from all over the country. They wear stained khaki work coveralls with orange life vests. If on deck, it is mandatory to wear safety goggles and hardhats. The work is hard.

"Teamwork and durability are the keys to surviving the buoy run," he says. "It can be dangerous and they have to know the job as well as they can. We set aside one week each month for training and do drills to maintain proficiency. That's our biggest challenge, to maintain proficiency."

Things can go wrong on duty. The boat might overshoot or undershoot a buoy as it positions itself upstream and upwind, or a chain could snap. In salt water, the chains will corrode over with barnacles and seaweed. Not a problem for the guardians of the 'eighth sea,' the fresh waters of and near the Great Lakes.

"Charlevoix usually makes it to the top of the dream sheet," Marien says referring to an assignment data card that gauges a person's performance and skills with the needs of the Coast Guard. "Charlevoix is a great place to be stationed."

Up on the bridge, another group charts the exact latitude and longitude coordinates which places buoys on an assigned position. The ship's brains are here. Acacia is equipped with GPS (global positioning system), radar and other navigational computer programs that all need to be checked and rechecked. Paperwork and checklists are filled out and signed off. Orders are made to the places where things happen.

Down below in the always hot and very noisy engine room, more than 100 different readings shown on various dials are checked hourly. This is the heart of the 55-year-old ship. Two propulsion generators produce and pump electricity from 29,000 gallons of diesel fuel.

"The ship burns 70 gallons an hour, depending on how fast we're going," head engineer Corey Lackaff yells above the noise.

Township moves against factory farms

By B. J. Hetler

Factory farms, hog hotels, intensive farming operations — they all refer to large numbers of farm animals jammed together on very few acres.

Along with the problem for the animals who don't have a little elbow room, come the problems of noise, odors, water resource pollution and devaluation of residential property, say opponents of a bill in the state legislature.

One local township south of Charlevoix sees the factory farms as a threat. So, Norwood Township is moving to amend its ordinance to prevent the mega-farms from operating there.

"Intensive farming operations are not currently regulated," Norwood Township clerk Doris Pearl said. "We want to regulate them. The state legislature is trying to take away local control."

The bill will allow farmers to ignore local agricultural laws, so long as they are not deemed a threat by the state to public health or the environment.

Northern Michigan is a tourist-based area and Norwood Township wants to protect the serenity that draws people to the area in the summer, as well as protect the residents, Pearl said.

Senate Bill 205, sponsored by state Sen. Joel Gougeon (R-Bangor), passed the Senate in mid-October by a 23-13 vote. It is scheduled to be heard before the full House soon after Thanksgiving.

Proponents say the bill will strengthen Michigan's Right-to-Farm Act by preventing townships from denying family farmers the right to farm competitively.

A significant proponent is the Michigan Farm Bureau, the state's largest farm organization with more than 170,000 family members in 68 counties.

"Section 4 (of the Right-to-Farm Act) allows townships to enact their own agricultural ordinances that are sometimes unrealistic, unreasonable and uneconomical for a farmer to comply with," legislative counsel Ron Nelson said. "By enacting over-restrictive ordinances, they are making it difficult — and sometimes impossible — for today's family farmers to adapt their operations to remain competitive."

Charlevoix County planning director Larry Sullivan sees this as the problem with Norwood Township's proposed ordinance changes.

"They're going to the extreme," Sullivan said. "They would exclude not only factory farms from the township, but other farming activities. Requiring farms to meet these requirements would most likely preclude even a beef operation from occurring in the township.

"I understand what they are trying to do, but it's too much. And I don't think factory farms are a threat here," Sullivan said.

Rod Cortright is the executive director of the Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service. He also does not see northern Michigan becoming a haven for factory farms.

"Our geography is not conducive," Cortright said. "These types of operations are more in the plains states like Montana and even Utah.

"There are transportation concerns. We have no packing plants, most of them are in Ohio and Indiana."

Cortright said the few Michigan hog hotels are in the southern part of the state.

"It's extremely remote up here, given the foreseeable economic conditions and trends," he said.

But the state Sierra Club opposes the bill and has "serious concerns," said Martha Lancaster, Sierra Club vice president of Algonquin.

"We can see it happening in this area," Lancaster said. "We're worried from a pollution point of view and about food safety. The animal management of feeding is to give growth hormones and antibiotics. This goes into our food."

The Michigan Township Association represents more than 1,200 local townships. During legislative hearings, it expressed concern about the control of manure odors from the siting of large hog operations.

Farm Bureau's Nelson responded to the concerns.

"The technology simply does not exist — at any price — to eliminate odors," he said. "We can manage and minimize odors at a realistic level. We can better define what is an appropriate site for larger operations, and townships can still determine setbacks under this bill.

"But, the fact remains, if you move next to a railroad track, you ought to be prepared to hear and see a train. And if urban people move next to a farm or an area zoned for agriculture — they should expect to see and hear farming."

Norwood Township is revising its ordinance draft in the hopes of receiving a favorable recommendation by the county planning department, while still protecting its interests.

The Norwood Township Board will determine approval or disapproval of the ordinance.

MSU goal: Subdue hog farm odors

Can hog facilities be made to smell nice enough not to offend the neighbor? Animal scientists at Michigan State University say yes. They know it can be done, and they are working to perfect a cost-effective system for swine producers, according to an article published in AgriTips, the Michigan Farm Bureau's newsletter.

"If we can solve the odor issue, most of the land-use conflicts associated with animal agriculture go away," said Maynard Hogberg, MSU Animal Science Department chairman. He spoke to legislators, legislative aides and others from state government when they toured the new low-odor Swine Teaching and Research Facility at MSU recently.

"We've designed this facility to be a model for handling manure and odors," he said. "Our goal is to create a low-odor, environmentally benign facility."

Among the odor reduction methods under study is ozone treatment of manure. Ozone is a highly reactive oxygen molecule, normally found at low levels in the air, that is made on site by discharging electricity through oxygen.

Developers drop rezoning request

By B. J. Hetler

A rezoning of land off of Waller Road near Mercer was not recommended by the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission on Nov. 3, and the developers say they won't pursue their request.

Tom and Sue Erber and Ron Weislik sought rezoning from R-1, single family, to R-4, multi-family dwellings for approximately 15 acres of land.

The planning commission cited density, traffic concerns, the close proximity of soccer fields and inconsistency with the neighborhood, in declining the zoning change.

Although turned down by a 4-1 vote, the developers could have proceeded with their request to the county planning commission, and then to the township board. But, Tom Erber said they made their decision out of respect for their neighbors.

"They're good neighbors and we have a certain responsibility to them," Erber said. "Zoning issues are very personal issues, you're working with people's back yards."

Plans were to build about 14 condominium buildings. The land is located hear Shanahan Field.

Many area residents were against developing the land with multi-family dwellings.

"My son and grandchildren go to the park frequently and it feels safe," resident Frances Ladi said. "But if the area gets too congested, it's not safe anymore. And there's a country atmosphere that we won't have anymore."

Resident Jackie Krutsch's main concern was the traffic.

"There's also a project near Waller and U.S. 31, in Hayes Township," Krutsch said. "We would have traffic from both projects onto Waller Road."

The Erbers and Weislik plan to develop the land into single-family dwelling lots.

We're Here When You Need Us...

"We asked Mom to come and live with us so that we could take better care of her, but her independence is very important to her. We tried to be with her every day, but our work schedules and the kids' activities made that almost impossible. I worried and felt guilty just about all of the time.

Then we learned that VitalCare could help. Mom went along with the idea of having a home health aide come over three days a week to help her with laundry and light housekeeping. I stopped by the other day, and the two of them were having a great time over lunch.

I am so grateful; Mom has her independence, and I have peace of mind."

Website offers parents to help in educating their children

Just in time for National Family Week, Michigan Learning has announced that it will launch a new interactive web site for parents.

But don't look for advice on diaper rash or day care, this site will concentrate on how parents can maximize their kids education.

"Generally speaking, when parents are involved, children earn higher grades and enjoy more positive attitudes about school, " Linda Wacyk, editor of both the new web site and bi-monthly publication for parents, said in a press release.

In a recent poll, both parents and teachers agreed: parents could do a better job when it comes to being involved in their kids' education. That's where Michigan Learning comes in. Parents can log on to www.michiganlearning.org to find what they need to become more informed and involved partners in the education of their children. The site offers education news, innovations in learning, and simple techniques to help children learn better and new developments in education policy, both around the country and in Michigan.

Best of all, the site offers parents an opportunity to network with other parents to discuss what works — and what doesn't — when helping their kids learn.

"Survey research has shown that parents prefer to get information about school from other parents," said Wacyk, herself the mother of four children ranging in age from fourth grade through college. "Too often, though, busy families are disconnected from one another. Parents no longer have time to chat over the back fence. With Michigan Learning, they can connect with an on-line community of parents who may have struggled with the same issues."

At the Michigan Learning site, parents can participate in opinion polls, ask questions and respond to questions other parents have asked.

"We want to create a dialogue." said Wacyk. "The more voices the better. That's how we'll make our roles as parents easier, especially as that role relates to learning."

The web site will join Michigan Learning's other services to parents. These include a bi-monthly print publication and a 1-800-helpline that puts parents in touch with the facts and resources they need to maximize their children's education. They also offer on-site seminars that teach parents new ways to work with their children at home and advocate for them at school.

The purpose of National Family Week is to recognize the role of families and their contributions to a strong society. National Family Week has been observed since 1970 and will again this year receive a proclamation from President Bill Clinton. It is celebrated annually in nearly 1,000 communities across the nation.

Above, left: A second buoy was removed at Pine River Channel between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix. Deckhands are between the ages of 18 and 22. Under normal weather conditions for November, a sheet of ice would cover the deck making dangerous conditions even worse. Above, right: Acacia crewmen wait while the Coast Guard cutter maneuvers itself into the wind and against Lake Charlevoix's current. Because the buoy marks a shoal at Horse Point near Boyne City, it was replaced with another buoy that can withstand the ice. Right: Cleaned-up after a successful first buoy run, most of Acacia's 48-member crew and officers pose for the picture and call it a day. If the weather remains mild for the entire Lake Michigan and Huron runs, the boys will be back home in time for Christmas. (Photos by Ginger Winter)

Acacia tends to buoys

Electricity is used to operate everything from the motor to the equipment that runs the ship's lifelines — the lighting, sewage system and galley. A third and the smallest generator powers the enormous boom through a hydraulic pump. The boom is used to lift out the buoys, some weighing several tons each.

Most of the equipment is original to the ship and a fire is the worst thing that can happen. Crew members are constantly trained for such disasters as fire or floods, and keep general emergency and damage control teams on alert.

For a break, the Acacia crew works the lighthouses by repairing doors and windows and freshening paint. Life on board a Coast Guard cutter isn't bad. Meals are three-squared with plenty of food. For example, lunch on the Lake Charlevoix run was BBQ chicken, baked beans and potato salad. It seemed like a picnic for the balmy and unseasonably warm day.

"The longest trip for the Acacia is down to the Chicago area," Marien says. "Calumet Harbor and Milwaukee takes us about a week. The Straits of Mackinac also takes a week. There are lots of buoys there and it's a challenge because of the currents. One knot of current is equal to 25 knots of wind. Always work into wind and against the current. If the stern is in the wind, you can control where the bow is."

Acacia tends navigational buoys on all of Lake Michigan, northern Lake Huron, and all of Lake Charlevoix. They also check three offshore NOAH weather buoys that could easily get damaged by ice. Deck space limits the schedule to a slow pace. Marien says the Acacia can only fit five or six large buoys on its deck. Then there's the ship's slow 12 knots at full speed. On rough waters, nearly everyone gets sick.

"This is not an exciting spectator sport," Commanding Officer Michael Shomin says, although he's dealt with a few challenges. "On a bad buoy it can take two or three hours. I've seen one where it took eight hours. The buoys will have holes and it's basically sinking."

There are only two men on board from Michigan; Shomin is from Muskegon and Lieutenant J.G. Jason Bigger is from Traverse City. His father flew helicopters for the Coast Guard and retired there.

Although a tugboat recently knocked around all the buoys in heavy weather, they are now considered "on station." For a buoy to be considered on station, it cannot exceed an allowed radius or tolerance factor. Besides being exactly on the assigned position, a buoy can be anywhere between 50 and 100 yards from that assigned position.

"A small tugboat had come through here and must have hit all three buoys in Round Lake and took the first buoy off station by 33 yards. The boat was pulling dredge pipes and the wind blew up against buoys and docks," says 39-year-old Shomin. It's back on station now.

Guard's ancestor hunted for smugglers, pirates

The Coast Guard traces its roots to the Revenue Cutter Service founded by Alexander Hamilton, the nation's first Secretary of the Treasury, in 1790.

The fleet's primary responsibility was to stamp out smuggling and watch for pirates cruising the eastern seaboard.

The Revenue Cutter and the Life Saving Service merged to become the Coast Guard in 1915. In 1935, the Federal Lighthouse Service became part of its responsibility and in 1942, the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation united with the Coast Guard.

The Coast Guard is considered the smallest branch of the armed services and supports the Navy in time of war.

The Great Lakes has nine Coast Guard ships. Those with black hulls, such as the Acacia, can either be buoy tenders or icebreakers. Those with red hulls are larger icebreakers and white hulls are those for law enforcement or search and rescue missions.

It was determined in 1865 that the names of the Great Lake ships, or tenders, should be named after plants. Acacia is a tropical tree in Africa.

Rayders give tournament champs all they can handle

MANCELONA — First-year Charlevoix girls' basketball coach Jason Otter had said from Day One that he fully expected the Rayders to be playing their best ball of the season in November.

He was right.

The Rayders pushed a strong Elk Rapids team to the limit before succumbing, 63-57, last week in a Class C district semifinal game at Mancelona High School.

The loss ended Charlevoix's season at a very respectable 9-12 after the Rayders began the season 2-8.

Elk Rapids went on to upset Harbor Springs, 46-39, to win the district title, ending the Rams' three-year reign as the district champion. The Elks, 17-6, advanced to the Class C regional at Grayling High School, where they bowed to McBain, 60-58, on Monday night. Harbor finished 19-4.

The Rayders and Elk Rapids played an up-and-down game, with the Elks jumping to a 19-9 lead after one quarter. Charlevoix responded with a 19-2 run to open the second quarter, which gave the Rayders a 28-21 lead with under three minutes to play in the first half.

"We actually played nervous in the first quarter, but then we got going and made a nice run there," said Charlevoix assistant coach Jim Parrish, who was filling in for Otter. Otter was ejected from two regular-season games and, under Michigan High School Athletic Assocation rules, was not allowed to coach in the tournament.

"They (Rayder players) got over their nervousness and started running our offense the way we wanted to," Parrish said of the big turnaround in Charlevoix's play. "We got some points off our press.

"We don't really have a shooter, so we get things by trapping and going to the basket."

Elk Rapids closed to 30-26 at the end of the half, and the Rayder lead remained between one and four points throughout the third quarter. Charlevoix led, 43-40, heading into the fourth quarter and there was a definite smell of upset in the air.

But the Elks surged back in front as Kim Ridge scored seven of her game-high 22 points to give Elk Rapids a 52-46 advantage. The Elks never trailed again.

Still, the Rayders did not go quietly. They managed to tie the game at 54-all on Meghan Vogel's 10-foot jumper in the lane with just over two minutes left.

The Elks, who made 30-of-42 free throws in the game, hit on four free throws for a 58-54 lead with 57 seconds remaining, but it was a missed foul shot which was the key play.

Elk Rapids' Kalee Schwarz missed the second of two foul shots, but junior center Carrie Meyers grabbed the offensive rebound and made the put-back for a 60-54 lead.

"We had some nice momentum going, but that took a lot of the wind out of our sails," Parrish said of Meyers' back-breaking bucket. "She hurt us a lot just with her rebounding. Their second and third shots hurt us."

Meyers finished with 18 points and 10 rebounds.

Elk Rapids, which made 11-of-15 fourth-quarter free throws, made three more charity tosses in the final 41 seconds to offset a 3-pointer from Charlevoix's Danielle Vogelheim.

"I thought our girls stayed real composed down the stretch," said Elk Rapids coach Stephanie Rainey, who had led her team to two regular-season victories over the Rayders. "We knew this was going to be a real tough game and come down to the wire. It's hard to beat a team three times."

Kerstin Larsen led the Rayders with 19 points, scoring in transition, on the drive and from the outside. Leslie Hoffman and Danielle Vogelheim added nine points each, while Jennifer McClellan had eight points.

"All the girls gave it all they could and that's all we can ask of them," Parrish said. "It was fun. It was a good game."

Stockman, Boss, Vogelheim all-state honorable mention

The post-season honors for members of the Charlevoix High School boys' soccer team keep rolling in.

Seven Rayders picked up post-season accolades, including all-state honorable mention for seniors Sean Stockman, Ryan Vogelheim and Jon Boss.

Stockman, Vogelheim and Boss were each named to the all-district and all-regional teams. Stockman was all-district, all-region and all-state honorable mention last season. Vogelheim is also a repeater on the all-district team, and he was an all-region honorable mention a year ago.

Charlevoix senior goalie Chris Tilley was also named to the all-district team.

Charlevoix's Michael Ricks, Andy Granath and Roscoe Serrels were named all-district honorable mention.

Charlevoix grad named all-MIAA second team

Charlevoix native Mike Rautio, a junior offensive lineman at Olivet College, was named to the All-Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association second team offense.

Rautio is a Charlevoix High School graduate. Olivet finished 0-9 overall and 0-6 in the MIAA this season.

Free radon test kits available from health agency

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is offering free radon test kits.

Radon is a serious public health issue and citizens should be aware of the health risks associated with elevated levels of radon. Radon is the second-leading cause of lung cancer in the United States (only smoking causes more lung cancer deaths), according to a press release from the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

According to a report issued by the National Academy of Sciences, about 15,000 Americans die each year from lung cancer associated with exposure to elevated levels of radon.

Radon is present in elevated levels in about 12 percent of Michigan homes, and it is present in as many as 45 percent of homes in some counties. It is a naturally occurring invisible, odorless radioactive gas that is harmlessly dispersed in outdoor air, but when trapped in buildings, it can accumulate to harmful levels.

Radon comes from the natural radioactive decay of radium and uranium found in soils. The amount of radon that escapes from the soil to enter a house depends on many variables, including weather, soil porosity, soil moisture and the construction of the home itself. It moves through small spaces in permeable soils and fractured bedrock, ultimately entering buildings through openings in foundation floors or walls (floor drains, sumps and tiny cracks or pores, etc.).

The highest concentrations of radon are typically found in basements, however heating and air conditioning systems can quickly spread radon to other parts of a house. Radon can also enter water within private wells, later to be released into a home when water is used.

Most homes contain some concentration of radon and should be tested. It is easy to detect and remove from your home. Though most levels found in homes are below the EPA action levels, it is surprising how few homes are tested each year.

For more information, contact the Community Health Agency, 220 W. Garfield in Charlevoix; or call 547-6523 or (800) RADON GAS.

Follow these TIPS for a safe holiday party

Planning a holiday party? Whether you are having a party at a bar, hotel, office or home, a plan for serving alcohol responsibly is a must. Consider the following tips provided by the TIPS (Training for Intervention ProcedureS) program.

Following a sensible strategy for serving alcohol can prevent intoxication and drunk driving while still ensuring that everyone has a good time.

1. Hire only bartenders who are trained in the responsible service of alcohol.

2. Offer soft drinks, fruit juices, bottled water and coffee so that guests have an alternative to alcohol.

3. Have the servers "card" anyone who looks under 30. No identification, no alcohol.

4. Remind guests that even if they are not driving, it is against the law to serve a visibly intoxicated person.

5. Hire security or other monitors to observe the event away from the service areas.

6. Close the bar about one hour before the event is finished.

7. Make free transportation available both to and from an event in order to prevent drunken driving.

Buckle up for holiday traveling

Armed with new information that Michigan children are buckled up at rates substantially below that of adults, hundreds of Michigan law enforcement agencies are readying to take action by strictly enforcing child safety belt laws.

More than 400 Michigan law enforcement agencies are joining the national effort, Operation ABC Mobilization: America Buckles Up Children.

The effort began this week and runs through Thanksgiving weekend. Police departments, county sheriffs and Michigan State Police will patrol city streets, county roads and expressways looking for adults who neglect to buckle up children.

According to the National Air Bag and Safety Belt Campaign, Michigan has among the highest number of participating police agencies in the nation.

A just-released Michigan survey reveals that "forgotten children," ages 4-15, are buckled up only 58 percent of the time, according to the University of Michigan Transportation Research Institute. Researchers found that overall restraint use for this group is 66 percent and 93 percent for children ages 0-4.

"It's appalling that adults are not taking this responsibility seriously," Colonel Michael Robinson, director of the Michigan Department of State Police, said in a press release. "We can do something about this by taking aggressive enforcement action."

Traffic crashes remain the leading cause of death for children of all races. Nationally, nearly six out of 10 children who die in crashes are unbuckled. Of those, nearly half would be alive today if an adult had made sure they were buckled up.

The study also found that child safety restraint use is closely related to driver belt use, with child restraint use at more that 81 percent when the driver is buckled and only 33 percent when the driver is unbuckled.

"It's a parent's responsibility to see to it that they do everything within their power to keep them safe," Michigan Lt. Governor Dick Posthumus said in the same release.

Michigan law requires children up to age one to be in a child safety seat in the front or back seat of a vehicle. Children ages one to four must be in a child safety seat if they are in the front seat. That same age group must be in either a child safety seat, or in a safety belt in the back seat. Passengers up to age 16 must be wearing a safety belt in the front or back seat.

Beginning next spring, Michigan's standard safety belt law will take effect, requiring that children up to age 4 be required to ride in a child safety seat in the front and rear seating positions.

Free vision, audio screening for children

Every school year, certified vision and hearing technicians from Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency work with area schools to provide free vision and hearing screenings for students in Kindergarten through 11th grade.

If vision and or hearing problems are identified early, corrective treatment can be initiated and permanent damage or loss prevented. When a problem is identified during screening, the technician contacts the parent and recommends further evaluation.

Changes in a child's vision and hearing can interfere with his or her ability to learn, and screening programs are important because children have little or no comparison to know if they are seeing or hearing correctly.

For more information, call Suzette Daly at the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, 547-6523 or (800) 432-4121.

Getting ready

Jim Beamis (from left), Eden Garza, Sean Dockett and Mark Greyerbiehl place trees in East Park recently. The trees will be strung with lights during Friday night's Tree Lighting Celebration, which begins at 6 p.m. Children are welcome to bring their own weatherproof ornament and place it on the big tree in East Park. 12th annual World AIDS Day Dec. 1

The 12th annual World AIDS Day is Wednesday, Dec. 1 and Planned Parenthood of Northern Michigan will mark the event with an AIDS video festival and free HIV testing at its health center in Petoskey.

This year's theme is "AIDS — End the Silence. Listen, Learn, Live!" The purpose is to promote communication with those who are affected, both directly and indirectly, by HIV/AIDS.

World AIDS Day aims to increase awareness and open lines of communication concerning AIDS.

Throughout the day, Planned Parenthood will continuously show several new and noteworthy videos about HIV/AIDS. Visitors can also pick up a free red ribbon to remember those who have been infected and affected by HIV and AIDS.

Brochures and other information about HIV/AIDS will also be available.

Free HIV testing will also be provided throughout the day. Appointments are recommended, but walk-in tests will be performed as time permits. All testing is done anonymously, and the new Orasure HIV test, which does not require a blood draw, is available.

Planned Parenthood educators and teen peer educators will also participate in the day's activities, providing information and educational materials at an event scheduled for North Central Michigan College.

Planned Parenthood is located at 1003 Spring St., Petoskey. For more information or to make an appointment for testing, call 347-9692.

POLAR BEARS WON THEIR FIRST TILT

DEFEAT PETOSKEY CEMENTS BY 20 TO 8 COUNT

Meet Tougher Opposition Against Ellsworth Packers Here Next Monday Evening

Charlevoix's Polar Bear basketball quintet opened their 1930-31 season at the local gymnasium last Thursday evening with a 20 to 8 win over the Petoskey Portland Cement company cagers from Petoskey.

While the local aggregation showed plainly lack of condition after only several days of practice, they repeatedly opened with spurts of that tremendous speed and scoring power that has carried them through two undefeated seasons in northern Michigan competition and marked them one of the strong independent quintets in Michigan.

The Polar Bears got away to an early lead and were never headed throughout the remainder of the contest. At the half they were leading 11 to 3. The final two periods lacked the speed of the opening cantos, the boys showing lack of condition as the game progressed. However, they garnered [illegible] more points to five for the visitors and romped through the contest to an easy victory.

Brown, lanky Polar Bear center, led his team in scoring. He made a total of 10 points through four field goals and a pair of free tosses. Davenport followed with a trio of baskets and Kipke furnished the other goal. Ikens and Cooper each missed two free tosses and Davenport one. For Petoskey, Earnst made a basket and two free tosses, Murray a goal and a free one, and Campbell one foul. Hugh Mayne refereed the contest satisfactorily.

The Polar Bears stack up against tougher opposition next Monday night when they meet the fast-traveling Ellsworth Packers on the local floor. This Ellsworth outfit, boasting several former northern Michigan class D champions, have already marked up a couple of victories and will have an edge as far as practice is concerned. We look for a mighty good game.

BASKET BALL

Arrangements Have Been Made For a Series of Match Games

High School Girls Will Endeavor to Keep up Reputation of C. H. S. A. A.

The high school athletic association have recently taken up the subject of basket ball. Arrangements have been made to have a series of class games as well as match games with outside teams.

Much enthusiasm has been aroused among the girls as well as the boys and the outlook for a strong representative team, is good. Also good prospects for strong class teams.

Outside of tennis basket ball is the first athletic venture in which the girls of the high school could participate.

It has long been felt that some form of athletics in which girls could participate, should be inaugurated and not many of the girls have taken much interest in tennis, and with the class basket ball teams a good many of the high school girls can enjoy themselves.

Considerable time and expense have been expended to promote a successful season of games. To meet the expense of the season small fees will be charged for admittance to matched games and also the proceeds from the annual athletic play to be given Friday, December 10, will be placed in the basket ball fund.

EDITOR'S NOTE: These articles and photograph were compiled by Cynthia Postmus, with help from the Charlevoix Public Library. It is printed in its entirety as it originally appeared. "Polar Bears Won ..." was published in the Dec. 3, 1930 Charlevoix Courier, "Basket Ball" and the accompanying team photograph was published in the Dec. 9, 1909 Courier.

Planners give go-ahead to rezoning

By B. J. Hetler

A Charlevoix couple seeking a rezoning of their property are meeting neighborhood opposition to their request, but city planners recommended approval at a meeting on Monday, Nov. 29.

Donald and Lorraine Kelly of 100 Overlook Drive are asking for a rezoning from R-1, single family, to R-2A, two-family. The planning commission recommendation now goes to city council for final action, probably on Monday, Dec. 6.

If the R-2A rezoning is granted by city council, the Kellys will convert a garage and workshop structure on their property into an apartment.

But residents in the small neighborhood of three houses with its private drive want the area to remain single-family dwellings.

A public hearing in October brought out neighbors with their concerns.

Resident Maureen Radke sent a statement dated Oct. 7 to planning commissioners. Her objections to the rezoning include devaluation of the existing single-family homes in the area, and spot zoning — allowing use of the proposed land in a manner different than the other surrounding properties.

Residents Russell and Susan Bolt told the planning commission that they, too, are concerned about devaluation of their property. Other concerns are traffic and that the Kellys had not sought the proper permits to change their dwellings.

Residents Dennis and Joy Halverson have similar problems with the rezoning request.

The planning members then requested city attorney, Jim Young, to review the zoning legalities and render an opinion. The result was that the rezoning request was in line with state law and other requirements, such as the city's master plan.

Dennis Halverson addressed the planning commissioners at Monday's meeting with another concern.

> "Let the record reflect that I requested the city attorney to review my memo, and that planning members denied the request. I was not given the same opportunity as the other side."
> — Dennis Halverson

DEC 1999

Charlevoix home to champion feline

By B. J. Hetler

It's called "Charlevoix the Beautiful" for many reasons and now a champion cat adds to the designation.

Grand Premier Noblessa's Peace Maker of Stunning, known as Eli by his family, is a 15-pound Red Persian Neuter. The 2-year-old was recently chosen over more than 1,300 pedigreed felines as the world's most beautiful feline at the Cat Fanciers' Association (CFA) International Cat Show in Kansas City, Mo.

His owner is Kris Vanderbeek of Charlevoix, a cat-lover and breeder. Kris knew Eli would do well — he's been winning at numerous other shows — but when the judges' decision was announced, she was ecstatic.

"I screamed, I cried, I was a mess," Vanderbeek said. "It's incredible, I still can't believe it."

Eli, you see, didn't just win in his class or his division — he won "Best of the Best," which covers all breeds and the three categories: kitten, championship and premiership.

"This gorgeous Persian is an excellent example of the breed," Donald J. Williams, president of the CFA said. "And while we had numerous beautiful cats — from Maine Coons to Siamese — this Persian is the closest representation of its breed standard of any of the felines at our international show this year."

Eli's category of premiership is a spay and neuter class. His neuter condition was caused by a genetic birth defect.

"This is the first time a neutered cat has won such a prestigious competition," Vanderbeek said. "It's the ultimate show to win."

The CFA International Cat Show is the world's largest. This year's show, held Nov. 19-21, had the most number of entries in the CFA's 12-year history. Felines traveled from as far away as Australia and Japan to compete.

Vanderbeek lived with cats while growing up. After she married, her husband, Rick, gave her a Persian for an anniversary present. One Christmas he gave her another, and announced that it was show quality. She decided to give the show circuit a try, although she knew little about it.

"I learned as I went," Vanderbeek said. She perfected grooming of the cats to the judges' satisfaction, and watched other competitors to learn procedure.

The judges look for the standards, such as bone structure, big, round eyes, and tiny ears, Vanderbeek said. "The frosting on the cake is the coat — the length and the texture."

Her first show was in Grand Rapids, six years ago. She now shows at about 40 competitions a year.

Eli and her other cats keep her busy, she said. The grooming of a Persians' bountiful hair is time-consuming. She also has kittens to care for. She had extra duty when a mother cat died after giving birth to five kittens — Vanderbeek fed them every four hours for 12 weeks.

A Persian's personality is kind, loving, curious and attentive, Vanderbeek said. Her cats react instantly to her voice and come to her for a cuddle and a kind word.

Eli settles into Vanderbeek's arms with a look of refinement as his attributes are discussed by the humans. Another show is scheduled for Dec. 11-12 in either Phoenix or Louisville, and Eli and Vanderbeek will go. She says he loves the shows.

"He thinks they put these shows on for him," Vanderbeek said. "He holds his head up, he's very animated, and he delights the crowd."

Police, MADD team up

The holidays can be one of the deadliest times of the year on the roads with festive celebrations resulting in more drinking drivers, police warn.

The Charlevoix City Police Department is participating in the Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) holiday safe and sober driving promotion. Police cars will have red ribbons tied to antennas to show support for MADD's Tie One On For Safety public awareness campaign.

The traffic safety promotion with an anti-drunk driving emphasis began Thanksgiving week and continues through New Year's Day 2000.

"We think this is the season for increased vigilance in sober driving and this red ribbon signals our commitment to helping make that happen," Chief Dennis Halverson said.

MADD started the traffic safety promotion 13 years ago in an effort to stop the seasonal jump in alcohol-involved traffic crashes, and the related increase in deaths and injuries.

The promotion asks motorists to tie a red ribbon onto their vehicle antenna or mirror as a symbol of their promise to drive safe and sober throughout the holidays.

"If promoting sober driving can help deter drunk driving, then this effort is one more way we can protect this community," Halverson said. "For those who still choose to drive under the influence, we'll be there on the roads arresting violators."

While progress has been made, alcohol is still a significant factor in traffic crashes during the holidays and year-round.

Additionally, alcohol was a factor in traffic crashes last year in the state over the holidays. During Thanksgiving, eight of 22 traffic fatalities involved alcohol, Halverson said. Remarkably, none of the eight traffic deaths over Christmas involved alcohol, and New Year's, two of the 12 traffic fatalities involved alcohol, he said.

The police department hopes motorists will redouble their efforts for safe holiday driving, rather than get behind the wheel if they've been drinking, Halverson said.

"We'd rather that people prevent alcohol-impaired driving from occurring in the first place than having to make those drunk driving arrests," Halverson said. "We hope if people choose to drink they will plan ahead and make provisions for a safe and sober ride home."

The public is invited to stop by the police department or the city clerk's office and pick up a free red ribbon.

For more information on how to become involved in the area's Tie One On For Safety campaign or to get a ribbon, call MADD, (517) 631-MADD.

Back to the drawing board on downtown snowmobile issue

By B. J. Hetler

Supporters of allowing snowmobiles to travel downtown heard some good news, then some bad news, at Monday's city council meeting.

Some residents and organizations, such as the snowmobile club and the Convention and Visitors Bureau, recently asked city council to research changing the ordinance that governs snowmobile travel in and around the city of Charlevoix.

Council was agreeable, but hoped to use a resolution instead of changing its ordinance. It found that city rules would permit a resolution, only to find that state law would not.

Supporters want snowmobilers to be permitted to travel from the parking area at Ferry Beach, down Belvedere Avenue to downtown so they may visit the restaurants and shops.

The current ordinance allows snowmobiles to travel on a limited number of streets for purposes of ingress and egress only.

City council preferred to use a resolution, rather than rewriting a new ordinance, because it would be easier to change. City attorney Jim Young said he found that the ordinance would permit changes by resolution.

But, state law changed since the city adopted its ordinance, and state law does not permit resolutions, but requires that ordinances must be changed, Young said.

"I'm concerned that we must follow state law," Young said. "We can still get where we want to go, but not by resolution."

Young said he would look into changing the ordinance. Council asked him to check with other cities that allow snowmobiles to travel downtown, such as Grayling, East Jordan and Harbor Springs.

Young said he hopes to report to council at its next meeting on Monday, Dec. 6.

Much-deserved pat on the back for Kiwanis Club

EDITORIAL

The important role service clubs can play in their local communities came to light recently with our own Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

The club was recognized in Traverse City for sponsoring Boy Scout Troop 11 for 60 continuous years.

Kiwanis Club member Ken Weller received the honor on behalf of the Charlevoix club at the Scenic Trails Council's annual dinner, held recently at the Park Place Dome in Traverse City.

The 46-member club had the most years of sponsorship among the 12 sponsors honored this year.

We're sure the Kiwanis Club didn't expect the recognition, but it was nice to see a group of volunteers recognized for their many years of support to the Scouting movement in Charlevoix.

Troop 11 has been no stranger to those living in Charlevoix. Many young boys have had the opportunity over the years to be involved with the troop, and have lifetime character-building experiences.

We can't think of a better environment for a boy to learn the importance of teamwork, citizenship and general life skills under the leadership of some wonderful adult leaders over those 60 years.

Kiwanis was able to sponsor Troop 11 and help the other youth programs in Charlevoix through countless hours spent raising funds from projects like its famous maple syrup, Christmas CDs and special-event food stands, to just offering volunteer labor hours by club members.

The object of Kiwanis International is very simple:

- To give primacy to the human and spiritual, rather than the material values of life.
- To encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationships.
- To promote the adoption and the application of higher social, business and professional standards.
- To develop, by precept and example, a more intelligent, aggressive and serviceable citizenship.
- To provide, through Kiwanis clubs, a practical means to form enduring friendship, to render altruistic service and to build better communication.
- To cooperate in creating and maintaining that sound public opinion and high idealism, which make possible the increase of righteousness, justice, patriotism and goodwill.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club will hold a special dinner on Saturday, Dec. 4, at the Argonne Super Club to celebrate its 65th anniversary as a club.

We want to join the many others in the community and state who will be on hand to congratulate the club for this achievement.

Our thanks to the club membership for its many years of service to Charlevoix.

Letter to the editor

Let's take a look at Charlevoix's planning process

Editor:

An open letter to the school district, planning commissions, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. and Charlevoix County Land Conservancy:

It is time to take a hard look at the planning process in the Charlevoix area.

At the risk of being called a "Monday morning quarterback," it seems to me that if we had a more integrated planning process and, in particular, a capital improvements master plan, that there might be less turmoil over proposed new projects.

With a capital improvements plan in place a few years ago, needs and amenities may have been better anticipated and land set aside, for example, for new schools, a community center, an auditorium, a community pool, a larger city hall, a larger post office, new fire hall, or affordable housing. As part of this process, environmental and social impact studies, vital components of any new project, should be included if we are to maintain our quality of life.

Were any planning commissions involved in determining the location of the new high school and how it would fit into the overall planning process? Although school districts may not be required to appear before planning commissions, wouldn't it be prudent to coordinate its decisions with other developments?

Was there ever any discussion about a new fire hall located on Stover Road instead of downtown? When a larger post office was needed, many wished it could have remained within walking distance for downtown businesses and other customers. The former post office was convenient and also played an important role in community socialization.

Instead of the Senior Center, Teen Club and the community pool struggling to raise funds to maintain their facilities, could any have been part of a community center? Will a larger library be needed? Will housing projects currently being discussed require more capital improvements in the future?

Early in the year 2000 we should have a community forum to find answers to some of these questions to determine if and how we can remain a beautiful, pleasant resort area. Let's not eclipse our bountiful natural features with insufficient forward planning that could turn us into another version of Traverse City.,

Time to take a count of our trees

By Roger Knutson

EAR TO THE GROUND

We humans seem to have an obsession with champions. We are disappointed if "our" football team or baseball team isn't the best in the world. We also seem to be interested in the most or the largest or the heaviest. The Guinness Book of Records is a perennial best seller.

Over the next few months those of us who are fortunate enough to live in Michigan have a chance to be part of one of those record pursuits. The Michigan Botanical Club and an organization called Global ReLeaf of Michigan are sponsoring an annual contest to find the biggest trees of each kind that are found in Michigan. You don't have to be an expert to locate a big tree and you don't need to be a forester to measure it and find out just how big it is. There are prizes and recognition for the largest tree overall, the largest tree in the county and the largest oak, beech, poplar, elm, willow, fir, maple, pine, walnut, ash, spruce, birch and cherry in the state.

You may well wonder just how it is possible to measure the size of a whole tree. Because of the work done by foresters and others over the years, one simple measurement can express just how large the whole tree is. Since the trunk of a tree holds up all the rest, if the tree is large the trunk must be strong enough to support it. A measurement of the distance around the trunk 4 1/2 feet above the ground is a very good indication of just how large the whole tree is. To qualify as a tree it must have just one trunk at that 4 1/2 foot level. When you set out to find that largest tree in Michigan, all you need is a good long tape measure or a set of friends with standard length arms.

This is probably the best season of the year to find the biggest trees, because they are much easier to see now than at any other time, even when surrounded by other trees in the woods. And if you can't decide what sort of tree it is without the leaves, send me a twig with buds on it and I will let you know just what sort it is. Your entry in the contest for Michigan must be presented before April 1, and the awards are made on Arbor Day, that one day a year when we publicly remember just how important trees are.

You can get an application to enter the Michigan Big Tree Hunt by calling Global ReLeaf at (800) 642-7353, and just so you know how big your tree must be to qualify you can get a list of the state champion trees at the Michigan Botanical Club's Web site www.michbotclub.org. Maybe it would be a good idea to get our school children involved in the hunt for the county's largest trees. Talk to your kids, talk to their teachers. There must be a champion tree somewhere in Charlevoix County.

Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Scot Dickinson

Parr Memorial Baptist Church in Petoskey was the site of the Saturday, Aug. 7, wedding of Heather Dawn Gilbert and Eric Scot Dickinson.

The church was decorated with candelabras, floral bouquets and white pew bows for the 2 p.m. ceremony. Appetizers were served in the church basement which was adorned with tulle, white lights and flowers.

Pastor Casey Smith performed the double ring nuptials in the presence of 150 wedding guests.

The bride is the daughter of Roger and Susan Gilbert of Petoskey. The groom's parents are David and Karen Dickinson of Charlevoix.

Escorted to the altar by her father, Roger Gilbert, the bride wore a white satin A-line gown with a square neckline, narrow satin shoulder straps, and an empire bodice accented with a satin bow. Covered buttons and narrow satin bows highlighted the back of the gown and brush train. The bride's fingertip-length veil was attached to a crown headpiece of white satin roses, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, sweetheart roses and lilies with green ivy.

Music was provided by organist Kari Gustman and the Gailliard String Quartet.

The bride's sister, Gretchen Gilbert, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Laura Dillenbeck, Christy Anderson, Elizabeth Peden and Stephanie Dickinson. The bridal attendants wore periwinkle gowns with square necklines and satin tops with billowing skirts.

Ring bearers were Jesse and Jacob Kooistra.

Matthew Dickinson, brother of the groom, was the best man. Groomsmen were Nathan Hansen, Peter Zimmer, Pieter Spitael and Ben Anderson. The wedding guests were seated by Justin Willson.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at Stafford's Bay View Inn.

The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents, was held Friday, Aug. 6, at the Resort Township Hall.

Heather and Eric spent a two-week honeymoon in Italy. They are residing in Grand Rapids. Eric is a structural engineer with Fishbeck, Thompson, Carr and Huber in Ada. Heather works for Michigan OBG-YN at Metropolitan Hospital in Grand Rapids.

Christmas project in full swing

The Charlevoix Community Christmas Project is well under way, and area churches participating in the project are looking to individuals, clubs and businesses to help.

Contributions of funds, non-perishable foods, children's clothing, toys and gifts provide an opportunity for the community to give to others in the true spirit of Christmas.

The project expects to provide 125 area households with a full-course Christmas dinner, toys for the children and mittens.

Last year approximately 125 families were helped by this outreach, including individuals from adult foster care homes, Pine River Place, and senior citizens.

The Community Christmas board is looking forward once again this year to the kindness and generosity of the Charlevoix community.

Monetary contributions may be sent to Jeanette Boss at 1202 Matchett Road. Other contributions may be dropped off at the Congregational Church.

American Legion potluck on Pearl Harbor Day

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Leslie T. Shapton Unit No. 226, American Legion, is planning a Christmas potluck prior to its business meeting 6 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 7. All members are urged to come and bring prospective members. Pearl Harbor Day will be recognized with a short ceremony. The Auxiliary members will then hold a gift exchange, with each member bringing a gift not to exceed $5.

At the group's last regular business meeting, the Auxiliary voted to give contributions of appreciation to Evelyn Seeger, the Charlevoix Senior Center, and a contribution to the Jocobetti Veterans Hospital at Marquette, and to Grandvue Medical Facility.

It was noted that chairman Josephine Bindi had sent get well cards to ill and shut-in members, and had mailed 10,800 cancelled stamps to Wisconsin for the on-going state American Legion Auxiliary program. The cancelled stamps are sorted and sold by them to stamp companies, with the proceeds going for nursing scholarships. Anyone wishing to aid the program, please cut off cancelled stamps with one-fourth to one-half inch paper around, and contribute them to Bindi or bring to American Legion Hall.

The Legion and its Auxiliary continue to collect pull tabs from pop cans, which are redeemed for equipment for children's hospitals. The Charlevoix Area Hospital is slated to receive the next purchase for its pediatric ward. At the last district meeting, approximately 100 pounds of pop pull-tabs were turned in by the local units.

Other business:

B. Eloise LaRue

B. Eloise (Tillotson) LaRue, 86, died Nov. 23, 1999, at Glacier Hills Retirement Center in Ann Arbor.

The Funeral was held on Friday, Nov. 26, at Charlevoix Congregational Church. The Rev. Philip Shairbaum officiated. Burial took place Monday, Nov. 29, at Brookside Cemetery.

Mrs. LaRue was born Jan. 17, 1913, in a log cabin in Hayes Township, the daughter of Nelson A. Tillotson and Eleanor (Straw) Tillotson. She graduated in 1931 from Charlevoix High School as valedictorian. In 1935, she earned her bachelor's degree and home economics teaching certificate from Michigan Normal College (now Eastern Michigan University), serving as class salutatorian. She was a member of the Stoic Society and Kappa Delta Pi honorary fraternity.

Mrs. LaRue taught home economics in Wayne High School from 1935-38 before marrying John Mark LaRue July 1, 1938, at the Congregational Church in Ypsilanti. For the next 25 years she devoted herself as a full-time homemaker to her husband and four children. In 1963, she returned to teaching at Saline Middle School until she retired in 1973.

During her married life, she resided in Marlette, Mount Pleasant, St. Clair, Saline and finally in 1974 returned to her childhood home on Mason Street in Charlevoix. For more than 40 years the LaRues vacationed on Beaver Island in a cabin built by John, Eloise and the children.

Mrs. LaRue was a member of the Congregational Church in Charlevoix, where she was also an active member and often held office in the Mary Brewster Circle. She was a member of the Job Winslow Chapter of the D.A.R. in Traverse City and the Charlevoix County Historical Society, where she served as secretary during the 1980s. She loved to sew for her family and the Congregational Church bazaar and raised a large vegetable garden most of her life. She also actively supported her husband's interests in genealogy, singing and lodge.

Mrs. LaRue was preceded in death by her husband and two brothers, Donald and Clair.

Survivors include one sister, Lila A Wieting, of Grand Rapids; four children, John N. LaRue (Roxann) of Longmont, Colo., Brian R. BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Cara Hochhalter
Christian Education Director
First Congregational UCC

There was an event in Charlevoix recently that left a mark on my life, and hopefully for others, as well. It was called a "Sleep-out." Patty Furtaw, who works with families and youth at St. Mary's Catholic Church, organized this all-night event and invited youth groups from other denominations to join them in the cause. About 65 youth and 20 adult chaperones from various denominations came with cardboard boxes to sleep in and sponsor sheets with names of people donating to help homeless youth. Fellows from The Knights of Columbus stoked the fires in barrels and kept watch through the night.

After arriving in St. Mary's parking lot, we had fun building elaborate "box bedrooms," some with signs reading "No Place like Home" and others with passageways!

Three inspiring people came from Detroit and spoke to us about Covenant House, an organization focusing on helping homeless youth. They told us that homeless children are not lucky enough to have boxes like we did, or burn barrels that kept us warm. That's only in the movies. They sleep in burned out or abandoned buildings or in doorways.

"Why don't they freeze?" I asked. "They do." Carlos told me. They know many children who will die in the streets. In America. In the best of economic times.

Young people come to the cities from every socioeconomic background. They come to escape from abusive relations within their families, or with hopes they will find a better life with friends or a job in the city. Pimps wait for these teens at bus stations and airports and they are soon ensnared in a life of drugs and prostitution.

Spinning gold from straw

Far Flung Fiber Friends an interesting group

By Ginger Winter
For the Charlevoix Courier

A group of spinsters in Charlevoix and Emmet counties are twisting and winding fibers that, to the untrained eye, look as worthless as straw.

These spinsters are not unwed girls biding their time by spending idle hours at the spinning wheel. They are grown women and happy members of The Far Flung Fiber Friends who boast a membership roster from Alden to Cheboygan.

Spinning wool is so ancient a practice it is woven into the fabric of our culture. Even our language reflects the custom. A wolf in sheep's clothing is someone deserving of caution. We have countless yarns and fairytales spun from forgotten truths. Most every child knows the tale of Rumpelstiltskin, who turned worthless straw into gold.

Three members met one sunny autumn day at the fiber shed of Stonehedge Farm in East Jordan. Holly Shaltz led two workshops: how to care for spinning wheels and how to choose quality wool. The women spun raw, but clean, wool into continuous strands of yarn. They wove a few stories in the shed as well.

They laughed as they reminisced about a woman in the Upper Peninsula who traveled to her spinning group with her spinning wheel strapped to the back of her snowmobile. Then the chatter turned to a 90-year-old woman who had taught herself how to spin from a Woman's Day magazine in the 1940s.

"This group has 15 women and one man who lives in Charlevoix, Robert Hooper. He also canes furniture," said Diane Strzelinski, a resident of Advance. "Only very patient people can become spinners."

Patient and resolute as the work is tedious, especially when it comes to cleaning and sorting the good wool from the baaaaad.

"This wool is defective because the sheep had a fever and the wool is weak," Shaltz said and handed her small audience puffs of black fuzz that looked like it came from a vacuum bag. She held a piece to her ear and pulled it apart.

"Bad fleece shreds. Listen. If you hear crackling, it's bad. If you hear pinging like a guitar string, it's good. Wool is graded on how fine or coarse it is. This ewe might be a good breeder or even better, a lamb chop. This isn't good wool."

Shaltz said another problem is the hay or grass that clings to raw wool. Sometimes it might arrive with unwanted guests like live ticks or moths. She held up another dark mass. This one looked hopeless with manure and bits of hay stuck to it.

Quality yarn is not cheap which makes weaving an expensive hobby. Most commercial wools are not acceptable to serious weavers, and so they learn to spin their own.

"The difference in commercial wool and what is hand spun is the way it's processed. There are scales on wool like a pinecone's. Commercial processing makes the scales stick out and that's what makes people itch.

People think they're allergic to wool, but it's commercial wool that bothers them." Shaltz explained.

"People don't know how good a wool they can have," Deb McDermott said. She and her husband, Chuck, are owners of Stonehedge Farm and Fiber Mill.

Charlevoix county residents know the farm as a petting zoo. Weavers and spinners know it as a valuable resource and flock to the farm to get quality wool from all over the world.

"A lot of people want to blend exotic fibers with wools. We have our own custom fiber processing here. We can be very breed specific. Some wool is good for weaving on a loom, some is better for knitting," she said.

SPINSTERS

This is a hobby that is more of a lifestyle as one thing leads to another. Spinning is a natural progression of weaving, and for some, farming is a progression of spinning. Many of the Far Flung Fiber Friends spin wool from animals they raise themselves.

"We really like it when we know the sheep's name," Strzelinski joked. She has no animals, but 'pet sits' instead.

On the other hand, Boyne City resident Carol Book spins cashmere from her six goats. She also has a llama, two horses, dogs, cats, and a 29-year-old goose. Book bought her spinning wheel when she was in high school.

"It was an antique then," she said. She learned at Greenfield Village and has been spinning for 20 years. "I've always been interested in textiles and in history, and the two are brought together in spinning."

Shaltz is also a hobby farmer and has 13 Shetland sheep, one Leicester sheep, 16 angora rabbits plus at least 30 chickens and two cats. Her work is shown in art galleries across the country. She's won awards for her efforts and easily spends up to 100 hours from collecting and cleaning (called skirting) the wool to weaving it into beautiful and wearable works of art.

One particular piece, a beautiful throw spun from a single piece of yarn will command at least $1,000. It is much like wearing a nice piece of jewelry, proving that even today, as a reflection of the fairytales of yore, gold can still come from straw.

Beaver Island looks into senior services

By B. J. Hetler

It's still a community where people take care of each other — and many Beaver Island residents say it always will be.

If a resident is in need of help because of health or other reasons, neighbors bring meals, run errands, and help with chores.

But, because of the growing population that includes many seniors, the residents are looking into government services to meet the needs.

"People take care of each other very, very well," B.J. Wyckoff said. A 20-year Beaver Island resident, Wyckoff works with the Rural Health Center. She is chairwoman of its Strategic Planning Task Force.

Despite helpful neighbors, however, Wyckoff realizes future growth in the aging population needs serious consideration for future demands. She estimates that there are 100 year-round senior residents.

The task force is evaluating the current needs of the seniors, she said. Wyckoff was one of several representatives of agencies that met on the island in October to begin discussions of the issues. The Area Agency on Aging and Charlevoix County Commission on Aging were also represented.

Some of the government programs available include meals, home chore service, homemaker services, health aides, personal care, respite care, medication management and transportation.

Gregory Piaskowski, executive director of the Area Agency on Aging, based in Traverse City, said he was surprised at the level of interest at the meeting. He sees a demand for help with the cost of prescriptions for seniors.

"We'll be considering some level of funding next year," Piaskowski said. The Area Agency on Aging is a private, non-profit agency that receives state and federal funds.

Approximately 50 residents attended the meeting; mostly seniors, Wyckoff said.

"A huge priority for seniors is home health care, and assisted living," she said. "These are the greatest concerns."

Resident Grace Matela agrees, especially with the need for an assisted living residence. If seniors have medical needs that can't be met, they have to leave their homes on the island for care in Charlevoix or other areas.

"I see a need for assisted living," Matela said. "As people get older, they have to leave. It's a sad situation for them — they don't last long after they leave."

More people need education in the services already provided on the island by the Beaver Island Rural Health Center, Matela said.

The next meeting in early December will have an information session on the center's services, Wyckoff said.

Forty-year resident Lil Gregg said she and her husband, Phil, are active and not in need of medical services, such as home health care. Lil works part-time as the post office clerk. But, she said she would like social activities.

"Years ago, everyone got together for a potluck lunch," Gregg said. "We didn't do much other than have lunch, but it was fun to get together."

Wyckoff said it is important that residents attend the next meeting to talk about social activities and recreation, as well as medical care needs. The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 7 at the Beaver Island Christian Church.

Open swim No. 1 in community pool survey

Open swim was rated the top activity in a recent survey conducted by the Charlevoix Area Community Pool board of directors.

The board asked pool participants to rate the various activities offered.

In order of importance, participants ranked the activities in the following order: Open swim, water safety for kids, swim lessons for school children, aqua therapy, life guard training, school activities, water safety instructor training, arthritis therapy (Twinges in the Hinges), aqua aerobics, lap swimming, On Your Own for adults, swim team, Monday night teen swim, scuba diving and water polo.

The board conducted the survey now that the pool has been in operation for a little more than two years.

"We were encouraged by these results which were very timely because we were able to use the information for our recent retreat," board president David Smith said.

Carlos, Stephanie and Kathryn work for Covenant House. They have college degrees and had successful careers, but left to help youth in the cities. Forty hours a week, Carlos and Stephanie drive and walk the streets of Detroit, talking to kids, offering them love, respect, a listening ear, and a chance to turn their lives around. They sometimes have to negotiate with drug dealers and gang leaders in order to be allowed to talk to teens. They always pray before they go out and constantly ask God to be with them. They are repaid ten-fold when they see teens they have talked to on the street walk into the community center.

There are 20 Covenant Houses in the United States as well as some in Central America. The one in Detroit is only two years old. They have plans to build a crisis shelter in addition to the center.

In the parking lot, we had hourly prayer services for the homeless. We prayed for names of real people: Christina, Jerry, Heron, and others. We sang, heard scripture, and watched some skits. We were from different churches but felt as one.

We heard a few complaints. Some were hungry, missing that fourth meal of the day, the bedtime snack. It was hard on the ground, even with our sleeping bags and pads! Poor us. With only a little sleep, we awoke feeling cranky and smelly. No coffee, no bathroom other than a porta-john. Poor us.

Eight o'clock rolled around, each person folded their box and dragged it to the dumpster. We closed with prayer. Parents came to take us home ... to big breakfasts, warm beds, and showers. Lucky us... "there but by the grace of God." But we won't forget. Will we? As we begin this Advent Season of buying and giving, let us keep in mind the homeless in our own area and elsewhere.

Clear a safe path in snow

When Old Man Winter delivers snow to your doorstep and driveway this winter, understand the risks of shoveling, says Thomas Simmer, M.D., Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan vice president and corporate medical director.

"While snow shoveling can be an aerobic activity, it can also put people at risk for a heart attack or back injury," says Dr. Simmer. "Individuals with a history of heart problems, who don't exercise regularly, or who have other risk factors for heart disease should consult with their physician before beginning this strenuous activity."

Proper-snow shoveling techniques can reduce back injury or lower your risk of a heart attack, Simmer says. You should face the snow you are about to shovel. Always keep your back straight, your knees bent, and throw the snow forward. Avoid throwing snow over your shoulder. Twisting while throwing snow behind you can cause back strain. In fact, experts recommend that you push the shovel to move the snow and avoid lifting whenever possible.

Even individuals in good physical shape should take some precautions when shoveling.

- Before shoveling, warm up with a few stretching exercises.

- Don't smoke or eat a large meal before shoveling.

- Dress warmly in layers with a hat. Cover your neck.

- Tackle heavy snow in two stages. Begin by skimming off the snow from the top, then remove the bottom layer. Avoid overloading the shovel.

- Don't try to shovel too much too quickly. Allow yourself enough time to do the work so that you don't feel rushed. Follow a slow and steady pace. Take frequent breaks to sand up and stretch.

- Drink water during breaks. Breathing cold air dehydrates the body.

Sheriff warns: Beware of scam artists who use the phone

If you have a telephone, chances are a telemarketer has called you. Most phone sales pitches are made on behalf of legitimate products or services, but many telephone calls are frauds.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater says to take these steps to avoid being scammed.

Resist high pressure sales tactics. Legitimate businesses respect the fact you're not interested.

If you don't want the seller to call you back, say so. If they call back, hang up. They're breaking the law.

Take your time. Ask for written information about product, service, investment opportunity, or charity that's the subject of the call.

Your financial investments may have consequences for people you care about. Before you respond to phone solicitations, talk to a friend, family member or financial advisor.

Hang up if you're asked to pay for a prize. Free is free.

Don't send money — cash, check or money order — by courier, overnight delivery or wire to anyone who insists on immediate payment.

Keep information about your bank account and credit cards to yourself, unless you know who you're dealing with.

Before you pay, check out the company.

Hang up if a telemarketer calls before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m.

If you suspect that you've been victimized by a telephone scam, call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection office at (517) 373-1140 or call the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department at 547-4461.

Boyne man faces more charges

CHARLEVOIX — A Boyne City man, already facing a stack of felony charges in two counties, was arraigned Monday on new charges.

Riley Felton Agee, 50, of 05417 Camp Daggett Road, was arraigned in 90th District Court on three counts.

Police believe Agee is responsible for a series of property thefts throughout Northern Michigan.

The latest charges include:

- One count of breaking and entering a building with intent to commit larceny, a 10-year felony. Agee is accused of breaking into a contractor's pole barn in the Boyne City area.
- Possession of burglar tools, a 20-year felony.
- Receiving and concealing stolen property, a 10-year felony. Agee is accused of having items stolen from a tool trailer at the new Charlevoix County Humane Society, while it was under construction.

The new charges were authorized by Chief Assistant Prosecutor John A. Jarema.

District Judge Richard W. May arraigned Agee on the charges, and scheduled a preliminary hearing for 3:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 13.

Agee has been out of jail on $5,000 bond since the summer. He is on an electronic tether and restricted to his residence.

On Monday he asked the judge to be released from the tether.

Judge May denied the request.

Agee was already facing several charges out of Charlevoix County, and is awaiting preliminary hearings in district court.

In all, Agee faces nearly a dozen felony and misdemeanor charges.

Those charges are in limbo while the attorneys and the court await a written report on a mental exam of Agee.

A preliminary hearing in July was adjourned after Agee's attorney, Susan Graham, requested an evaluation be done of her client's mental competency to stand trial and criminal responsibility.

Agee was tested by staff of the state's Center for Forensic Psychiatry in Ann Arbor.

By law the forensic staff had 60 days from the date the mental exam was ordered to conduct the exam and prepare and deliver a written report on the exam to the court and attorneys.

The report is about two months overdue.

When the report is received, a competency hearing is expected to be held in district court.

Agee's arrest was the result of a joint investigation by Michigan State Police at Petoskey, the Boyne City Police Department, and the Gaylord State Police Criminal Investigation Division Team.

Agee was first arrested June 25.

Police said Agee stole construction tools and equipment and other unusual items, many stolen on or about April-June, 1999.

The numerous stolen items include, in part: Antique golf clubs; an umbrella; construction scaffolding; a Greyco paint sprayer; lock sets; a Target masonry saw, stand and earmuffs; Briggs & Stratton power washer; Thomas 3/4 hp electric generator; a trim saw; cordless drill; and an electric hot knife.

Armed with search warrants, police discovered thousands of dollars worth of stolen property — much of it taken from construction sites — at Agee's property.

In Emmet County, Agee is facing a charge called larceny in a building, a 4-year felony.

Agee is accused of stealing a pipe threader machine, stand and dies from a construction site in Resort Township on or about April 22-28.

That case was set for a jury trial to be held in Petoskey last week, but the trial was adjourned until Dec. 30.

Two local sailing crews receive prestigious rescue medal

By A. Nother Mouse
Charlevoix Yacht Club

At the annual Charlevoix Yacht Club Awards Dinner on Nov. 6, the crews of two CYC boats were awarded the U.S. Sailing Arthur B. Hanson Rescue Medal, an award never before presented at CYC.

The team of Mark Snyder, Brian Vandeyacht and Don Hicks, from Hussy, received the award for the rescue of fellow J-22 competitor Dave Strawbridge during a Wednesday night race held July 14.

With winds gusting up to 30 knots, Dave and his two crew members headed out to the race course aboard his boat, Swine Flew. Midrace, while Swine Flew was headed downwind, a squall packing heavy winds made its way through the race course. Dave suddenly found the tiller extension wedged against the cockpit wall, which forced Swine Flew into a jibe and placed Dave to leeward, where he was swept off the stern of the boat.

Dave's crew was unable to maneuver the boat to rescue him, and they soon lost sight of their skipper. The crew of Hussy witnessed Dave go overboard and immediately dropped their spinnaker to head back upwind to rescue him. They were able to get a throwable flotation device to Dave, who was not wearing any flotation, and were eventually able to drag him aboard. Dave was in the water for approximately 15 minutes and suffered bruised ribs and mild hypothermia.

A second rescue medal was awarded to Dr. F. James Stewart and his crew, Steven Dean, Ralph Corwin, and Justin Kelley, from Cygnus, for the rescue of another J-22 skipper, Valerie Barnes, from High Maintenance.

The Cygnus crew earned its medal during the Wednesday night race of Oct. 13. That night, winds were again gusting around 30 knots. High Maintenance was headed downwind, chute up, when a powerful gust hit the boat, causing Valerie to lose steerage. The boat broached, dumping Valerie and crew member Dave Gerber into the water.

Dave surfaced close to the boat and was able to return to the boat. The crew of Cygnus spotted Valerie in the water, further away from her boat, and immediately dropped their sails, started their motor, and returned to retrieve Valerie from the water. The crew threw a line to Valerie and was able to hoist her over the lifelines of their boat.

Because of their quick response, Valerie was in the water only a few minutes and suffered no serious injuries.

The Arthur B. Hanson Rescue Medal is awarded to skippers of pleasure sailboats or race support vessels who effect rescues of victims from the water. The Hanson Rescue Medal is awarded both to recognize significant accomplishments in seamanship, as well as to collect case studies in rescues for analysis for the U.S. Sailing Safety-at-Sea Committee. CYC is proud to have crews like those of Hussy and Cygnus.

In other awards night action, the Barnes Cup, which is awarded to recognize outstanding service to the club, was presented to Gloria Barnes and Kim Taylor. Both Gloria and Kim have been indispensable to the club during the past year. Gloria said she truly wishes someone else will earn the Barnes Cup next year! And speaking of service, Josh Barnes received a lifetime membership for his service to the club, starting as a founding member and continuing through his present role as membership chairman. Josh has held virtually every office in the club and has contributed time, money, and enthusiasm that has been crucial to the continued success of the club.

Blasen III, owned and skippered by Karl Jurries, was recognized as the Best Overall Pearson 26, while Marty Jensen, of Superfluous, took home those honors for the J-22 fleet. Another J-22, Larry Crawford's Reckless, walked away with the Most Improved Skipper award. Pete Funck of Kamikaze enjoyed awards night, taking home almost as much hardware as Karl Jurries, including the First Annual Venetian Cup award.

If you missed Awards Night (shame on you!), check out the complete list of results posted on the CYC website at www.charlevoixyachtclub.org.

Rezoning goes before city council on Dec. 6

When city attorney Young gave his legal opinion favoring the rezoning, he did it with only half of the facts, Halverson said.

When questioned by Halverson, Young said he based his opinion on the Kelly application, and had not seen memorandums in opposition to the rezoning.

"There's basic due process faults," Halverson, the city police chief, told the planning commission. "One side prepared briefs and submitted them to the attorney, and the other side did memos regarding economic hardship, but the attorney didn't see this side."

Halverson said he was not alleging anything was done on purpose, but he wanted his facts reviewed by the attorney also.

"If you go forward with a decision now," Halverson said, "you're going forward without my due process. I have not been given my opportunity to have the city attorney hear my concerns."

Halverson pointed out that Young's own opinion letter of Nov. 16 to city planner Gerry Harsch mentioned that Young had only sketchy facts.

"Applying the factors described above to the limited facts which I have been provided ...," Young stated, and then "Thus, on the limited facts which are presented ..."

But, in the end, city planners said they were confident that the Kelly rezoning is legal and not detrimental to the neighborhood. The vote to recommend R-2A zoning on the Kelly property was approved unanimously.

Following the vote, Halverson asked the planners to add language.

"Let the record reflect that I requested the city attorney review my memo, and that planning members denied that request," Halverson said. "I was not given the same opportunity as the other side."

City council meets on Monday, Dec. 6, and may make a final determination at that meeting.

LOCAL BUSINESS CONCERNS PROMOTING EVENT

Dog Parade at 2 O'clock to be Followed by Drawing for $30 in Prizes at East Park

If you haven't already done so, mark Saturday, November 25, down on your calendar as Charlevoix Merchants' Day.

Outstanding in significance is the fact the event provides the opportunity for some lucky persons to walk off with $30 in prizes offered by the Charlevoix Merchants' & Business Men's Association, to be drawn for at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at East Park. There are three prizes, divided $15 for first, $10 for second and $5 for third, with no "strings" attached other than holding the lucky number. Tickets for the drawing have been in distribution the past ten days.

Preceding the prize drawing there will be a dog parade. Just what kind of a spectacle a dog parade will provide can only be determined by coming to see for yourself. The event holds possibilities, it must be admitted, if nothing more than a good fight. There will be some cash prizes awarded to entrants—one each for the largest, smallest, ugliest and best all-around dog. The parade is scheduled for 2 o'clock and entries may be made at the board of commerce office up to that time. Entrants must bring their dogs on a leash and are to assemble at the board of commerce office.

Saturday's promotion, the first by the newly formed Charlevoix Merchants' & Business Men's Association, is a good will gesture to those citizens residing in the Charlevoix trading area to "Buy in Charlevoix."

HELD PRISONERS IN ICE FOR NINE DAYS

Capt. John O'Neill And Crew Had No Food Nor Fuel

Captain John O'Neill of this city and his crew of two, Edward Eagleton and Charles Bissell, with the tug, Fountain Brothers, reached this port last night, after being held in the ice at Fox Island for the past nine days without food or fuel.

Although they lost all their nets, the castaways managed to bring back a good sized load of fish and in spite of a heavy sea and roaring southwest wind extricated themselves from a very ticklish situation by the exercise of good seasmanship and stout hearts. Captain O'Neill says that the ice carried his boat in a circle around the island for seven times before they could break loose times before they could break loose.

The Beaver Island fishermen have lost a lot of nets in the recent storm. The Cross brothers are broken down in Cole's harbor with their boat and will have to remain there until they can get their engine repaired.

Group opposes Marion Center Rd. site for new school

By B. J. Hetler

> "We would request that at a regularly scheduled meeting, the (school) board address these and other concerns that we, the public, have about our school and its future location."
> — Jeffrey Porter

Members of the community who refuse to accept the site of the new high school and claim better sites exist in town have formed a committee to take action on the issue.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools mailed 4,650 flyers to area postal patrons. A stamped, self-addressed postcard accompanied the flyer. The postcard asked recipients to check off that they were either satisfied with the site on Marion Center Road, or that they preferred an in-town location, and want a public discussion with the school board.

The committee is supported by donations from the community and has approximately 30 people involved and a 10-member steering committee, spokesman Dr. Jeffrey Porter said.

As of Monday, according to Porter, 927 postcards had been returned. Of those, 784 respondents favored searching for a different site, while 140 were satisfied with the board's site selection on Marion Center Road.

"We're getting comments written on the postcards, we're getting letters," Porter said. The numbers show how people feel about the issue. People have said all along that they want the schools in town, he said.

The Marion Center Road site is located in Marion Township, approximately 2.7 miles south of Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Board of Education appointed a four-member site selection committee to choose a site for a new high school this past summer. The members were school superintendent, Dr. John Sturock, board president Allen Telgenhof and board members, police chief Dennis Halverson and Barney Way.

Sheriff's department arrests man for sexual assault

A Suttons Bay man has been arrested by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department for sexual assault.

Lee David Wilks, 26, was arrested Saturday for third degree criminal sexual conduct, habitual offender-fourth offense, and on a Leelanau County felony fugitive warrant from a weapons violation conviction.

Deputies began the investigation when a 21-year-old Wilson Township woman sought treatment at Charlevoix Area Hospital early Saturday morning.

Deputies searched the Wilson Township and East Jordan area for several hours attempting to identify and locate the man.

Sheriff's deputies and the Charlevoix city police located Wilks shortly before noon at the residence of a relative in Charlevoix.

Wilks has been charged by the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office with third degree criminal sexual conduct, a 15-year felony, and habitual offender.

Bringing a habitual offender charge increased the possible penalty on a primary offense.

A 90th District Court magistrate set bond for Wilks at $300,000 cash or surety. Wilks remains locked up in the Charlevoix County Jail.

Wilks has convictions in Leelanau County for two separate acts of criminal sexual conduct-gross indecency.

It's a different world these days

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

I yearn for the olden days when the town crier walked through the village, clanging his bell and calling out in a cheery voice, "Nine o'clock and all's well!"

Sure, we have come a long way since the Victorian era when the sight of a woman's ankle was considered daring! But what would the carriage trade think today if they turned on any one of our popular television programs? Wow! Would they be shocked to note that the summer of '99 will be labeled as the year of the belly button?

And what about our current news programs?

Peter Jennings reports instantly on the latest earthquake, tornado, volcanic eruption and flood throughout the whole world. Tom Brokaw subjects us to every bus, train and airplane crash, on every continent. Diane Sawyer reports on rapes, child abuse, kidnapping and murder in every major city, Christiane Amanpour fills us in on war, insurrections and civilian slaughter.

Not that tragedies didn't always happen! They surely did. But people didn't see the ambulances, blood, smoke and rubble on camera daily in their living room. People went to bed at night to the comforting sound of "Ten o'clock and all's well!" Wouldn't it be nice if we could be reassured by that call again? No earthquakes, no floods, no volcanic eruptions. Less mayhem, more civility.

Many people who have moved "Up North" came here for peace and security, and because they believed as my late husband did, that "nothing bad can happen in Charlevoix." In their mind's eye the old town crier saunters down the street singing out loud and clear, "All's well!"

Charlevoixans believe that we are fortunate to live here. Good heavens, we didn't even have to sweat the small stuff this year, like rotten eggs and broken lamp posts and other Halloween pranks on Michigan Avenue! (Thank you Chief Halverson). Instead, the big complaint my neighbors and I had was that we ran out of treats for all the little dinosaurs and fairies.

Still we do face man-made issues here as opposed to natural disasters.

The big issues that face thoughtful citizens are 1) where to locate the proposed high school; 2) where to shoot off next year's fireworks; 3) and whether the city council should grant snowmobiles permits to ride through downtown. Any one of these issues could endanger life and limb.

Thus if we want to continue having the mythical town crier cry out "12 o'clock and all's well" into the millennium, thoughtful citizens will have to guard these critical issues that now face Charlevoix — a town that I fondly call an "assisted living" community!

Let's pledge to keep it that way for our children's sake!

Man arrested for domestic assault

A 38-year-old Wilson Township man is being held on $10,000 bond after he was arrested and arraigned last week for a domestic violence incident.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the man threatened to kill his wife with a revolver following an argument.

Deputies obtained a warrant for the suspect's arrest and went to the couple's home on Wheeler Road. The suspect, who refused to come to the door or answer the telephone, was found by Sheriff George Lasater and deputies hiding in a closet covered by boxes of clothing.

The suspect was taken into custody without further incident, according to a press release from the Sheriff's Department.

Nine firearms, including the 38-caliber revolver used in the assault, were recovered at the residence, the release stated. The revolver had been borrowed from a neighbor.

The victim was not injured in the assault, police said.

OPINIONS

Board, group should seek common ground

EDITORIAL

By now most Charlevoix School District residents have received a post card and mailing from a group calling themselves "The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools."

The committee's mission, according to the group's mailing, is to get the Charlevoix School District to reconsider its decision to build a new high school on property on Marion Center Road between Clark and Veenstra roads some three miles from town, to a closer in-town site.

In its mailing, the committee says it totally supports the recently passed bond proposal for a new high school, but thinks the school board should reconsider its present plans.

However, the citizens' group is concerned about the site's accessibility to the community, traffic safety, cost of utilities and the amount of acreage required for a one-story building.

Since the election, the group maintains that there are several in-town locations that are available and would provide a more suitable location.

Because the Marion Center—Veenstra Road location did not actually appear on the ballot, the groups thinks the school district has some flexibility in reconsidering the proposed location. Taking a stand like this is not necessarily popular, particularly among those who have made a decision and feel the issue should be put to rest.

We think the group has made some valid points, however, we are also concerned that there's the potential to divide the community, who has given its blessing for school building improvements.

Those involved in this group don't think the school board has given them a fair hearing on the subject. The school board and others feel the issue has been discussed and decided already.

Rather than risk a split on an important community issue, we suggest that both groups might consider enlisting the services of the non-profit Citizen Dispute Resolution Service Inc.

The local mediation organization offers a non-adversarial approach to conflict resolution by using a trained mediator to meet with parties and assist them in negotiating their own solution to the conflict.

Putting the dispute in this kind of setting might encourage openness and a feeling that both sides are being heard by each other, without splitting the community and fueling damaging rumors.

Letters to the editor

The right decision is always a step in the right direction

Editor:

In speaking with Charlevoix School Board members after the Nov. 8 board meeting, we were made aware that the 29-acre property the board had been interested in purchasing this summer but had lost, was again available. However, the board was concerned that to reconsider would be perceived as "going back."

(Eight years ago the school board attempted to purchase this property!) This was before the purchase of the Marion Center land was finalized.

This newly available site would be safer, more economical, more convenient to existing recreational opportunities and it is closer to the urban area of Charlevoix.

This new opportunity:

1) More closely respects the community's overwhelming request for urban-centered, conveniently located schools.

2) Could save hundreds of thousands of dollars by eliminating the need for sewer extension and is near natural gas hookup.

3) Is safer for students. It would mean less travel time on safer roads and students could safely walk or bike.

4) Would not subsidize "leap frog" development to some of the best Charlevoix County farmland. Providing sewer access to 80 homes may have made the land less expensive and been a good business more for the sellers, but the taxpayer ends up subsidizing development of farmland.

5) Is close to Mt. McSauba, the pool, tennis courts and soccer fields.

If this board is presented with a new, better site option that improves the longterm future of the Charlevoix Public Schools, and if this board chooses to embrace that site, the community must stand behind them and support them in that decision. We need to pause for a moment, make the right decision, and then take a giant step forward.

Rick and Jo Anne Beemon
Charlevoix

P.S. This could be an opportunity for this school board to plan ahead and keep the land on Marion Center as an investment in future education. Possibly a model innovative school offering sustainable agricultural/landscaping/land use planning/natural resource management and tourism opportunities could be built. In 15 or 20 years, sewers and infrastructure will be run, and the schools can hook in at minimal cost.

It's high time to find out where our money is spent

Editor:

Let's put on the school board's shoes and try to make "all happy" at this time. How many school board meetings have you attended? I ask a dear friend how many meetings did you go to while your four children were in school? None was her answer. How many town meetings? None was her answer. I think it is high time that each of us plan to make it to a school meeting and town meeting and see where our money goes. I was president for three years of our band, three years of Mothers Club, and on the school board three years. I think it high time to work out a plan for each of us to give of ourself, where we live, to help make a better place to live.

Our school has done a good job. Now it's time to tell us where in the city are you to put a school large enough. I want it in the city, but where?

Alene Anderson
Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools

School board should listen to results of its own forum

Editor:

The School Board members are not listening to their own forum according to the results of a Charlevoix Public School Board forum held on March 9, 1999. At or near "location of the present schools" received by far the greatest support for future construction. "In-town location" received the next greatest support.

Recently at the polls, money was voted for a new facility. Location was not on the ballot. Doesn't the voter have reason to believe the March 9 forum would be a basis for the location of building facilities?

After the election the deed was filed and other potential taxpayer obligated expenses, including development of 80 homes, came to public attention.

An examination of the restrictions and covenants of the deed agreement reveals possible use of public funds for private development. The $250,000 was not all of the cost related to this site. In addition to the purchase price, we the taxpayers, become providers of sewer access accommodating 80 future home sites with easements and pump ability. How much extra expense will be incurred as a result of these obligations?

The cost of the required green belt 100 feet wide by perhaps several thousand feet long could be an astronomical expense in itself.

Think of the urban sprawl and the recognized impact such poor planning has had elsewhere. Can't we learn from the many examples we have already observed and experienced in other communities? Go see for yourselves. Read the deed and all the fine print which is a part of it.

City council drafting new snowmobile ordinance

By B. J. Hetler

The city has the right to designate a snowmobile route through the city, and the right to make downtown a destination for snowmobilers.

It will take a new ordinance, instead of a simple resolution, but the city is allowed by the state to determine how far and where it will let snowmobilers go with their machines.

City council had asked city attorney Jim Young to research the law and to check with other communities to see how they handle snowmobiles.

Young said he checked with about a dozen localities in northern and southern Michigan, and in the Upper Peninsula.

"About a half allow snowmobiles on city streets for whatever," Young said. "The others say snowmobiles can be used on city streets to get from one place to another."

The Convention and Visitors Bureau and Charlevoix downtown businesses are looking to city council to provide a means for snowmobilers to get downtown to visit the shops and restaurants.

Council was open to allowing snowmobiles downtown and expressed few reservations at its Monday meeting.

"The biggest problem is the speed they go when they're crossing the road in front of a car," council member Gabe Campbell said.

Another concern was the need to restrict snowmobile travel to certain hours, such as having an 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. travel prohibition.

"I'd like to see us open up the area for snowmobiles myself," Mayor Alvin "Butch" Russell said. "But have some sensible hours."

Young will prepare a discussion draft of a new snowmobile ordinance for the next meeting on Dec. 20, for the board's review.

A public hearing will be scheduled.

In other action, Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr., A.J. Withoeft and Bill Bellows were sworn in as city council members.

City council approved the development plan review presented by Fred Siegwart for property he owns at 1302 Bridge Street. Siegwart Construction Company is renovating the house for either commercial or professional office use.

The request by Donald Kelly of 100 Overlook Dr. to rezone his property from R-1, single family residential, to R-2A, two-family residential was set for public hearing on Jan. 3, 2000. The city attorney, Jim Young, determined that the rezoning would not be spot zoning.

House's attic damaged by fire

Defective wiring appears to be the cause of a fire that damaged the attic of a home in the city of Charlevoix on Sunday.

According to Charlevoix City Fire Chief Doug Carver, firefighters were called to the John Murray residence, 217 W. Upright, at 10:42 p.m. when the residents noticed smoke coming from the attic and called 9-1-1.

Carver said the first firefighters on the scene knocked the fire down using a preconnected hose line through a small attic access. Later, firefighters used the department's aerial truck to gain access to the fire area by cutting out a portion of the attic wall.

Firefighters contained fire damage to the front attic wall, although the rooms below sustained smoke and water damage.

Wedding

Laura Marie Loder and Timothy Joseph Guczwa of Grand Rapids were married Saturday, June 26, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The church altar was decorated with arrangements of ivory and lavender flowers, and the pews were marked with ivory pew bows and green ivy. The Rev. Tom Neis performed the 1 p.m. double ring rites, witnessed by 180 wedding guests.

The bride is the daughter of Gary and Hazel Loder of Charlevoix. The groom's parents are Frank and Carolyn Guczwa of Monroe.

Given in marriage by her father, Gary Loder, the bride wore an ivory satin gown embellished with lace, pearls and beads featuring an off-the-shoulder neckline, long sleeves, basque waist, full skirt and chapel-length train. A simple bow highlighted the back waist. A tiara of pearls held her waist-length satin-edged veil. The bridal bouquet consisted of white roses, white calla lilies, white stock, white and lavender freesia, lavender and purple irises and green fern accents.

Music was played by organist Don Neidert. Soloists were Maria Webb and Dianna Loder-Pituch, sister of the bride, who sang "Ave Maria."

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Dianne Loder-Pituch, of Denver, Colo. Bridesmaids were Melissa Adelaine of Harbor Springs, Aimee Livingston of Charlevoix, Jennifer Nord of Bark River, and Lynn Barrette of Hancock. The bridal attendants wore heather satin off-the-shoulder A-line gowns with short sleeves and button backs featuring six rosette accents at the waist. They carried white bouquets of roses, calla lilies and freesia accented with fern.

The lectors were David Loder, brother of the bride, and Mary Ann Blaszak, godmother of the groom.

Greeters were Sandy Loder, sister-in-law of the bride, and Kathy Kramer, sister of the groom.

The offertory gifts were presented by Jayde Loder, niece of the bride; Cash Loder, nephew of the bride; Hunter Wagner, nephew of the bride; and Nick Kramer, nephew of the groom.

The groom's brother-in-law, Matthew Carter of Farmington Hills, served as best man. Groomsmen were Neil Kramer of Monroe, brother-in-law of the groom; Dan Huyck of Marquette; Mike Newell of Trufant; and Brian Herouix of Bark River.

The wedding guests were seated by John Loder, brother of the bride, and John Odette, brother-in-law of the groom.

A reception, given by the bride's parents, was held at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey. Host and hostess were the bride's uncle and aunt, Mike and Rosemary Johnson of Charlevoix.

The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents, was held at City Park Grill in Petoskey.

Laura and Timothy spent their honeymoon in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico. They are making their home in Grand Rapids. Laura is a sixth-grade Spanish teacher at Mount Clemens Junior Academy. Timothy is a quality assurance chemist for Lilly Industries, Inc., in Fremont.

Big Rock raises funds for United Way

Consumers Engergy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project employees wrapped up the Caring Hearts Build Hope campaign with pledges of more than $17,000 to Char-Em United Way.

"The employees there are long-time, consistent supporters of United Way," said Dorian MacGillivray, Char-Em United Way executive director. "Big Rock Point is one of our top three donors each year. The employees' efforts have a profound effect on our overall campaign."

Big Rock employees pledged $17,075 to the charity, surpassing their goal by more than $1,000. Employees gave an average of $181 each.

Big Rock Point, Consumers Energy and its contract partners have contributed more than $227,000 to United Way in the past 13 years.

United Way is a collection and distribution organization for agencies such as the Charlevoix Teen Center, Exceptional Riders Program, American Red Cross, Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Northwest Michigan, Camp Daggett, Charlevoix Senior Center, Michigan Dyslexia Institute and the Women's Resource Center.

Big Rock employees donated 83 pints of blood to the Red Cross, seven large bags of winter coats, hats, mittens and gloves to children; money and nonperishable food to the Charlevoix Food Pantry and Soup Kitchen; and about $7,000 in labor to rough frame and roof the Habitat for Humanity house being built in Charlevoix County.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By Pastor Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

During a tour of an American Air Force Base where nuclear missiles and B-52 Bombers had been kept during the Cold War years, the tour guide told the story of how, on a couple occasions, the United States had almost mistakenly used those weapons against the Soviet Union.

As the story goes, there were a couple times that our radar tracking systems seemed to indicate that a nuclear attack had been launched against the U.S. by the Soviets. Our pilots were alerted and scrambled to their aircraft, armed with our nuclear weapons, to retaliate against the apparent attack. Obviously, that never happened. But our planes had actually been in the air. The problem was in a little computer chip that had created an error in communications.

It's frightening to think that nuclear weapons might have destroyed thousands of innocent lives based on erroneous information!

There's an important lesson for us in this story of bombs that were almost dropped prematurely. And it has to do with wrong information and miscommunication. Before you start to criticize or attack someone, talk with them first. Find out why they're doing what they're doing or saying what they're saying. Understand their reasons before you drop your bombs. Hear their heart first. You may well be misinterpreting their motives and actions.

The tendency to "shoot first and ask questions later" has destroyed marriages, parent-child relationships, churches, ministries and friendships.

It doesn't have to be!

Oswald Chambers, the author of the classic devotional book "My Utmost For His Highest," said that one of his personal rules was, "I refuse to criticize." Then he would quote I Corinthians 4:5, "Therefore judge nothing before the appointed time; wait till the Lord comes. He will bring to light what is hidden in darkness and will expose the motives of men's hearts. At that time each will receive his praise from God" (NIV)

There are just too many craters and too many wounded people where bombs of criticism, negativism and gossip have been dropped that never should have been dropped. Many disasters of hurt, offense and broken relationships can be averted by checking our information before we put those bombers in the air!

Play it safe when giving toys for the holidays

The beginning of the holiday season inevitably means the beginning of the toy-buying season. In fact, more than 50 percent of toys are bought between September and December alone. Although the majority of toys are safe, they can become dangerous if misused or if they fall into the hands of children who are too young to play with them.

"Small children are especially at risk when it comes to toys because they can easily choke on small toys or even small parts," says Bert Notestine of the Northwest Michigan Safe Kids Chapter. "Parents should consider whether the toy is appropriate for the child's age and whether the gift requires protective gear accessories such as helmets and knee pads."

The Northwest Michigan Safe Kids Chapter recommends the following precautionary tips when selecting gifts this holiday season:

Select Safe Toys

Each year, approximately 109,000 children aged 14 and under are treated in hospital emergency rooms for toy-related injuries. Innocent-looking toys, such as marbles and balloons, present a choking hazard to small children. The Child Safety Protection Act, a federal toy labeling law, requires manufacturers to place warning labels on toys that pose a choking hazard to young children.

When selecting a toy for your child, avoid the following:

— Toys with small removable parts. The small parts are hazardous and can pose a choking hazard to children under age 3. Use a small parts tester (which can be purchased at a toy or baby specialty store) to measure the size of the toy or part. If the piece fits entirely inside the tube, then it is considered a choking hazard.

— Toys with sharp points or edges. A child may unintentionally cut themselves or another person.

— Toys that produce loud noises. Toy guns and high-volume portable cassette recorders can permanently impair a child's hearing.

— Propelled toy darts and other projectiles. Propelled toys can cause cuts or eye injuries.

— Toys with strings, straps or cords longer than seven inches. Long strings and cords could wrap around a child's neck and unintentionally strangle him or her.

— Electrical toys. Electrical toys are a potential burn hazard. Avoid toys with a heating element, such as batteries and electrical plugs, for children under age 8.

— Toys painted with lead paint. Exposure to lead can result in lead poisoning, causing serious damage to a child's brain, kidneys and nervous system.

— Toy cap guns. Paper roll, strip or ring caps can be ignited by the slightest friction and cause serious burns.

Follow age recommendations when selecting toys

Many toy-related injuries occur when parents overestimate their child's ability to handle a toy designed for an older age group. Age recommendations for toys not only take into account a child's cognitive abilities, but they also consider the overall safety of a toy.

The Northwest Michigan Safe Kids Chapter recommends using the following guidelines for age appropriate toys:

— Infants under age 1: In the first few months of their lives, children are immobile. Eventually, they learn to reach, roll over and sit up. In the second six months, children become more mobile and are at an increased risk for choking. The most suitable toys for the first year include activity quilts, stuffed animals without button noses and eyes, bath toys, soft dolls, baby swings, cloth books and squeaky toys.

— Children ages 1-3: At this age, children are curious and have little sense of danger. They like to climb, jump, throw, and play rough-and-tumble games. The best toys for this

"We asked Mom to come and live with us so that we could take better care of her, but her independence is very important to her. We tried to be with her every day, but our work schedules and the kids' activities made that almost impossible. I worried and felt guilty just about all of the time.

Then we learned that VitalCare could help. Mom went along with the idea of having a home health aide come over three days a week to help her with laundry and light housekeeping. I stopped by the other day, and the two of them were having a great time over lunch.

I am so grateful; Mom has her independence, and I have peace of mind."

City's new solid waste plan ready for public review

By B. J. Hetler

A draft of a new county solid waste plan includes increased recycling efforts and, in a radical departure from the past, adds landfills that will be owned by Charlevoix county government.

The draft plan is set for public review this week. It will be on review for 90 days. Copies will be shown at the county building and at libraries.

The Solid Waste Plan Committee met for more than two years to revise the county's current plan. The committee was made up of government officials, environmental interest groups, waste haulers, township, city, and county representatives, regional solid waste plan agencies, and several members of the general public.

By state law counties update solid waste plans every five years.

The new draft plan must be presented to the state Department of Environmental Quality, county planner Larry Sullivan said. The state may reject the plan and write it itself, approve it with any changes it deems necessary, or approve it as the committee drafted it.

The draft plan designates at least two more recycling drop-off locations for residents' use. However, no curbside service will be available, because the population isn't large enough to support the service, Sullivan said.

Townships will be strongly encouraged to work with cities on composting efforts. The draft plan calls for townships to enter into cooperative agreements with Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan, and Beaver Island.

A proposal for additional landfills that will be owned by Charlevoix county is a big change for the county, which has traditionally left landfill ownership up to the private sector. The draft plan calls for an additional household waste landfill and a construction waste landfill.

"The facilities will be owned and operated by the county," Sullivan said. "But the county would not get involved with pick-up. Hauling would still be done by private companies."

One aspect of the draft plan that Sullivan sees as potentially contentious with the state is the county's siting criteria — the rules that govern the distance a landfill must be located from water, for instance.

Charlevoix county siting criteria is more stringent than the state's criteria, Sullivan said.

"Charlevoix county feels more stringent and protective because it's a resort area," he said.

Notice of the 90-day public review period will be posted in newspapers. The draft plan must be approved by county villages, townships and cities.

Group wants school board to reconsider location

GROUP

The site selection committee used a set of criteria and said it looked at and evaluated nine sites. On Sept. 17, approximately three weeks before the school bond election of Oct. 11, the board announced the chosen site of 74 acres on Marion Center Road at a special board meeting. The purchase price was $250,000 and the sale closed on Nov. 9.

However, even though the closing took place, Porter said, the agreements include the sellers' option to buy back the property if a school is not built within five years. The sellers are Mary Stella Alexander and Susan M. Reese of St. Louis, who are Charlevoix summer residents.

Approximately $10,000 would be forfeited to the sellers if the buyback option was exercised, Porter said. But other sites are less expensive and would make up for the $10,000, he said.

The $18,825,000 bond issue, voted in by a 100-vote margin, approved various improvements, renovations and construction of the elementary, middle and high schools, but the land site for the new high school was not on the ballot.

This, say committee members, makes it easy for the board to change its decision on the land.

"Because the Marion Center-Veenstra Road site did not appear on the ballot, the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools and the public request an opportunity to publicly discuss with and ask questions of the Board of Education about the site location," Porter said in a prepared statement.

"We are here to help the public," Porter said. "Since there has been no public discussion of the site by the board, we would request that at a regularly scheduled meeting, the board address these and other concerns that we, the public, have about our school and its future location."

But, board president Allen Telgenhof said other sites either did not fit the criteria, or were not available for sale. Besides, the site isn't that far from town, he said.

Telgenhof and several other board members made a trip to the Lansing area to view other new schools in preparation for building Charlevoix's new high school.

"We visited Williamston, Laingsburg and Leslie," Telgenhof said. "These are communities with schools farther out than ours, and the communities aren't complaining."

Telgenhof said each school they visited was impressive and working well for the students and the community.

He said it is disappointing that some people in Charlevoix won't go along with the board's decision. The board put a great deal of time and effort in finding the best site for Charlevoix, Telgenhof said.

"It's frustrating," he said, adding that he and the board members hope the community will support the land decision.

One of the committee's concerns about the Marion Center site are the costs of furnishing utilities to the site, such as heat, water, electricity and sewer.

The sewer will cost approximately $860,000, according to an estimate by the public schools.

Once the taxpayers' money goes to put the sewer in, the sellers, who have adjoining property, have access rights to the sewer for 80 homes sites, Porter said. It is a covenant in the deed. Those homes will be able to tap in to the sewer for a relatively minimal fee.

But school board member Dennis Halverson said that while the homes will have access, a portion of the tap-in fees will go back to the schools.

Other concerns are that the site is not accessible for students to walk or bike to school, traffic congestion and safety, and urban sprawl.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools will continue to collect the survey postcards and then present the findings to the public and the school board.

Oh Christmas tree, oh Christmas tree

Tree farm fulfills lifelong dream for retired physicist

By B. J. Hetler

A retired research physicist and engineer who worked on the Manhattan Project that developed the atomic bomb, now spends his days nurturing Christmas trees.

"I've always wanted to grow trees," LeRoy Brooks said. His 80-acre farm is known as Brooks Hill Tree Farm.

He trims between 100-200 trees each year to get them ready for Christmas sales. Customers choose their tree and Brooks cuts it for them. "The freshly cut are greener, the needles stay on and there's more fragrance," he said.

"People want all shapes and sizes," Brooks said. "But the most popular size is a seven foot."

Brooks and his wife, Faith, just began selling trees a couple of years ago. Their most popular tree is the blue spruce.

"It takes the blue spruce about 10 years to mature," Brooks said. "A Scotch pine takes six years."

The Brooks have lived on their farm on Maple Grove Road for approximately 14 years. They built their house with wood from the farm.

A far cry from his life in the Air Force and the Army Corps of Engineers, Brooks said he loves what he's doing.

"I'm especially fond of trees," Brooks said. "I'm happy with my work with the trees, but I'm glad I don't have any more than I do."

He started planting 500 trees each year and now has more than 3,000. While the blue spruce trees don't need much trimming, the Scotch pines do.

"Blue spruce tend to grow like a Christmas tree, but the Scotch pine grows like a bush and needs a lot of trimming," Brooks said.

The farm also grows the Fraser fir trees, which have soft needles. A farm specialty is the potted trees.

"People like to put them in the house at Christmas and decorate them, then plant them outside," Brooks said. The potted trees are sold throughout the year.

With the larger Christmas tree, Brooks advises people to cut off the base just before putting it in water if it's been more than several hours since it was cut, and to keep it watered.

"The tree will usually drink a gallon of water the first day, and then one or two quarts after that," he said. "Place the tree away from heat."

Brooks Hill Tree Farm is inspected by foresters and is a recognized tree farm by the state. It is located at 8773 Maple Grove Road. The telephone number is 347-8319.

Celebrating the new millennium with history

By Ginger Winter
For the Charlevoix Courier

Imagine what it was like to live in Charlevoix in the early 1890s when passenger trains on the Chicago and West Michigan Railroad arrived here for the first time. The excitement must have been worthy of a New Year's celebration.

Mike Bergeon is one of a handful of volunteers busy planning this century's New Year's celebration for the Charlevoix Historical Society's gala to benefit the Depot Museum, the city's only national historic site.

"We'll have (the Depot) all decorated with old railroad photos on the walls," said Bergeon, a retired doctor.

Christmas decorations will deck the halls as will a tree donated by a museum supporter. "It's black tie optional," Bergeon said.

Partygoers who buy tickets ($100 per person) are first treated to a private showing at Charlevoix's Cinema III.

"Mary Adams is working on getting us a first-run movie. I won't say what it is in case it falls through," Bergeon said.

After the movie, revelers will make tracks to the Depot to enjoy heavy hors d'oeuvres and plenty of sweets. A cash bar is stationed on a revamped original baggage cart. Complimentary champagne will flow at midnight.

Dr. Dennis Joy, or DJ the DJ as he is known in party circles, will provide music from his private collection. He will play tunes from every decade the 107-year-old rail station has known.

Before the train, resorters had to come by steamboat or via the stagecoach from Petoskey, which had the railroad some 18 years before, or from Boyne Falls.

For more than a decade, Charlevoix citizens and resorters struggled for harbor improvements. But then the railroad changed everything. People came from Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Grand Rapids, and from all over the Midwest.

In 1900, the C & WM Railroad merged with the Pere Marquette Railroad and created more opportunities with the Resort Special-an overnight train originating in Detroit, Toledo and Chicago.

Vacationing families were reunited with working loved ones who could join them on weekends. Charlevoix was no longer isolated from the rest of the world.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, 47 years later, took over and brought diesel improvements, diner and bar cars. Improving roads and autos led to another change.

The last passenger train sounded its whistle in 1962. The last freight train rumbled through in 1982. The Depot still had years of useful service. As the headquarters for the Charlevoix Yacht Club, a long train of parties, and various nautical-related functions ensued until its final change of hands.

"In 1992, the Depot became the property of the historical society almost to the hour of the first train's arrival in 1892. We had someone check the original railroad timetable. It was almost to the hour," Bergeon said, amazed at fate's schedule.

That same year a newspaper article written by the late William H. Ohle marked the centennial anniversary of the railroad. He wrote: "All of a sudden the gateway to the future was swinging open, promising Charlevoix folks equality of opportunity with the great outside world."

Gateway to the future indeed. Another new century is approaching as fast as the trains once arriving all those decades ago.

"We're lucky to have a building like the Depot. It's a valuable community asset," said Chris Unbehaun, another volunteer.

Touted as the last major fundraising event of the 1900s, money raised from ticket sales will go towards a new roof.

"We had a leak by the ticket room last summer when we had a showing of Charlevoix artists of the past," said Unbehaun. "It was like a waterfall in there.

"This party is a win-win situation for everyone. It's a nice time, the money from ticket sales goes to repair the roof, and $75 of the $100 is tax deductible."

For those wanting a new place in the Depot's long history, attending this gala event is a fitting way to pay homage to the past and whistle in the future. For tickets or more information call Mike Bergeon, 547-2742.

Practicing safe snowmobiling ensures happy trails

Michiganders letting the good times roll on nearly 6,000 miles of state snowmobile trails should enjoy this season with safety as their most important passenger, advises AAA Michigan.

"Two light-snow winters in a row may have kept many of Michigan's snowmobiles garaged," said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager. "That, combined with increased enforcement and drivers following the safety rules, have caused snowmobiling deaths in Michigan to fall two consecutive seasons."

Last winter, 32 persons were killed in snowmobile crashes. That compares with 39 killed during the winter of 1997-1998, and 44 who died during the 1996-97 season. Alcohol and darkness were known factors in 19 of last winter's fatalities, and speed or losing control were also noted by police as major contributors in 13.

Sixty percent of the fatalities last winter occurred in the Upper Peninsula, where snow depths were higher. Sixty-three percent occurred on roadways or shoulders when snowmobilers missed a curve, struck obstructions or vehicles, including fellow snowmobilers. Three occurred while crossing unsafe ice. Seven deaths reportedly occurred on designated trails.

Despite the downward trend, state law enforcement officials are concerned that the death toll could spike this winter if Michigan receives more normal snowfalls as predicted and riders fail to follow common sense safety techniques.

"Michigan faces the prospect of having many snowmobilers with limited experience at the controls of their machines," Basch said. "Excessive speed and inexperience, combined with darkness and alcohol, make a deadly combination that keeps repeating each season as major reasons for fatalities."

Another factor is the resurgence in the popularity of snowmobiling. Michigan leads the nation in number of registered machines with an estimated 296,000 sleds. The state is third in total snowmobile trail mileage at 5,900.

This year's marked increase in funds available for enforcement should help improve patrol efforts. A $7 rise in the cost of each three-year snowmobile registration fee was earmarked exclusively for enforcement.

Stepped up efforts, for example, will continue in Grand Traverse, Wexford and Kalkaska counties where special marked patrols were out on heavily used snowmobile routes the last two winters. This effort, police say, has made a significant impact on safety in those counties. Now, more money will be available to help local police statewide to increase patrols over the next three years.

Snowmobilers can help reduce danger by always following these safety guidelines:

— Avoid alcohol. It dulls your enjoyment of the outdoors, and causes judgment lapses and lengthens reaction times.

— Dress properly. Full-face helmets protect against injury and frostbite. Wear a snowmobile suit, boots and mittens and wear a facemask in extremely cold weather or long rides.

Venetian officials attend state festival convention

While many Northern Michigan residents were preparing for deer-hunting season last month, a few board members of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival were laying the ground work for next year's Venetian Festival.

Representing Venetian Festival Inc., board members Dan Barron and Brownie Flanders, along with festival coordinator Laurie Lounsbury, attended the Michigan Festivals and Events Association fall convention in Kalamazoo in November.

"It was a great opportunity for us to see what's available in the way of musical entertainment and park activities," said Barron, Venetian board president. "We came home with a lot of good ideas."

The Charlevoix Venetian Festival became a nonprofit organization last March, operating as a separate entity from the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. As such, the board of directors decided to send delegates to the Michigan Festival and Events Convention to learn all they could about running a successful festival.

Barron and Flanders have a year of festival experience under their belts, while Lounsbury joined the group earlier this fall as festival coordinator. She will handle publicity and media relations, along with helping the group develop corporate sponsors.

"We're thrilled to have Laurie involved, she'll be a great asset with the expertise and resources she brings to the organization," Barron said.

At the convention, delegates previewed musical groups and park entertainment.

Additions to the festival, such as a first class puppet show, more children and teen activities, and top caliber musical entertainment are being considered for Venetian Festival 2000.

The Venetian Festival representatives were particularly interested in convention workshops that explained how to attract corporate sponsors for the festival. Last year, the Venetian Festival was funded by local sponsors, generous private donors and fund-raising activities. In order to enhance the festival with top-notch entertainment and activities, the group has decided to pursue corporate sponsors for extra revenue.

"All of the really big events at the Venetian Festival, such as the concerts in the park, parades, and the fireworks, cost money, and yet they are free to the public," Barron said. "In order to provide the best entertainment possible for Charlevoix residents and visitors, we have to look for additional sources of funding."

The convention provided Lounsbury with her first look at all the behind-the-scenes work involved with putting on a festival.

"It was a great way for me to get a feel for what's involved with festival organization," she said. "There were representatives there from just about every festival in Michigan. One thing I learned is that the Venetian Festival is definitely one of the premier festivals in the state. I'm delighted to be a part of it."

TIPS

— Don't snowmobile alone, especially in sub-zero weather, storms, unfamiliar areas and at night. Always file a "trail plan" telling someone your route and when you'll be back.

— Carry a first-aid kit, compass or portable GPS, or cell phone, matches, survival blanket, tool kit, rope, extra ignition key and high energy foods.

— Stay on marked trails, or where allowed, on the right shoulder of the road. Be alert for fences, culverts, ditches, stumps, posts, dry spots and wire easily hidden by heavy snow.

— Avoid traveling over bodies of water when ice thicknesses and strengths are not known. Stay off rivers, as currents can vary ice thickness. Don't snowmobile on ice that is not at least a solid six inches thick. Avoid crossing ice single file. Stay well spaced.

— Keep your machine in good condition. Snowmobiles are often targets for thieves. Take the keys when parked and chain your machine and trailer when unattended.

Junior golf group elects officers

Denny LaCroix was elected president and Tom Bickersteth vice president of the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association for the 1999-2000 season.

Nancy LaCroix was elected secretary and Sam Supernaw treasurer. Gordon Boydston, Bob Beaumont, Jim Conlin and Francie Martin make up the remainder of the association's board of directors.

Executive director Dean Davenport reviewed the 1999 season, during which the program was selected one of the top 16 programs in the nation by the National Association of Junior Golfers.

Nearly 200 area youngsters registered for the summer program with play and professional instruction provided for by the Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club, Antrim Dells, Dunmaglas and Charlevoix Golf Club.

"Obviously it's become a focus of attention and matter of community pride when so many adult volunteers step forward to enable our youngsters to reap all the benefits from being exposed to the great game of golf," Denny LaCroix said.

Zeitler, Novotny off to fast starts

Rayder wrestlers host Sault Ste. Marie in home opener Thursday

Jerry Zeitler and Ryan Novotny turned in impressive performances Saturday for the Charlevoix wrestling team at the Mancelona Team Dual Tournament.

Zeitler won all five of his matches and Novotny went 4-1 on the day.

The shorthanded Rayders, missing two wrestlers, won one dual match and lost four. After season-opening losses on Thursday, Dec. 2, the Rayders — who have just one junior and no seniors on the roster — are 1-6 in dual matches.

"The kids are doing real good," coach Gary Probert said. "They're not in as good of shape as I'd like them to be at this point and that's something we'll need to work on."

Still, the Rayders are aggressive in their matches, and that is something Probert likes to see.

"The referee said, 'Your kids are trying very hard and throwing moves,' I was very happy at that," he said. "The ref made good comments to us that our kids are not stalling."

Charlevoix's lone team victory on Saturday was a 36-30 win over Frankfort. The Rayders fell to Mancelona, 69-12; Leroy Pine River, 48-36; Cheboygan, 56-24; and Petoskey's B team, 66-18. On Dec. 2 in a tri-meet at Manton, the Rayders fell to Reed City, 69-12, and the host Rangers, 42-24.

Zeitler, a sophomore wrestling at 140 pounds, ran his season record to 6-1 with his five pin-fall victories at Mancelona. Four of his pins came in 39 seconds or less, while his fifth, against Petoskey's Mike Goldsmith, came in 3 minutes, 35 seconds.

Zeitler pinned Frankfort's Dana Gohm in 30 seconds, pinned Pine River's Matt Nelson in 37 seconds, pinned Mancelona's Harpe in 23 seconds, and pinned Cheboygan's Matt Ward in 39 seconds.

On Dec. 2, Zeitler pinned Manton's Josh Tuck in 1:08, then was pinned by Reed City's Bill Terryn in 2:50.

Novotny opened the season on Dec. 2 with a pin in 2:40 of Manton's Jeremy Wood, and a pin of Reed City's Justin Schoenlein in 5:33.

On Saturday, Novotny was almost as impressive as Zeitler. Three of his victories came by pin-fall, all in under a minute. He pinned Don Macel of Pine River in 15 seconds, Ryan Peters of Petoskey in 21 seconds, and Andy Mousseau of Cheboygan in 51 seconds.

Novotny won by forfeit against Frankfort and was pinned by his opponent from Mancelona in 1:54.

Charlevoix had two other winners in its dual meet with Manton. Bo Moore, wrestling at 171, pinned Grant McDaniel in 3:03, and heavyweight Brian Cleary pinned Joe Plonski in 19 seconds.

Cleary was also a winner in the match against Reed City. He pinned Lee Stalhood in 1:24.

In an exhibition match against Manton, Charlevoix's Devon Shotmiller won, 11-4.

In Charlevoix's victory over Frankfort, Rayder winners were Danny Hendricks, 103 pounds, by forfeit; Moore, 171, by pin over Carl Noah, 1:09; Chris Loper, 215, by default over Jeff Walton; and Cleary, heavyweight, pinned Josh Coglart, 4:28.

Against Mancelona, Moore, at 171, pinned his opponent in 4:56. In an exhibition match, Charlevoix's Will Potter won by pin in 2:43.

Against Pine River, Hendricks won by forfeit; Nate Cleary, 145, pinned Matt Nelson, 37 seconds; Moore pinned Nate Wansteed, 1:51; Loper, 189, pinned Chris Kimmel, 4:58; Brian Cleary, 215, pinned James Bowen, 3:56.

Against Petoskey, Nate Cleary pinned Paul Bricker in 3:36 in a 145-pound match.

Against Cheboygan, Hendricks won by forfeit at 103, while Moore pinned Brian Groff in 2:21.

Four Rayders earn first team All-Lake Michigan honors

Ben Coen

Leslie Hoffman

Matt Horon

Kerstin Larsen

Four Charlevoix High School athletes were named to their respective All-Lake Michigan Conference teams.

Juniors Ben Coen and Matt Horon were named to the all-league football team, while senior Kerstin Larsen and junior Leslie Hoffman were named to the all-league girls' basketball team.

Coen carried 51 times for 242 yards and two touchdowns for the Rayder football team, which finished 1-8 overall, 1-5 in the league. He also caught 13 passes for 175 yards. Horon made 60 total tackles. Two other Rayders, Adam Wood and Shay Hutchison, received honorable mention.

Wood, the team's quarterback, completed 50-of-94 pass attempts for 710 yards and five touchdowns. Hutchison made 65 total tackles and on offense had seven receptions for 55 yards.

Larsen transferred to Charlevoix from Crystal Falls Forest Park High School and made an immediate impact. In her first game in a Rayder uniform, she posted a quadruple double in a victory over Harbor Light Christian. She averaged 17 points, eight rebounds, seven assists and eight steals per game on the season.

Hoffman, a guard, averaged 12 points, five rebounds, four assists and three steals on the season. She also had 33 3-pointers on the year to finish among the conference leaders.

Junior guard Meghan Vogel received honorable mention. Vogel averaged 10 points, 11 rebounds and three steals per game. She also took 11 charges on defense.

"She took a charge every other game, that's pretty big for us," first-year coach Jason Otter said.

Otter also praised the play of sophomore point guard Jennifer McClellan, who finished the season with an excellent 2-to-1 assist-to-turnover ratio. She also set a school single-game record with 13 assists in a game this season.

1940s Bridge Street stroll continues

> The Alhambra Hotel sat tight to the Pine River, where the grassy slope is today. It was a three-story building above ground level, and had another story below, next to the water's edge. Salem Mussallem had an antique store on the first floor. In the early days, they played basketball on the main floor. ... There was a bowling alley on the main floor in the middle '40s.

As we continue our stroll down Bridge Street in the 1940s, the first building on the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Bridge was occupied by L.P. Adams and Son. Their line of goods was confectioners, cigars, tobacco, lunches and ice cream. Their home was the gray house on top of south Bridge Street hill where Re/Max is now located. Adams family members are buried in the only above-ground marble vault in the Catholic cemetery.

Local photographer and historian Bob Miles reported at a meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society the following item: Mr. Albert Loeb reportedly paid the famous lawyer Clarence Darrow the sum of $100,000 as partial payment for his services in defending the Loeb-Leopold case, in the back room of this building.

The building to the north, where Morning Glory is now located, was occupied by the Edward J. Smith Furniture Store. The Western Union Telegraph Company was located next, at 111 Bridge. In the summertime, they had several employees that rode bicycles around town to deliver telegraphs. The building to the north was the Bellinger building. Charlie Bellinger and his grandfather, A.M. Bellinger, occupied one side with their jewelry and watch sales and repair. Charlie's dad, Bill, had a shop beside them, in which he sold souvenirs, fishing tackle and musical instruments. Dale remembers Charlie telling him that his grandfather had all the lumber for the store shipped in from Central Lake at a cost of $5 per thousand board feet of lumber. Quite different from today.

The store which is now the Berlage building, was vacant at the time. On the channel, next door, north, was the Alhambra Hotel, managed by Ethyl Ellis. It sat tight to the Pine River, where the grassy slope is today. It was a three-story building above ground level, and had another story below, next to the water's edge. Salem Mussallem had an antique store on the first floor. In the early days, they played basketball on the main floor. One time the ball went out the window, into the channel. It had to be retrieved before the game could continue, as it was the only ball they had. There was a bowling alley on the main floor in the middle '40s.

I vividly remember when I was 10 years old, my girlfriend and I were going along the channel, and we came to the Alhambra building, which they were tearing down at the time. We saw an opening, and crawled in and walking along, came to the back of Bellingers jewelry store. We looked in the window, and then turned around and left. As we went out the back, who was standing there but Joe Smith, the chief of police. He told us we shouldn't be there, as it was very dangerous. He then asked us what our names were. My girlfriend lied, and told him a fictitious name, but I blurted out my correct name, feeling so guilty for having gone in the building. He replied, "You're Glenroy's daughter, aren't you?" I knew he would go right to my dad, so I high-tailed it over to the gas station to tell my dad first. He really appreciated that, and smoothed things over when the chief came by.

We have now reached the old swing bridge. It was built in 1901. The steel and cement platform that it rotated on, with the big ring gear around its circumference was located on the north side of the channel. Dale recalls the local engineer, R.F. Sloan, who owned what is now Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering, was standing proudly along the channel, watching the demolition crew trying to break the old foundation up. He had engineered the bridge 47 years earlier, and had a big smile on his face, as they worked so hard to break it up. About the same length of time passed again, before the present bridge was completely rebuilt three years ago. The old swing bridge was narrow, and two cars could just pass over it at the same time.

Dale recalls hearing the following story many times during his childhood. His grandfather, Morris K. Chew, who lived in Hayes Township, was driving his Model T to town one foggy morning. He was going to the Baptist Church with his entire family of six children and his wife. As he approached the bridge, the visibility was zero. All of a sudden, one of the children hollered "Papa! The bridge is open!!" He slammed the brakes on, and stalled the engine, and the car was so close to going over the precipice and into the water, that he couldn't even get in front of the car to crank it. Everyone had to bail out, and push it backwards, upgrade, to crank it and restart it. There were no crossing guards at that time.

The Argo Milling Company was located where the Weathervane Inn is today. It was one of the first businesses built in town. Harry Craig was the manager. When you entered the building through the main door on River Street, the floor would go downhill about 16 inches as you crossed the room in the big office. The building had settled and was slowly sinking toward the channel. When Earl Young bought the place in the early '50s, he tore the building down to the first floor. He installed radiant heat pipes on top of the old sloping floor, and shored it up from the bottom, and so now there is 4 inches of concrete on the River Street level, and about 20 inches on the channel side. Because the building was a mill, it had to be built heavy, to hold all the flour and grain deposited on the upper floors. After Earl shored up the bottom story, and poured the concrete floor, the building is level like it should be, today.

Charlevoix Oil Company was located on the northwest corner of Michigan Avenue and River Street. The street name changes at the bridge. The business was owned by Gus Fotchman and Albert Cook. They sold Chevrolet and Packard automobiles, and had a wholesale gas and oil business, and a retail gas station along with a very good repair shop. Hap Cunningham drove the '41 Chevrolet oil delivery truck for many years. He put snow tires on single wheels and chains over them, to navigate the deep snow in customers' yards. One Saturday, Dale recalls that Preston Tucker was visiting his mother, who lived on River Street. He only manufactured 50 cars, and 49 still exist today. They are very coveted collectors items, worth between $600,000-$700,000 each. He parked two Tuckers on the hill in front of the oil company. There were swarms of people stopping to look them over as no one had ever seen such futuristic engineering and styling. Whoever said a little town is dull!

age group are books, blocks, fit-together toys, balls, push-and-pull toys, pounding toys, and shape toys.

— Children ages 3-5: As any parent of a preschooler can tell you, these children "think with their feet" and spend much of their time running. They like tests of physical strength and begin to develop skills such as riding a tricycle, finger control, and the ability to build with large blocks and construction materials. Toys that are most suitable for this age group include approved non-toxic art supplies, books, videos, musical instruments and outdoor toys such as a baseball tee, slide or swing.

— Children ages 5-9: It is in the early part of this age group that children become creative and more physically active. They can write, engage in arts and crafts, and are able to use simple mechanical toys such as cars and trains. Recommended toys include craft materials, jump ropes, puppets, books, electric trains (after age 8) and sports equipment. Remember, children ages 8 and up can begin to use electrical and battery operated toys. Check tape recorders and battery-operated toys regularly for loose or exposed wires. Don't allow children to change batteries.

— Children ages 9-14: At this age, children enjoy team sports and games that require increased dexterity such as pickup sticks, marbles and jacks. Strenuous physical activity is also popular for this age group. Children begin to develop hobbies and a strong interest in scientific activities. For these children, appropriate gifts include computers, microscopes, table and board games and outdoor and team sports equipment. Ensure that older children's toys are kept out of reach of younger children for whom they may present a danger.

Remember, a gift is not complete unless the proper protective gear is included.

Bicycles, in-line skates, skateboards and sleds are also popular gifts for the holidays. However, without the proper protective gear or skills, injury and death can occur. In 1996, more than 200 children were killed in bicycle-related incidents. In 1997 injuries resulting from bicycles, skateboards, and inline and roller skates accounted for almost a half million emergency room visits from children ages 14 and under.

The Northwest Michigan Safe Kids Chapters recommends the following tips when buying bicycles, tricycles, skates, skateboards or sleds this holiday season:

— Include a helmet as part of the gift. A helmet is a necessity, not an accessory. Bicycle helmets have been shown to reduce the risk of head injury by as much as 85 percent and the risk of brain injury by as much as 88 percent.

— Buy retro-reflective clothing, stickers or bike reflectors for an older child who will be riding or skating at dawn or dusk. Reflectors on the pedals and wheels also increase a child's visibility.

— Give a horn or bell as a stocking stuffer. A horn or bell is essential for bicyclists to warn motorists and pedestrians of their presence.

— In addition to a helmet, include elbow pads, wrist guards and knee pads when giving in-line skates, roller skates or skateboards as gifts.

— Give in-line skating lessons from a professional instructor or a community recreation center. A class will provide instruction on how to skate properly and on proper skating etiquette.

Rayders ready to reload after memorable season

By Andy Sneddon

It's the cyclical nature of high school sports: The cast of characters changes from year to year.

Such is the case with the Charlevoix boys' basketball team, which put together a sensational season in 1998-99 in advancing to the Class C state semifinals and finishing 21-6.

Third-year Rayder coach Keith Haske said good-bye to nine seniors from that team. Still, the cupboard is not bare. The Rayders return six letterwinners from that squad, including three who logged significant playing time.

Adam Wood, Sean Stockman and Andy Granath make up the experienced veteran trio around which Haske hopes to build.

"I believe in a real balanced scoring attack," Haske said. "I'm thinking we have a lot of guys who can put the ball in the hole. We don't want a team to come in and say, 'We can shut down Wood, or we can shut down Stockman.' I'd rather have it where we have five or six kids score 10-12 points a game."

Keith Haske

Stockman, a 6-foot-2 forward, is an excellent athlete who is beginning his third year on the varsity.

Wood, a 6-3 guard, is also a good athlete who started occasionally last season. He is also capable of exploding for a big scoring night. Last season, he scored 27 points against St. Ignace, and approached the 20-point mark on another occasion.

The 1999-2000 Charlevoix High School varsity boys' basketball team, which opened its season on Tuesday at home against Petoskey. The Rayders resume play on Friday at home against Suttons Bay in a non-league game. Team members are front (from left) Scott Pair, Patrick Gowell, Zach Dennis, Jon Boss, Ben Coen, Jeremiah Teuscher, Doug Rieck; back, Russ Ward, Andy Granath, Adam Wood, Scott Parrish, Sean Stockman, Shay Hutchison. (Photo by Andy Sneddon)

Granath, a 6-3 forward, appeared in every game last season.

The other returnees are seniors Shay Hutchison, Russ Ward and Jon Boss. Both Hutchison and Ward stand 6-2 and will play in the frontcourt, while Boss is a 5-8 guard.

Among six newcomers are a pair of sophomores — 6-5 center Scott Parrish and 6-1 guard Patrick Gowell, both of whom helped lead last year's JV team to a 13-7 record.

"I think they're pretty talented kids," Haske said. "Varsity is a different level, but give them half way through the year and I think they'll be pretty good varsity players."

Other newcomers are senior guard Scott Pair and juniors Doug Rieck, Ben Coen, Zach Dennis and Jeremiah Teuscher. Teuscher, at 6-1, is the tallest among the group.

The newcomers may hold the key to the Rayders' season.

"I think a lot depends on what the young kids do," Haske said. "If those guys come along, we could be pretty good.

"I think our work ethic has been real good. In practice, the kids have really been getting after it. There seems to be pretty good chemistry on this team. If we can keep those two things (good attitude, chemistry), I think we've got a chance to be OK."

Varsity: Haske likes attitude, commitment

VARSITY

Haske, who is again being assisted by Bret Erskine, said that the Rayders are keeping last year in the back of their collective minds, while of course looking ahead to 1999-2000.

"It's a brand new year," he said. "That's the way high school basketball is, unless you've got a lot of kids coming back. I think there was more pressure last year with all the kids back and the pretty high expectations (then)."

"The kids that we have back have been through that (tournament run) and I think that's helped us in the preseason. The kids are pretty motivated. They'd like to make their own mark."

Last year's success will also likely be on the minds of Charlevoix's opponents, making the Rayders a red-letter date on most schedules, especially those of traditional rivals Petoskey, Boyne City, East Jordan and Harbor Springs, Haske said.

"Absolutely, they're going to be gunning for us," he said. "Hopefully, we'll rise to that challenge."

Haske said Harbor, with its entire starting lineup back among nine returnees, is his pick as the early season Lake Michigan Conference favorite. Still, he said, it certainly will not be a one-horse race.

"The league is a tossup," he said, adding that Kalkaska looks strong and Boyne City should be in the running. "The unknown for me is Traverse City (St. Francis). They've got a new coach, Sander Scott, and you know they're going to have some decent athletes; it's just a matter of how they're going to mesh together."

Second-year Rayder JV coach Brandon Bruce said his team is "going to be pretty well-rounded."

Bruce, who guided last year's team to a 13-7 mark, will build around the trio of Jim Shepherd, Rob Boss and Ryan Rafacz.

"I think those three are probably going to be the leaders in rebounding, scoring and assists," Bruce said, but "I think they're all going to be able to contribute."

Shepherd, a left-handed sharpshooter, will play the No. 2 guard, while Rafacz is the point guard. Boss, a 6-foot-2, 250-pounder, was a two-way starter on the Rayder varsity football team.

"Shepherd, if you let him, he'll shoot the lights out," Bruce said, adding that Shephard made almost 10 3-pointers in a freshman game last season.

Also on the roster is 6-1 Keith Daly, a forward with loads of potential, Bruce said, who will see playing time in the frontcourt. Also in the frontcourt are 6-footers Landon Brown, Nick Schwein and Kyle Dobrowolski.

Schwein was also a starter on the varsity football team.

Backing up in the backcourt are Shawn McDonough and Dennis Avery, along with Elijah Pace.

VOLLEYBALL

Loper takes over program

By Andy Sneddon

For the first time in a long time, there's a new person in charge of the Charlevoix High School volleyball program.

Charlevoix native Carolyn Loper has taken the reins of the program from Brenda Bryan, who led the Rayders for the past 16 seasons.

"I hope I do as well as Brenda did," said Loper, a 1980 Charlevoix High School graduate who last winter coached the Charlevoix eighth-grade volleyball team. "Brenda always put out a good team."

Loper said the 1999-2000 Rayders have the potential to contend for the Lake Michigan Conference and Class C district championships.

"I'd like to do it this year; I think I've got the team to do it," she said.

We are "a little young, but I think I've got just enough seniors and enough returnees to keep it a solid team."

Leading the returnees are seniors Taya Drost, Crystal Casciani and Beth Owens, and junior Kelly Dreyer.

Leading the newcomers is senior Jill Ramsey and sophomores Kelly Reid, Kate Madison and Jenny Miller.

Loper said she is particularly high on the 5-foot-10 Madison and the 5-8 Miller, both of whom she hopes will develop into potent hitters.

Casciani and Owens, though not as tall as Madison and Miller, can also be forces up front, Loper said, because of their experience, jumping ability and arm swing.

"They're going to be real strong in the front row for us, too," Loper said.

"I'm looking to them to help with the younger girls as well."

Loper said she plans to change the Rayder offense from a 5-I to a 6-2. The difference, basically, is that the 5-1 uses one setter, while the 6-2 uses two.

The 6-2 will allow the Rayders to utilize three spikers in the front row.

"With the height we have, I think it's the best offense to use this year," Loper said.

Dreyer is a mainstay at setter, while Loper said she is working with Reid along with juniors Amber Parsons and Michelle Martin at the position, which is the quarterback of a volleyball team.

Loper said she is high on another sophomore, Taryn Drost, as a back-row player, while Casciani has also looked impressive there.

Also on the roster are juniors Molly Arnold and Karianne Miller.

"The girls that are returning are going to be a good strong base," said Loper, who works as a payroll administrator at Big Rock Point Restoration Project. "The sophomores that I brought up are showing real potential. "I'm still kind of working in a lot of different areas, whether they'll be used in the front row or back row."

The Rayders open their season on Saturday, Dec. 11 at the Roscommon Invitational.

The Rayder JV and freshmen teams open their season when they host a tournament on the same day.

The Rayder JV team will be coached by a familiar name, Gregg Swanson, who led the Rayder JV squad from 1989-95. He coached the Boyne City JV in 1997, and the East Jordan JV in '98.

Swanson, like his varsity counterpart, Loper, enters the season with a relatively young squad which includes four freshmen: Natasha Kleiber, Erin Buckner, Crystal Meredith and Beth Reeves.

JV squad features good height, good setter candidates

The sophomores on the roster are Rachel Kanine, Michelle Yaldo, Tegan Lawson, Libby Withrow, Krista Swenor, Krista Lisk, Kelly Way and Kati Swenor.

"The height and the serving is pretty good," Swanson said. "I have a very favorable opinion right now."

Swanson said he too will run a two-setter system and Lisk, Krista Swenor and Kanine are candidates to start.

Swanson added that Withrow, Reeves, Lawson and Kati Swenor provide the Rayders' height, and should see playing time in the front row.

Coach Ann Gorney returns to lead the Rayder freshman team, which is in its second year and is a valuable step in the program.

"It's kind of like a feeder program for the JV and the varsity," said Gorney, a math and science teacher at the high schools.

Gorney has seven players on this year's roster: Erin Burns, Stephanie Kerner, Michelle Swem, Nina Rogers, Lindsey Miller, Kaylee Kughman and Lorna Kilborn.

With just seven players on the roster, each should receive ample playing time, which only helps down the line, Gorney said.

They will get a "lot of playing time to get them ready for next year and their following years," she said.

The Rayder freshmen open their season on Monday, Dec. 13 at Inland Lakes.

Three state qualifiers return

Sue Miller and her Charlevoix High School ski team face a unique problem as they try to get out of the chute for the 2000 season: No snow.

"We usually try to get on the snow as soon as we can," Miller said on Sunday. "Right now, everybody's in the same situation, but it's delayed that much farther and it doesn't look too promising before Christmas."

So, the Rayders are stuck in dryland training, which consists of conditioning and agility and balancing drills. Those help, but it is still nothing like being on skis on a snow-covered hill.

The Rayders return three state qualifiers from last season, senior Todd Freidinger on the boys' team, and senior Tiffany Fisher and sophomore Lexi Wilson on the girls' squad.

Kirsten Brendtro and Alisha Johnson also return to the girls' team, giving Miller a solid quartet on which to build.

"They've been real consistent skiers, ones I can count on," Miller said.

Newcomers to the girls' team are seniors Kristy Shindorf, Lindsey Carland and Jessica Halverson.

Freidinger, fresh off a state mountain-bike championship, is the mainstay on the boys' squad, which returns its nucleus.

"I have a lot of seniors on the (boys') team and I think they want to meet their goals for their last year in high school," Miller said.

Also back are Steve Pirie, Roscoe Serrells, Joel Trubilowicz, Kyle Louiselle, Shaun MacMillan and Jim Dilworth. Newcomers are senior T.J. Christiansen, junior Troy Smith and freshman Brad Long.

"Our guys' team will be very solid," Miller said. "There's a lot of experience there.

"It (depth) gives you a competitive edge during practice and more to work with when it comes down to racing," she said. "It looks like it'll be a good season."

WRESTLING

New coach inherits young team

For the Charlevoix High School wrestlers, it's a new season, a new coach and a new beginning.

In other words, a fresh start for a program that in recent years has had declining numbers and with it fortunes on the mat.

Gary Probert, a familiar name in Charlevoix wrestling circles, has succeeded Greg Bryan as the Rayder mentor.

Probert wrestled for his father, Norm, before graduating in 1977. He went on to wrestle at Ferris State University on a scholarship.

Over the years, Probert has directed the annual middle school tournament, and helped at various times with the high school program along with freestyle tournaments.

''It's a big commitment,'' Probert said. ''I'm not a teacher, I'm a builder, so I have to take time off, but I'm really excited about this.''

If only looking at numbers, the season is already off to a pretty good start.

''We have 13 (wrestlers) out and last year they finished with seven, so we are happy with that.'' Probert said. ''We are basically very heavy with sophomores.''

In fact, the team is made up of nine sophomores, plus two freshmen and two juniors. Five of six returning lettermen are sophomores.

Ryan Novotny, a junior, heads the returnees, lettering as both a freshman and sophomore. He will compete at 160 pounds.

Sophomores back are Josh Chamberlain, 119 pounds; Nate Holmes, 125 pounds; Jerry Zeitler, 140 pounds; Will Potter, 170 pounds; and Chris Loper, 189 pounds.

In addition, Probert has a sophomore brother transfer combination from St. Ignace, Brian Cleary, 215 pounds; and Nate Cleary, 140 pounds. Tony Shearer, a junior at 125 pounds, is currently sidelined with an injury, but is expected back after the holidays.

''We are getting close to filling a full team, but are a little light in the lightweights and missing a heavyweight,'' Probert said. ''We are building the program with youth.

''A few have been in freestyle wrestling and now we are picking up kids who have trained at middle school.''

Charlevoix's first home match is Thursday, Dec. 9, with Sault Ste. Marie, and the Rayders will host their annual team dual invitational on Saturday, Dec. 18.

The Rayders will then host Mancelona and Mio in a triple-dual match on Wednesday, Dec. 22. They are then off for Christmas break until Jan. 6, when they travel to Kalkaska.

Probert said he hopes that when it is all said and done, his wrestlers have a collective won-loss record above .500, and it's a goal that he said is attainable.

''We are going to go very strong with freshman-sophomore tournaments this season,'' he said.

School site opponents speak out

By B. J. Hetler

> "That is a dangerous road, the winter time is the most dangerous."
> — Dick Stangis

Except for the lack of accent, Monday's school board meeting could have been England's Parliament, with bantering back and forth among speakers and the alternating booing and applauding of the audience.

The issue causing the commotion and the standing-room-only crowd in the high school study hall was the Charlevoix school board's site selection for the new high school.

Some residents do not want the high school located at the site on Marion Center Road, between Veenstra and Clark roads. They cite road safety, traffic congestion, urban sprawl, and lack of student walking or biking accessibility, among other concerns.

Dick Stangis who is now retired, was road foreman for the Charlevoix County Road Commission for 23 years. A part of his territory was the Marion Center Road. The Marion Center Road is the most-traveled primary road in Charlevoix County, he said. He said he spoke on his own out of concern for the safety of students.

"That is a dangerous road, the winter time is the most dangerous," Stangis said. "Your children will be the ones traveling out there," he told the audience.

Resident Tosca Habel who lives on Marion Center Road shares his concerns.

"With this site, I have grave concerns for the safety of students," Habel said. Bus trips from the site in the winter would be treacherous. Every winter the Habels have cars in their yard that have slipped off the road, she said.

"I would prefer a site somewhere in town," Habel said. She said she came from a town where the schools were moved out of town and the place became a ghost town. "The community was lost."

But the board said the road will be improved, mostly by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

"We've addressed the issues," board member Scott Boss said. He said he has several children that will eventually attend high school at the site and said he isn't concerned for their safety.

AAA: Many home deaths preventable

When it comes to fire safety, "home sweet home" can be more dangerous than expected - especially without working smoke detectors.

Last year, 163 people died in Michigan home fires. That's 76.5 percent of the 213 fire fatalities.

"Many of those deaths may have been prevented if working smoke detectors had been available," said Jerry Basch, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager.

The "1998 Fire in Michigan Annual Report," compiled and published by the Fire Marshal Division of the Michigan State Police, shows that 43.1 percent of the 13,095 homes did not have detectors. Another 10.3 percent had detectors that did not work.

"Tragically over half of the residential fire deaths occurred in homes without detectors or with ones that failed," said Basch.

"When seconds count, smoke detectors are your best early-warning system that a fire is underway," added Basch. "Smoke and poison gases can kill after a few breaths." Three-quarters of fire deaths occur between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m., with 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. being the most dangerous period.

Basch noted that smoke detectors can wake a person while there is still time for life-saving action, especially for young children who need adult guidance in an emergency situation.

Of the total 1998 Michigan fire deaths, children under age 10 accounted for more than a third (35.2 percent) - 75 of the 213 fatalities - the most for any age group. Children playing with fire was the most common cause of home fire deaths.

AAA Michigan advised that smoke detectors should be placed on every level of the home, and ideally, in every common "area of origin" for fires such as the kitchen, bedroom and living room. Smoke detectors are available at most hardware, department and discount stores, often for under $15. Many fire departments have programs to provide smoke detectors for people with financial needs. Before purchasing a detector, check with your fire department to comply with local codes.

To help Michigan residents learn how to develop a fire escape plan, AAA Michigan branch offices across the state offer a free brochure titled, "Planning for Home Fire Emergencies."

Police search for time bandit

Charlevoix County Sheriff deputies are searching for a man who stole time.

The man, a clock repair-man, took several clocks from Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim County people who brought them to him for repair or appraisal.

Some of the clocks are valued at several thousand dollars and some are described as "priceless" by the victims as they were gifts from ancestors.

Deputies have recovered four clocks to date and believe that as many as 15 more are missing. The investigation has determined that the suspect has moved from the area to Flint and was believed to be in Texas last week.

The investigation at this point is focusing on a felony complaint for larceny by conversion.

Anyone who has taken a clock to "Greg Day" for repair or appraisal is asked to contact Detective Sgt. Don Sprout at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department at 231-547-4461 if they are still missing their clock.

Attention Kmart shoppers: purse stolen from store

A 50-year-old Charlevoix woman's purse was stolen around 1 p.m. Dec. 11 at the Big K-Mart Store on M-66.

The woman told the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department she had placed her purse in her shopping cart while shopping. Several minutes later while checking out she discovered the purse was missing.

About $200 in cash, credit cards, a checkbook, miscellaneous identification cards and medication were in the purse when it was taken.

Shoppers are cautioned to not put personal valuables into shopping carts and to use purses that can be worn. The increased number of shoppers makes it very easy for thieves to obtain such items in only seconds while you are distracted.

They are then able to disappear into the crowd unnoticed.

In several cases the thieves already used credit cards or written checks from your account in nearby stores before the purse was noticed missing by the victims.

Many benefit from CharEm United Way campaign

Thanks to Consumers Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration employees, the CharEm United Way campaign is $17,000 richer.

The employees pledged $17,075 to the charity, surpassing their goal by more than $1,000. Employees gave an average of $181 each.

According to our story last week, Big Rock Point, Consumers Energy and its contract partners have contributed more than $227,000 to United Way in the past 13 years.

Their campaign this year —

EDITORIAL

Caring Hearts Build Hope — makes a big statement for a program that benefits so many people in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

United Way is a collection and distribution organization for agencies such as Boy and Girl Scouts, Charlevoix Teen Center, Exceptional Riders program, American Red Cross, Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Northwest Michigan, Camp Daggett, Charlevoix Senior Center, Michigan Dyslexia Institute and the Women's Resource Center.

The 2000 CharEm United Way campaign kick-off began in October and ends this month.

The campaign theme is "Building a Caring Community," which represents a growing camaraderie between Emmet and Charlevoix counties. Last year, area residents contributed $180,000.

For those wanting to take advantage of a year-end tax deduction, this is an excellent to time to make a donation. If you haven't been contacted by a volunteer, you can make a one-time gift to: CharEm United Way, P.O. Box 21, Petoskey, Mich. 49770.

Every person who gives to the United Way helps build hope in the life of another by funding some 29 non-profit educational opportunities, food pantries, senior citizen activities, counseling for abuse victims and other services.

Besides Big Rock's contribution, Charlevoix finds itself with two other leadership roles for the campaign.

Ken Powers of Big Rock is serving as the United Way campaign manager, while Dorian MacGillivray, who worked with several Charlevoix merchant and convention organizations, has become the new executive director of CharEm United Way.

We're pleased to see Charlevoix's involvement and support for such an important program. It's just one more example of what makes Charlevoix such a great community.

Letters to the editor

Land Conservancy program will be informational

Editor:

In 1992, Gov. John Engler's task force reported that lack of land-use planning coupled with urban degradation was the biggest threat to quality of life in Michigan. The real problem is not development, but rather how development happens. Although civil servants and citizens have spent hundreds of hours on local levels planning for growth, there has been little leadership on a state level to set up vehicles through which counties and townships, industry and schools, utilities and developers can work and plan together.

Special interest groups push individual agendas, unaware of the needs and goals of other organizations, or the opportunities and possibilities of working together. Communication between groups is essential, but the push of time, money and need often override cooperative opportunities.

There is a better way, but it is not easy. It takes much work and time, commitment and compromise. The ongoing work of planning is an essential investment in the quality of our own lives, the value of our property and the future of our children. The Charlevoix County Land Conservancy is proud to be working to bring people together, to present new information and to work for mutual goals. Our motto is "We Can!" not "You Can't." In the last year the Charlevoix Conservancy has sponsored land use planning workshops featuring state and local experts. We also presented a program on the difficulties and challenges of the local farmer, a spring and fall "Watershed Ramble" which brought local conservation groups together, and we offer many opportunities for community participation, education, (our resource library is always available) and natural features appreciation.

To start the year 2000 in a good and positive direction, on Monday, Jan. 3, 2000 at 5 p.m., the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy will offer a program at City Hall in Charlevoix on the "Principles of Conservation Design." All successful planning is based on the participation of educated, involved citizens. For more information please call the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy at 237-9335.

Education vouchers are not the answer

Editor:

Everyone is entitled to their opinion — not everyone is entitled to their facts. The latest newsletter from Betsy DeVos' Michigan Republican Party is a tome railing on public education where opinions become fact.

Having become the chief ax grinder for vouchers promoted by the self-seeking politicized Christian Right, DeVos expects the faithful to follow her logic. Republicans are told, "We refuse to sit idly by and watch another generation of kids fall through the cracks" and so now is "No time to simply defend the status quo" by which she means public schooling. She claims her party cares about kids, however in her polemic DeVos gets to her real bottom line "... Many national pundits have long believed that vouchers and school choice are the best hope for the GOP to win support from minorities."

What is most amazing about DeVos' call to help poor, neglected minority children is revealed in the number of such children currently enrolled in her tradition's Dutch ethnic Christian Schools. That percentage is far, far below that of surrounding public schools.

Now she asks the entire state to approve a parochial funding scheme, when in fact their outreach to minority children is abysmal. More likely, DeVos' self-serving motive in her strong support for vouchers is to get the support of minorities for political advantage, and grab a government entitlement — cash — for her own religious schools.

The status quo is always the enemy of a revolutionary. DeVos' revolt against the community and its common values is shameless in intent and fervor. How can an historic political party become so enslaved to such a narrow agenda, turning on vital the democratic institution that promotes and protects our freedoms?

The education apartheid vouchers create is civic cyanide. DeVos would kill our democratic dream — quality public education, to profit a few elites and private marketeers.

Decoration winners

Ace Hardware owners Vicky and Mark Greyerbiehl are the 1999 overall winners in the Annual Christmas Business Window and Storefront Decorating Contest. Judges awarded points for holiday spirit, originality, and use of the business' goods in decorating. The event is organized by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. It took approximately three weeks to finish decorating the Ace Hardware's windows, Vicky said. "Every time I thought I was finished, someone would come in and buy something, so I had to redo the display. But, I'm not complaining," she said. (Courtesy photo)

School site foes sound off at board meeting

The 74-acre parcel, purchased for $250,000 , was chosen by the board's site selection committee, after it researched 11 different sites. The site location was announced to district voters three weeks before an $18.8 million bond issue to improve the schools was voted on and passed.

But Dr. Jeffrey Porter, spokesman for the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools, said many people voted for the bond issue because they wanted school improvements, but were not happy with the land site location.

The committee has come up with several superior sites, Porter said, and it wants the board to consider them.

But the board will stand firm with its site selection. Board president Allen Telgenhof asked each member what they wanted to do. Staying the course was the unanimous decision.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools will continue to meet regularly at city hall and is planning a petition drive. An informal survey it took of the community shows that people want a different site closer to Charlevoix by four-to-one.

Telgenhof said a mailing will go out soon to voters, informing them of the other sites researched by the school site committee.

"The board and the administration need to be more proactive with the community, so (they'll) have the facts," Telgenhof said.

Charlevoix Senior Center receives technology grants

The Charlevoix Senior Center recently received two technology grants, making it possible for seniors and others in the Charlevoix area to use computers.

The first grant came from Microsoft in the form of a video, "Opening New Windows on the World, An Introduction to Computers and the Internet."

The video will allow the center to introduce computer terminology to community members and help them explore the value and uses of technology. Computer technician George Pollak will begin organizing group shows on Jan. 5.

Watching the video is a good first step for those interested in taking beginning computer classes and becoming computer literate.

The second grant came from The American Society on Aging in San Francisco. The Online Multicultural Aging Network (OMAN) selected the Charlevoix Senior Center to receive a new IBM computer which will allow the center access to a diverse network of service agencies which focus on seniors.

The grants will allow the center to offer additional classes and have Internet capability.

Later in the winter and in the spring, volunteers will be needed to finish the lower area of the building and establish a computer lab.

For more information, call Pollak, 547-5361.

Michael Bush

Trooper Michael Bush, a recent graduate of the 118th Michigan State Police Trooper Recruit School, has joined the Grand Haven Post of the Michigan State Police and is expected to begin patrol duties next week.

Bush is one of 119 new state troopers who graduated during a special ceremony on Dec. 3, 1999.

Bush, a native of Charlevoix, is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and Michigan State University. He earned a bachelors degree in criminal justice. His parents, Sue and Roger Bush, reside in East Jordan.

Askin named sergeant-at-arms

Charlevoix native Kit (Lieberman) Askin was recently elected to serve as sergeant-at-arms for the National Legislative Services and Security Association (NLSSA) at the association's annual training conference in Missouri.

NLSSA is one of 10 staff sections of the National Conference of State legislatures (NCSL). NLSSA membership consists of sergeants-at-arms and other services and security personnel from state legislatures around the country. The organization was established in 1973 as a means of enhancing professionalism and communication among legislative staff.

Askin has been a member of NLSSA for nine years, and previously held the positions of regional chair and vice chair. As the association's sergeant-at-arms, she will serve as chair of the membership committee, and hold a position on the national executive board, which is influential in planning training programs, creating and publishing materials relating to legislative security concerns, defining the goals of the organization, and responding to member requests for information and assistance.

A 1973 graduate of Charlevoix High School, Askin received a bachelor of science degree from Northern Michigan University and attended the University of Alabama at Birmingham. She was the Emmet County Sheriff's Department's first female deputy from 1977 until 1981, when she accepted an appointment as an FBI Agent. She has served as the chief sergeant-at-arms for the Michigan Senate since 1989.

She is the daughter of Bob and Jane Lieberman.

Consumers lends a hand to Salvation Army Christmas drive

Members of the Big Rock Point Restoration Project Christmas party committee pose in front of the mountain of toys donated to the Salvation Army at the Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix. Committee members are (from left) Lori Wells, Steffani Smith, Pam Gibson, Sue Saddison, Bridgette Criner and Sheila McKinney. (Courtesy photo)

Bill Everling was a sixth-grader in a needy family when he ripped open a donated Christmas gift. With excitement, he discovered a model car.

But when he opened the box, Bill found that the car was half put together. The other pieces were missing.

He has never forgotten the disappointment of that Christmas morning.

Today, Bill Everling is known as Captain. He leads the Salvation Army in Emmet and Charlevoix counties.

Capt. Everling told his poignant story while picking up about 300 gifts for needy children at a Christmas party for Consumer Energy's Big Rock Point Restoration Project employees. The small mountain of new toys was created as employees stacked gifts on and around tables at the Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix.

The mass of toys shocked Everling.

"As we came in the front door, it overwhelmed me how many toys are here," Capt. Everling told the Dec. 4 gathering of 250 Consumers Energy and contract employees. Salvation Army personnel will wrap and distribute the stuffed animals, games, dolls, and other toys. On Christmas day, there will be new toys for many local children, who might have had none.

Everling said the Big Rock Point donations are helping him and his wife meet a personal vow: "When we became pastors, we swore that a sixth-grader would never again get half a model car for Christmas."

Big Rock Point employees have collected and donated more than 1,450 toys to the Salvation Army in the past 12 years.

In addition to donating the toys to the Salvation Army, Big Rock Point employees gave $440 to the Charlevoix-Emmet Family Independence Agency. The agency helps the working poor, said executive director Terry Salacina. That aid is increasingly important as state and federal welfare programs are being reformed, he said.

"Money like yours helps fill the gaps created between welfare reform and families getting on their feet," Salacina said.

Over the past 12 years, Big Rock Point employees have collected nearly $10,000 during their annual Christmas party and donated the money to area nonprofit agencies.

Ear to the Ground

Since moving to Michigan four years ago, I have succumbed to the deer hunting virus (DHV). It isn't that hunting as an activity is new to me; I have hunted pheasants, ducks, rabbits and even the occasional squirrel since I was 12 years old. It is just that I haven't previously been in a place where deer hunting occupied so much of the public consciousness. My previous lessons in hunting have served me well in this new place. I was taught when I acquired my first .22 that if you shoot it, you eat it, and when I plinked pheasants in the winter from the trees just back of our rural home, I was helping to feed the family. That rule also kept me from shooting at a variety of other less palatable wildlife. My infection with DHV has not as yet put anything in the freezer, but it has had some positive effects.

Since I am inclined to think of hunting as a solitary activity, I have not participated in the hunting camp rituals that are so much a part of early winter for so many of Michigan's hunters. It has occurred to me that I don't really hunt deer but just spend a considerable amount of time sitting outdoors and watching the passing parade. I have seen more deer crossing the road in front of my car than I have seen from my deer stand (maybe I should move). But the other sights available to anyone spending time sitting quietly in Michigan's out-of-doors have produced one successful hunt after another. It is not possible to put remarkable sights in the freezer or on the wall, but they persist longer than those other, more perishable outcomes of a hunt.

This year's hunt trophy was the pleasure of spending the better part of five minutes watching a Pine Marten racing through the tree tops. I had never seen one before and wasn't absolutely sure what it was until I got home and checked a few books. According to the range maps they are present in small number in our specific corner of Michigan and a few localities in the western Upper Peninsula. The Pine Marten is a relative of minks and otters that lives and hunts up in the trees. It is about the size of a large mink with pointed ears and a good size bushy tail, and it can move through the trees with a speed and agility that should scare any squirrel into immobility. My marten and I looked at one another for a long time; he wondering what those binoculars were in front of my eyes and I trying to memorize everything about the time and place and creature for my mental trophy room. He has a prominent place there.

There is an old French adage that translated roughly says, "If you have only two pennies, buy bread with one and with the other buy flowers for the soul." I have yet to benefit from the food for the body that deer hunting can bring, but my soul is nourished.

Obituaries

Cliff Hosler

Cliff Hosler died Dec. 13 at his home in Charlevoix.

He was born Jan. 19, 1926 in Detroit to Emma Leimbach and Dewey Watson Hosler. He was raised in East Jordan where as a child he contracted a serious bone disease, osteomyelitis. After 19 surgeries, he fully recovered, graduating from East Jordan High School. He was active in school music and drama programs and enjoyed being the projectionist at Temple Theater in East Jordan.

He married Margaret "Maggie" Mosher at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in 1948. Soon after they moved to Northville, Mich.

Mr. Hosler was employed for 30 years as a Senior Process Engineer at General Motors Hydromatic. He retired to Charlevoix in 1988 and was the plan reviewer for Charlevoix County Building Department for several years.

Mr. Hosler was loved and admired for his outstanding moral integrity. He will be dearly missed for his sensitive nature, wonderful outlook on life and sense of humor.

His family was the most important thing in life. He taught them many things including how to sail. They were a familiar sight in his sailboat, the Sea Hoss in the waters of Charlevoix. He participated in numerous Beaver Island races and the Duke Memorial Races.

Both his children and grandchildren remember fondly the bedtime stories he made up called "Curly Tails."

He is survived by his wife Maggie, of Charlevoix, and their children Mark, Nelda (Hosler) Morrison, Vena (Hosler) Norton, Gregg, Jeff and their families. Hosler has ten grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

Hosler is also survived by a sister, Bonnie (Hosler) Cook of Lansing and a cousin, Howard Hosler of East Jordan.

A private family memorial was given at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

The family requests donations to be made to the Charlevoix County Hospice, 601 Bridge Street, East Jordan, MI 49727.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Mark Hofstra
Associate Pastor
Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix

"Now the word of the LORD came to me saying, 'Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, and before you were born I consecrated you'" (Jeremiah 1:4 & 5).

Why is it most of us love babies so much ? Among children and the aged, a newborn baby widens eyes, brings business to a pause, causes curiosity and wonder. Why?

This past week, serving as chaplain-on-call, I was blessed to visit two newborns and their parents at the hospital. When each mother presented her newborn for my eyes to behold, there was a moment of silence and a still, small voice in my ear; the still, small voice of God saying, "I formed this baby in the mother's womb and I formed you." And my eyes widened, business paused and I was filled with curiosity and wonder.

This Christmas season, make sure you find a newborn baby to look at and remember Jesus with. Let your eyes be widened, your business paused and your curiosity and wonder sparked as God whispers in your ear, "Just as I formed this baby in the mother's womb, so I formed you and became a baby just as you were. I did it all so I could wrap my arms around you and love you as my very dear child."

State law meant to curb school crime

Charlevoix schools ready for networking with police, courts

By B. J. Hetler

Charlevoix is a step ahead of a law that requires public schools, law enforcement and prosecutors to meet by Jan. 2, to decide implementation of the Statewide School Safety Information Policy.

The school safety policy was developed by the state following enactment of Public Act 102, a part of the Revised School Code on July 6. It is part of the state's attempt to curb school crime and violence.

The act calls for a network of reporting of student misdemeanor and criminal behavior among the schools, law enforcement, the prosecutor's office, the courts, and the state. Some 22 different incidents, ranging from an armed student or arson to fights or possession of tobacco, must be reported, written up, and shared among the schools, these agencies, and the state.

Staff from Charlevoix schools met with other county school district staff, city and county law enforcement and the county prosecutor to discuss implementing the school safety plan. The meeting was held on Tuesday, Nov. 3, at Char-Em Intermediate School District in Charlevoix.

But Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent John Sturock said dialogue opened up with law enforcement months ago.

"We've been meeting on a regular basis for some time now," Sturock said. "We're doing much of this already."

The school district has implemented a networking among the community schools, courts, and law enforcement. But most agree the law is needed, especially in large, urban communities.

"It's a good law," prosecutor Mary Beth Kur said. "After Littleton, we had already been meeting with the schools and police. Juvenile court has a monthly dialogue with convicted kids only. Now, anyone who's been charged will be included.

"It's a good idea, because it's good for staff to have a heads-up and a heightened awareness," Kur said.

Kur cautioned that the downside of reporting students not convicted, but charged, was the tendency of people to pre-judge.

Sheriff George T. Lasater says the school safety information policy provides direction for both the schools and law enforcement on which criminal complaints to report and how to report them.

"The policy also provides a conduit for law enforcement to provide information to the schools for those students that may have violated the law outside of school," Lasater said. "The rapid and current exchange of information between law enforcement and the schools will allow school officials to observe and monitor those students which may have been involved in some type of assaultive behavior."

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson's experience when he was with the Grand Traverse County Sheriff's Department helps facilitate communication.

Halverson was the first law enforcement liaison between the sheriff's department and the schools in Traverse City. He was placed in the 2,000-student junior high school. At first he was given the cold shoulder by students and staff, Halverson said.

But he worked to develop relationships of trust with the staff and students.

"I worked with groups to solve problems," Halverson said. "I came to have a part in the educational community."

The Act's Statewide School Safety Information Policy encourages school districts to appoint a school resource officer. The school resource officer will keep a file of all incident reports or law enforcement records prepared. He or she may be a designated member of the school staff, school safety or security officer, or a law enforcement officer.

One criticism most people have about the law is that even though the state has made it clear what is to be reported, reporting is still somewhat arbitrary.

Some schools will be diligent about reporting, while others won't be, Kur said.

"It's ironic that the schools that are doing the job (reporting) will have higher stats and look bad," she said.

City responds to development plan lawsuit

By B. J. Hetler

The city filed its answer with the 33rd Circuit Court on Nov. 30, to a lawsuit filed against it by developers.

The city council approved a development plan in 1991 to build a 24-unit rent-subsidized apartment complex. It was approved under the zoning ordinance existing at that time.

But developers Robert Brooks and Scott Dietze did not proceed with construction. Now, eight years later they're ready, and are suing the city because it will not approve their development plan. The suit was filed on Oct. 25 in the 33rd Circuit Court.

Brooks and Dietze seek rezoning of their land at 1007 May St. from R-1, single-family residential, to R-4, planned residential.

But, subsequent to city approval in 1991, the city zoning ordinance was amended. Under Section 5.188 approval terminates within 12 months, unless a building permit is obtained for the project.

Brooks and Dietze had not obtained a permit, and recently submitted a new development plan, as required by the ordinance. But council determined it did not meet the new zoning ordinance and denied the plan.

Plaintiffs allege in their complaint that the section of the city's zoning ordinance that states that R-4 zoning reverts back to its original zoning, in this case R-1, if construction isn't commenced within a year, is unconstitutional.

The developers point out that the city's own attorney told council that it was his opinion that the section as currently written was invalid.

But city attorney, Jim Young, says his opinion was premised on the assumption that the rezoning of the property was treated as a traditional rezoning, and not as a planned unit development. The state allows cities to require reasonable conditions for planned unit developments.

Young said the city is authorized by the City and Village Zoning Act and by state law to make the provision in its ordinance.

"The City and Village Zoning Act does not address the conditional rezoning of property within a city," Young said. "However, the Home Rule Cities Act, ... grants to cities the authority to enact ordinances not in conflict with the constitution or general laws."

The provisions of the constitution and laws concerning cities are liberally construed in their favor, Young said.

Even if the R-4 zoning provisions are found unconstitutional by the court, Brooks and Dietze are asking for too much development for the size of the land, Young said.

"The City Master Plan provides that this area should be used for medium density development," Young said.

The Master Plan provides that medium density equates to approximately seven units per acre. The proposed development would result in a density of more than 10 units per acre.

The proposed 24-unit apartment complex would generate increased traffic of approximately 100 cars per day in a predominately residential neighborhood. The zoning on three sides of the developers' property is single family.

The May Street property owners have relied on the zoning reverting back to single family in the management of their property, Young said.

Brooks and Dietze now have several weeks to respond to the city.

A scheduling conference is set for 4:30 p.m. on Jan. 10 in Judge Richard Pajtas's courtroom.

Eye surgery now available at Charlevoix Area Hospital

Dr. Timothy S. Jarvi, an ophthalmologist in practice with Dr. Miles W. Trumble in Petoskey, is now performing surgeries of the eye at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Timothy Jarvi

Several days each month he is performing the following surgeries in Charlevoix: Cataract surgeries — "No stitch, no shot, no patch" method, he said — eyelid plastic surgery, glaucoma surgery, and cross-eyed corrective surgery. Jarvi is also available for neonatal exams, diabetic evaluations/treatments, and macular degeneration evaluation/treatments.

The surgical staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital received recent, specialized training to assist Jarvi in his surgeries, particularly cataract surgeries.

"This is the most advanced surgery a patient can get these days," Jarvi said.

Jarvi has been seeing patients in Petoskey for the past three years, and continues to see patients and treat them at Northern Michigan Hospital.

Jarvi completed his fellowship in Cornea/External Disease and Refractive Surgery at the Kresge Eye Institute in Detroit in 1997, his residency at Cook County Hospital in Chicago in 1996, and one year at St. John Hospital and Medical Center in Detroit. He received honors in ophthalmology while attending Wayne State University School of Medicine in Detroit and did his undergraduate studies at Kalamazoo College in Kalamazoo. He grew up in Twin Lake, Mich.

Jarvi and his wife, Pamela, have two daughters, and live in Petoskey.

Land owner withdraws rezoning request

By B. J. Hetler

A request for rezoning approximately 11 acres of land near Kmart and Stover Creek by land owner John Campbell was withdrawn at the Charlevoix township board meeting on Monday.

Campbell said he withdrew his request to rezone from commercial to multi-family housing because he knew the board was going to deny rezoning.

"The township board did not follow the recommendations for approval of the township planning commission and the county planning commission," Campbell said.

Township planners had voted three-to-two to recommend rezoning on Nov. 4. That recommendation was followed by a four-to-three vote by the county planners.

Working with developer, John Watson, Campbell said they changed their request for the housing project by asking to put 10.5 units per acre, rather than 15 units per acre. They also provided for a protective screen for Stover Creek in their plans.

But the area residents continued to voice strong opposition to the rezoning.

Plans were to build approximately 129 single-family residential units. Each unit was proposed to be about 1,100-1,200 square feet. Up to a maximum of eight units could have been contained in a single building.

The land contains a 100-foot railroad right-of-way that is zoned agriculture.

County Planning director Larry Sullivan said the portion zoned agriculture needs to be studied by the township board.

"People may have a problem with agriculture going to R-4," Sullivan said. "It would need a public hearing. The township should, no matter what, look at the railroad right-of-way to address agriculture zoning."

The housing development and Ferry Avenue access has been contested by many of the surrounding neighbors who have single-family homes.

Resident John Pidek spoke at one of the meetings on the rezoning issue.

"You're being asked to vote on an issue that would drastically change the character of the entire neighborhood," Pidek said. "The proposed change and the extensive development it would permit, would severely pollute our relatively quiet neighborhood with glaring lights and constant noise, not to mention the traffic of over 300 vehicles. This, on a street without sidewalks where children wait for school buses, or walk to Ferry Beach all summer.

"Come out and see our neighborhood to visualize the impact," he said.

Resident Dr. Edward Newcomb had spoken about the population numbers.

"Four hundred individuals could be in there (the development)," Newcomb said. "That increases the population by 38 percent."

Campbell said he is proceeding with a site plan for selling the land the way it is zoned, as commercial.

"We'll go ahead and use the direction we were given last night," Campbell said. "People want more urban sprawl."

Rayders hang on for first two victories; St. Ignace a big test

By Andy Sneddon

The Charlevoix High School boys' basketball team has followed a familiar script in its first two games this season.

The Rayders have seized double-digit leads in the first half, saw those leads disappear in the second half, then came back strong to win in a 73-68 season-opening victory over Petoskey, and a 73-62 win over Suttons Bay on Dec. 10.

"The thing I'm pleased about is that in both games, kids have seemed to pick it up (when they had to)," coach Keith Haske said. "When they were threatened, they seemed to be able to find something to go to at the end of the game.

"Adam Wood and Scott Parrish have kind of raised up and made some key shots at the end of both games."

Both Petoskey and Suttons Bay were good tests for the Rayders, yet the biggest early season test of all came Tuesday, when Charlevoix traveled to St. Ignace for a non-league contest.

The Saints, with five returning starters, are expected to be one of the best in Class C teams in the Upper Peninsula this season.

"Going on the road to St. Ignace will really let us know where we're at as far as being competitive," said Haske, who, in his third year at the helm of the Rayders, has never led his team to a victory at St. Ignace.

On Friday, Dec. 17, the Rayders play host to Lincoln-Alcona in a non-conference contest, then take a break for Christmas.

Haske, like every prep coach, said he views the break as a good opportunity for the Rayders to make adjustments.

"I see lots and lots of things that we need time to break down and work on," he said, pointing specifically to "Our execution in the half court.

"I thought we were impatient (in the first two games). I think we need to make an extra pass, get a little better look at the basket at times."

Against Suttons Bay, which featured a front line that included a 6-foot-7 center and a 6-4 forward, the Rayders led 46-30 at halftime before the Norsemen came back to briefly take the lead in the second half.

"We played real well ... just in the third quarter we shot 2-for-21 (from the field) and we had good looks, too," Haske said. "They had a 6-7 kid (Eric Voisin) who just got his hands up and stood his ground. He made us alter our shots."

The Rayders were outscored 18-6 in the third quarter, but came back to outscore the Norsemen, 21-14, in the final stanza and claim the victory.

Wood scored 17 points, Parrish had 14 and Sean Stockman added 12 to pace the Rayders. Stockman also had 10 rebounds, while Shay Hutchison had nine boards, six assists and five steals.

Voisin scored 12 points, grabbed 18 rebounds and made 10 blocks for Suttons Bay (0-2), while Tyler Sanborn and Matt Hinzmann also scored 12 points apiece.

The Rayders, Class C state semifinalists last spring, turned in a veteran-like first half then fought off Petoskey in the second half to claim the season-opener.

"To get that first one is always great, and any time you can beat a Petoskey team, you have to be pleased," Haske said after the game. "We are ecstatic."

The Rayders led by 15 points in the second quarter, but watched Petoskey come back to grab the lead in the third quarter.

"I thought our kids scraped and played hard for 16 minutes," Haske said. "Obviously, we need to do it for a whole game."

The game was tight throughout the second half, and the Rayders were clinging to a 67-66 advantage with 1:12 remaining. Wood, Parrish and Patrick Gowell knocked down two free throws apiece in the final 33 seconds to help the Rayders hold off the Northmen.

Stockman scored 19 points to lead Charlevoix, while Wood had 14, Parrish added 13 and Russ Ward came off the bench to add eight. Parrish and Andy Granath each had six rebounds, Wood and Gowell had five assists each, and Wood also picked up six steals.

The Rayder junior varsity team also stands 2-0 after posting a 74-64 victory over the Northmen, and a 66-53 win over Suttons Bay.

Against the Norsemen, Keith Daly paced the Rayders with 25 points.

Against Petoskey, Charlevoix trailed 31-30 at halftime, but seized a 55-49 advantage after three quarters. Jim Shephard scored 21 points, Daly had 18 and Ryan Rafacz 17 for the Rayders.

The Rayder freshmen fell to Petoskey, 66-40. Nate Teuscher and David Shearer scored 10 points each for Charlevoix.

After Christmas break, The Rayders jump right into the Lake Michigan Conference frying pan when they play at Harbor Springs, which also started the season 2-0, on Jan. 4. The Rams return all five starters from last year's team and are expected by most observers to be in the hunt — if not a front-runner — for the league title.

On Jan. 7, the Rayders return home to play host to rival East Jordan in another conference game.

Rayder wrestlers hosting tournament

There is some work remaining before the Charlevoix High School wrestling team can enjoy its Christmas break.

The Rayders will host the six-team Charlevoix Invitational on Saturday, Dec. 18 at the high school, then round out 1999 with a tri-meet at Mancelona on Wednesday, Dec. 22. Mio is the third team involved in that meet.

The six-team Charlevoix Invitational features a team format, with each team meeting the others in a dual-meet format. Wrestling begins at 10 a.m. and three mats will be set up in the high school gym to accommodate the matches.

The team trophy will be awarded to the school with the best won-loss record, while individual wrestlers will earn a medal for four victories on the day.

The Rayders take a 1-8 dual-meet record into the tournament after a 42-22 home loss to Sault Ste. Marie and a 60-14 road loss to Cheboygan last week.

Despite the team record, first-year Rayder coach Gary Probert said he is pleased with his wrestlers' progress.

"I'm very happy," he said. "We have nine matches under our belts already. The kids are having a good time. It's going very well in that respect.

"We had a lot of our other coaches from the middle school program and parents (at the Sault match) and we're getting the same comments from them that we've gotten from referees (and others), and that is that we may not be winning them all, but they're throwing moves, looking good, executing out on the mat. I'm very excited about that."

Junior Ryan Novotny and sophomore Jerry Zeitler have established themselves early on as Charlevoix's top wrestlers.

Zeitler, wrestling at 140 pounds, won two decisions last week. He defeated Sault's Brian Vogel, 21-13, and Cheboygan's Darren Lance, 11-6. Those two victories upped Zeitler's record to 9-0 on the season.

Novotny, who wrestles at 160, also won two matches last week, though he had to take the mat for only one. He pinned Sault's Jon Teneyck in 3 minutes, 44 seconds, and won by forfeit against Cheboygan. His season record stands at 8-1.

Below are the results from the Rayders' meets last week.

Volleyball team begins 1-5 at Roscommon Inv.

ROSCOMMON — Charlevoix opened the 1999-2000 volleyball season under first-year coach Carolyn Loper with a 1-5 performance at the Roscommon Invitational.

"It was a nice way to open the season," Loper said. "We had enough games where everybody got some playing time. I was pleased with that.

"For the opening tournament, I thought they did really, really well. They played better than what the end result was."

The Rayders opened the tourney with a split with Houghton Lake. The Bobcats won game one, 15-12, before the Rayders bounced back to take game two, 15-13. Charlevoix then fell to Benzie Central, 15-11, 15-12; and Grayling, 15-9, 15-4.

Loper said setters Amber Parsons and Kelly Dreyer played well, and Taya Drost and Beth Owens turned in good all-around performances.

"Both did really well on their spiking and their passing," Loper said.

Kate Madison led Charlevoix in serving and "played well on the front row, blocking," Loper said, while Taryn Drost and Crystal Casciani played well in the back row and turned in good serving performances.

The Charlevoix JV and freshman volleyball teams hosted an eight-team tournament on Saturday, with the Rayder JV team placing second.

Petoskey won the tournament, topping the Rayders, 15-3, 15-6 in the championship match.

The Rayders reached the final with a 15-12, 7-15, 15-13 victory over Boyne City in a semifinal match. The Rayders rallied from a 13-8 deficit in the third game against the Ramblers.

Charlevoix's top spikers were Natasha Kleiber and Krista Swenor, top server was Kleiber and top setters were Katie Swenor and Michelle Yaldo, coach Gregg Swanson said.

HOW TO KILL A BUSINESS
... in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.
8. Don't Advertise
Overlook the fact that advertising is an investment in selling ... not an expense.
9. Don't Advertise
Be sure not to provide an adequate advertising budget for your business.
10. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have to keep reminding your established customers that you appreciate their business.

Give kids a safe harbor this winter

A crisp winter day quickly turned tragic for 5-year-old Jonathan L'Esperance when he ventured out onto a frozen pond near his house in East Wareham, Mass.

Jonathan had been warned to stay away from the ice-covered pond, but the thought of sliding across was simply too inviting. He fell through the ice into the pond and was submerged for about 25 minutes before his father found him.

Jonathan survived his fall into icy waters, but his recovery has been long and arduous. His brain was deprived of oxygen for several minutes and, as a result, he suffered brain damage. He spent seven months in the hospital, during which time he slowly emerged from a coma. He has endured intense rehabilitation and had to relearn many skills, including walking and talking.

"Ice-covered ponds and lakes pose a huge risk to children during winter, but there are also many other dangers to consider as temperatures drop," says Bert Noetestine of the Northwest Michigan Safe Kids Chapter. "Parents and caregivers should watch kids closely and limit outdoor playtime when temperatures are frigid, no matter how much kids may protest. Making sure children dress appropriately for the weather is also crucial."

The Northwest Michigan Safe Kids Chapter recommends the following suggestions to help keep your children safe:

Winter Drowning

Most parents associate drowning with summer months, but the increased use of hot tubs and whirlpools as well as the danger of hidden bodies of water or weak ice make winter drowning a risk as well. To minimize drowning dangers, parents and caregivers should:

- Supervise children in or near a pool, hot tub or any body of water.

- Beware of children overheating in hot tubs and whirlpools.

- Make sure pools and spas are secure. If you have a pool or spa, install four sided isolation fencing that is at least five feet high. The fence should have a self-closing and self-latching gate. Do not use the exterior of the house as one side of the fence.

- Allow children to skate only on ponds or lakes that have been approved for skating.

Frostbite

Exposure to cold without adequate protection can result in frostbite. Parents can protect their children by following these precautions:

- Dress children warmly. Several thin layers will help keep children dry as well as warm. Clothing should consist of thermal long johns, turtlenecks, one or two shirts, pants, sweater, coat, warm socks, boots, gloves or mittens, and a hat.

Christmas Caroling

No injuries in small explosion

The Charlevoix Fire Department responded to a small gas explosion and fire that occurred on Thursday, Dec. 9, at Cedar Ridge Recycling and Disposal Facility on Saunders Road in Eveline Township.

Firefighter Joe Schwartzfisher said the trucks were dispatched at 10:49 a.m., and they cleared the scene at 11:37 a.m. No injuries were reported.

Propane gas had built up in a crawl space under a modular home used as an office on the property. When a pressure switch for a water pump came on it created a spark, causing the explosion.

The force of the explosion moved the frame of the house off of its foundation, Schwartzfisher said.

Damages have not been determined.

Protect children against potentially brutal winter weather

PROTECT

- Set reasonable time limits on outdoor play. Call children in periodically to warm up with drinks such as hot chocolate.

- When possible, avoid taking infants outdoors when it is colder than 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Infants lose body heat quickly.

If a child complains of numbness or pain in the fingers, toes, nose, cheeks or ear while playing in the snow, or if his skin is blistered, hard to the touch or glossy, be alerted to the possibility of frostbite and take the following steps:

- Take the child indoors.
- Call a doctor.
- Tell the child to wiggle the affected body part or parts to increase blood supply to that area.
- Warm the frozen part or parts against the body. Hold fingers to the chest, for example.
- Immerse frozen part or parts in warm — not hot — water. Frozen tissue is fragile and can be damaged easily. Avoid warming with high heat from radiators, fireplaces or stoves, and avoid rubbing or breaking blisters.

Pedestrian Safety

- Slippery driveways and sidewalks can be particularly hazardous in the winter. Keep them well shoveled, and apply material such as rock salt or sand to improve traction.
- Make sure that children under age 10 do not cross streets alone, and make sure children wear appropriate shoes and brightly colored (not white) clothing while walking in snowy conditions. Use retroreflective clothing or stickers for maximum protection, especially at dawn and dusk.

Winter Sports and Activities

Parents and caregivers should inspect equipment and the environment for possible hazards before children engage in winter activities such as sledding, ice skating and skiing. Remind children not to push, shove or roughhouse while engaging in sports, and tell them always to wait their turn.

• Ice Skating

In 1997, more than 12,500 children ages 5-14 were treated in emergency rooms for injuries related to ice skating. But with extra care, even children as young as age 4, as long as they are steady walkers, can enjoy the sport. Allow children to skate only on approved surfaces. Check for signs posted by local police or recreation departments, or call your local police department to find out which areas have been approved. Children should be taught to:

- Skate in the same direction as the crowd.
- Avoid darting across the ice.
- Never skate alone.
- Never go out on ice that an adult has not approved.
- Throw away chewing gum or candy before skating onto the ice.

If a child falls through the ice, he should stretch his arms over the ice and kick as if swimming, in an attempt to crawl back onto the solid ice.

• Sledding

More than 14,500 children ages 5-14 were treated in emergency rooms in 1997 for injuries related to sledding. Parents and caregivers should remember the following tips:

- Make sure terrain is free of obstacles and far from traffic. Children should sled on packed snow (not ice) that is free of debris. Check carefully for snow-covered hazards such as rocks, tree limbs and stumps that could endanger sledders or skiers.
- Use equipment that is sturdy and safely constructed. Avoid equipment with sharp and jagged edges.
- Look for energy absorbing pads on sled seats.
- Examine handholds on sleds to be sure they are secure.
- Ensure sleds and toboggans have easy steering, non-jamming devices.

Parents should remind children to:

- Sled only on terrain that is free of obstacles.
- Make sure the bottom of the slope is far from streets and traffic.
- Avoid lying flat on the sled while riding downhill. Always sit up with feet forward; lying flat increases the chance of head and abdominal injuries.

• Snow Skiing and Snowboarding

In 1997, more than 13,500 children ages 5-14 visited emergency rooms for snow skiing-related injuries and more than 9,000 children were treated for snowboarding-related injuries. But with a few safety precautions, skiing and snowboarding are sports that even young children can enjoy. Parents should make sure children follow these suggested precautions:

- Enroll in at least one skiing/snowboarding lesson to start off on the right track.
- Use caution when entering and exiting the ski lift.
- Do not ski out of control or go too fast.
- Be aware of other people on the slope.
- Wear a ski helmet and eye protection.
- Wear sun protection even on cloudy days.

Citizen committee's drive for new high school site continues

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Related story on page 11

The petition drive by the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools will probably continue for another week.

The committee is circulating the petitions to obtain registered voters' signatures stating they want the school board to consider a site for the new high school closer to town.

The site chosen by the board is on Marion Center Road, between Clark and Veenstra, approximately 2.7 miles from the city.

Dr. Jeffrey Porter is spokesman for the committee and part of the petition drive.

"It's going fine," Porter said of the petition drive. "I'm guessing we have around 1,000 signatures right now."

The petition states: "We, the undersigned, registered and qualified voters of the Charlevoix Public School District, in the county of Charlevoix, and the State of Michigan, reject the selection of the Marion Center Rd./Veenstra Rd. site for the new high school and prefer a site nearer to the center of town."

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent John Sturock takes issue with the petition drive.

"If they're obtaining signatures of people who didn't vote in the election, who didn't go to the polls, are those people entitled to sign the petition? Is that fair?" Sturock said.

Porter and others have been going door-to-door circulating the petitions. The number of people signing is approximately four out of five, he said.

But on a blustery winter's evening in one of life's little ironies, the door of one of the homes Porter knocked on, petition in hand, was opened by Sturock.

"I guess you're probably not going to want to sign this," Porter said.

"No," Sturock said. "I don't think I'll be signing that today."

The committee's goal is to obtain 2,000 signatures of registered voters. The board may take the petitions more seriously than the survey cards previously sent out, Porter said. The survey cards asked residents the same type of question, and the committee says of those cards returned, four-to-one wanted a site closer to town.

"We want to give the school board every chance possible to see that we're serious," he said.

The committee has four sites it wants the board to consider for the new high school:

- Working with the high school's current location
- The Erber property on Waller Road
- The Hoffman property on U.S. 31 and Waller Roads
- A south side site not yet disclosed.

The committee has obtained a legal opinion from the law firm of Dyke-

A proposed new snowmobile ordinance was discussed by city council at Monday night's meeting. A public hearing will be held on Jan. 3.

Some changes to the current ordinance would open up more routes in the city. No operation of snowmobiles would be allowed on any street, including designated streets from 11 p.m. - 7 a.m.

Special events will need to obtain approval from city council and a permit must be obtained. After obtaining a permit, snowmobiles would then be allowed on any street that the council designated for the special event.

Another provision of the proposed ordinance is allowing snowmobiles to park in designated areas from Nov. 1 through April 1.

Residents may obtain a copy of the proposed ordinance at city hall.

Parking ordinance in effect until April for snow removal

Parking overnight on the street in Charlevoix could cost you a little cash this winter.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said since Dec. 1 drivers have been prohibited from parking their vehicles on city streets between 2 and 6 a.m.

If your vehicle is parked on the street during this period, you could be risking a $10 fine and — in a few cases — having your vehicle towed by the police.

People need to keep their vehicles off the streets in order to make it easier for city crews to plow the streets in the winter, Halverson said. In most cases a person that violates this ordinance will get a fine, but if their vehicle is creating an "immediate difficulty" for the plows, the vehicle may be towed.

This ordinance will be in effect until April 1.

New Charlevoix Courier editor ready to go

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Jeremy McBain

The new editor of the Charlevoix Courier plans to give readers information that is helpful and entertaining to them.

"I want to create a newspaper the community can be proud of," Jeremy McBain said. "So that when someone asks them what is the Charlevoix Courier, they can say 'That's our paper.'"

One of McBain's goals for the newspaper is to have news the community has not seen before.

"I want people to put the paper down and say, 'I learned something,' or 'I didn't know that.'"

Charlevoix is a new home for McBain. He lived most recently in Novi, but in his early years he lived in Gladwin.

"Charlevoix reminds me of the town I grew up in," McBain said. "It's a scenic version of Gladwin. There are people from all walks of life — it's a wonderful portrait of small-town America."

McBain was a staff writer for the Novi News, a metro Detroit weekly newspaper that is part of the HomeTown Newspaper chain. He covered crime, municipal government, the courts, special investigations, business, schools and city planning.

Development is a high-profile issue in Novi, McBain said. Novi is one of the fastest-growing communities in the state.

As a reporter there, he said he had to be on top of things. Zoning, environmental issues and planning as it relates to what the community wants were high on the list of news stories.

Investigative stories are McBain's specialty. "I have lots of fun doing them. I'm proficient in the Freedom of Information Act and Open Meetings Act and when I'm investigating a story, I never give up."

A favorite investigative story was one on the city of Novi dumping raw sewage near a river. McBain and another reporter went to the site and took samples of the water. The test found e. coli bacteria 860 times above the state standard. The story resulted in the suspension of a city official.

McBain holds a bachelor of science degree in journalism from Central Michigan University. He was the journalism graduate of the year in 1998. He served as president of the college chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists. He is the recipient of awards from the Detroit Press Association, as well as other awards from the Society of Professional Journalists. McBain worked for the college newspaper, CM Life, where he was a reporter, columnist and managing editor.

McBain enjoys weekly newspapers and is glad to be at the Charlevoix Courier.

"I think the staff knows the community better than a large daily," he said. "Weeklies are more a part of the community."

The Charlevoix Courier can be reached by calling 547-6558 or by email at charlevoixcourier@charlevoix-courier.com.

Try a historical party this New Year's Eve

EDITORIAL

What better way to bring in the new year and celebrate the end of a century than by supporting the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Historical society volunteers have been busy planning this century's New Year's party with a gala to benefit the Depot Museum, the city's only national historic site.

The depot, located on Lake Charlevoix near the Chicago Club, has played an important role in our community's history and remains a local treasure.

The 107-year-old rail station helped change the character of Charlevoix tourism with visitors switching to train transportation instead of coming by steamboat or stagecoach from either Petoskey or Boyne Falls — which had the closest rail service.

When the rail service arrived, people came from Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Grand Rapids and from all over the Midwest.

In 1990, the C&WM Railroad merged with the Pere Marquette Railroad and created more opportunities with the Resort Special — an overnight train originating in Detroit, Toledo and Chicago.

Passenger service continued in one fashion or another until 1962.

Later, the depot became home of the Charlevoix Yacht Club until 1992, when it became property of the Charlevoix Historical Society. The club is anxious to keep the building in good shape and wants to replace its roof.

Ticket sales for its New Year's Eve celebration will go toward the repair of the roof.

The depot will be decorated with old railroad photos on the wall, while other Christmas decorations will deck the hall, filled with heavy hors d'oeuvres and plenty of sweets. There will be a cash bar and complimentary champagne will flow at midnight.

Party-goers will also be treated to a private showing of a first-run movie at Charlevoix's Cinema III.

This is an event to remember and one that will help many future generations appreciate the events of the past in Charlevoix. You should be there.

For tickets or more information, call Mike Bergeon at 547-2742.

School site may be wrong

Edith Gilbert

There's only one subject to write about this week, because there is only one topic that people are talking about. Wherever I go people are for or against the chosen high school site on Marion Center Road.

Where is Marion Center Road? It winds south through the Belvedere Golf Club on the way to Sue Bolt's studio. The proposed site lies in the middle of a corn field and has no sewers, electricity, water, natural gas or sidewalks. It is not serviced by the Charlevoix Police Department;, instead the area is served by the Sheriff's Department, that claims it is short-staffed. Firearm hunting, according to law is allowed within 450 feet of the school building.

The heart of the issue lies in the fact that the school board's chosen site was not mentioned on the ballot. Therefore many people — like myself — voted "yes," erroneously believing that the distant Marion Center Road site was merely a recommendation. Also, a number of voters of absentee ballots were not even aware that this was the chosen site as the school board claims and "a done deal." At the only Community Forum open meeting, an in-town site was overwhelmingly endorsed by the public. Why then, did the site committee not check desirable and available in-town locations more carefully?

The number one choice in the opinion of many people that I have talked to is to build the high school on the present site. The present high school could keep functioning while building on the extended property. Additional property could be purchased on Bridge Street to open up a full view of the new, attractive, multi-storied building. A school should try to be the focal point of the community to be used by young and old alike. In addition, the honored name Kipke Field could be preserved.

With the exception of a few neighbors, the Erber property on Waller Road near the township hall on the north side originally was the number one choice of the public forum. Still, the school board did not make an offer on these 26.3 acres, suitable as well for a two-story facility. Desirably located near a fire station, the pool, tennis courts, ski hill and other recreational facilities, it is accessible by bicycle. It also has sewers, electricity and natural gas.

Another possible site is the Hoffman property, a 55-acre triangle bordered by US 31, Waller Road and Martin Road. It has natural gas and water. True some of the property is wetlands; still there is sufficient dry property to build a school. It is accessible by bicycle and near a fire station. The school board did not even approach the realtor or owner of this property in order to carefully check it out. Recently an anonymous donor has pledged $500,000 for the purchase of this land, valued at $1,000,000. Isn't this worth looking into more thoroughly?

Finally, the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools is pursuing an additional site on the south side.

True, the school board's selection committee evaluated numerous properties out in the country, but they flunked the test when it came to properly evaluating closer to town or multi-storied buildings.

I am opposed to the Marion Road selection not only because I have two grandchildren in the Charlevoix School System, but because I believe that when all the facts are known, many people will agree that the school board should reconsider their hard-nosed stance, sit down with the public and discuss the numerous advantages of building a multi-storied building in town.

Letters to the editor

School board should listen to Committee

Editor:

We are proud to have been part of the Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools. Democracy is rooted in participation by informed and involved citizens.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools always supported the passage of the millage, the hard work of the board and the need for new schools. The issue was location.

Location was not on the ballot. The Charlevoix School Board, as elected representatives of the citizens of the district, has the responsibility to find the most suitable school site with the funds entrusted to them. All good businesses must constantly be alerted to new developments and information. GM could not afford to stick to an outdated decision in light of new facts, neither can the school board.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools presented the Charlevoix School Board with new information.

1) The third site pick of the Charlevoix School Board is now available for half the original price. This site had been eliminated, in part, because of cost.

2) A site that had been identified by the board as being a priority site, but had been purchased, is once again available.

3) A very large portion of the community opposes the Charlevoix School Board's site on Marion Center Road and still supports neighborhood schools.

The Charlevoix School Board has made the decision that these are not compelling reasons to review the site choice.

The Committee Promoting Neighborhood Schools worked to keep proposals and recommendations factual and issue focused, to center on principles rather than on personalities. Democracy is time-consuming and often ungainly. It could well be that the most important education we are giving our children today is the lesson of how we as a community handle difficult issues. It is our responsibility to model intelligence, courtesy and respect for each other and for the democratic process.

School board too stubborn

Editor:

For many weeks, and with considerable interest, I have watched and listened to the various points of view concerning the many millions of dollars of the new bond issue for a new high school recently voted on by the voters. Interesting in and of itself, since it is the only school bond issue of which I am aware in the state which has passed in recent memory. This speaks volumes concerning the attitude of everyone in Charlevoix about education and its importance at the beginning of the "information age." The ensuing argument about location for the new school is of equal or even greater importance.

All that is being said about the distance, the utilities, road, the community use of education buildings is true.

To the members of the school board: your stubbornness is astounding, you have only a 100 vote margin on the money, and it's not your money. What if the citizenry decides to mount a recall, or a revote and rescind your bond issue or put you all out of office and fire the newly minted superintendent? You may or may not like Dr. Porter, or Ms. Anderson, you may prefer not to admit that your choice is not the choice of much of your constituency. What is important is to choose the right place, the right building, the right "style" if you will, which will be the largest benefit to everyone in Charlevoix.

I travel all over Southern Michigan on a daily basis. I see schools in outlying areas which are empty at 3:30 p.m. and I see schools in towns and very near towns which are busy from early morning until late evening. Perhaps it would behoove you, board members, to visit not only schools which suit your point, but also schools which lie very near or within city boundaries.

At the moment, we are divided in our residence; we are only able to spend about half or a bit less of our time in Charlevoix, and we plan to change our voting registration. Had we been registered for this vote, I would have voted "no" on that huge bond without knowing exactly where it would be spent. If that particular land had been part of the deal, distance alone would have gotten a "no" vote from me. Then it would have been a 99 vote win.

Adults' behavior appalling to student

Editor:

I am writing in regards to the Charlevoix School Board meeting that took place Dec. 13.

I am in the eighth grade at Charlevoix Middle School. I would love to have a new high school built as soon as possible. I am proud to be a citizen of Charlevoix and I am proud of all the work the Charlevoix School Board did to pass the election.

I think that most everyone at the meeting has the best of intentions and they really care about the students of Charlevoix. However, I was absolutely appalled at the rude behavior of some adults at the meeting. They were incredibly rude and disrespectful to some people that spoke.

Adults are constantly preaching about how kids these days are so rude and how in their day, kids had respect. I think that the students at the meeting showed much more appropriate manners than some adults. If you want kids to be polite, it would be helpful if adults could set a good example for us.

Charlevoix farmers participate in conference

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Four area residents were among the many Michigan farmers who participated in the Michigan Farm Bureau's annual meeting in Traverse City recently.

Jim Hisey, Tim Matchett, Peter Vellenga, and Ardeth Wieland represented Charlevoix county at the 80th annual meeting held at the Grand Traverse Resort on Nov. 30 - Dec. 3.

"The Farm Bureau operation is a powerhouse operation," Jim Hisey said. The conference attended by 1,600 farmers was very well organized, he said.

Charlevoix county received six gold and three silver star awards for work in various program areas. Also awarded was a diamond award for Image 2000, a special recognition for facilities and staff.

Delegates representing each county discussed and voted on more than 100 policy resolutions. The policies approved by the delegates will guide activities and serve as goals for Michigan Farm Bureau.

One of the policy issues was an amendment to the Right-to-Farm Act. The amendment, known as Senate Bill 205, creates a uniform state-wide set of guidelines for farming. It was prompted by townships passing ordinances restricting farming. The bill has passed the state Senate and House. It is in front of the governor, who is expected to sign it into law.

Some of the township ordinances are designed to either drive family farmers out of business, or prevent them from expanding, Michigan Farm Bureau legislative counsel Tim Goodrich said.

Charlevoix County Farm Bureau President Tim Matchett agrees.

"It's getting more and more burdensome as townships pass ordinances restricting farmers," Matchett said. "Farming economics are really tight right now. When one farm in one township could farm according to the Michigan Right-to-Farm Act regulations, and another farm

Sheriff offers suggestions to stay safe this New Year's

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office in conjunction with the Charlevoix County Emergency Services Office have compiled some helpful information to aid the Citizens of Charlevoix County as we enter the new millennium.

The Sheriff's department stressed it is not their intent to alarm residents, but it feels it would be beneficial to stock up on the basic needs in case a situation does occur.

The following are some suggestions residents can use in the event their is a service disruption by local utilities or merchants:

•Food
Stock enough food of a non-perishable nature that is also easy to prepare. Take consideration of how you are going to heat your food. A fireplace, wood stove, gas or charcoal grill and a camp stove will suffice. Keep in mind that you will need a sufficient supply of fuel for these heat sources.

•Water
The loss of electricity in most cases means the loss of water. The rule of thumb to follow is one gallon of drinking water for each person per day. Additional water should be stored for basic hygiene needs.

•News/updates
Each home and business should have an AM/FM radio powered by batteries in the event of the loss of electrical power.

•Lighting
Every home should have a minimum of two flashlights with extra batteries, candles and matches. A propane camp lantern is also helpful to have. Remember to use caution with both candles and camp lanterns due to the fire hazard they present.

•Vehicles
Fill up the gas tanks in all of your vehicles. If you have to leave the area, a full tank of gas should take you anywhere in the state.

•Pets/farm animals
The basic needs of animals is the same as it is for humans.

The Sheriff's Department and the county emergency services agency has established several sites as emergency shelters. They are, East Jordan Public Schools, Charlevoix Elementary School, Northwest Academy in Charlevoix, Charlevoix City Hall, the City Hall for Boyne City, East Jordan City Hall, East Jordan Civic Center, St. James Township Hall, Charlevoix Township Hall, Hayes Township Hall, Chandler Township Hall, Boyne Valley Township Hall, Norwood Township Hall, Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Bay Shore man commits suicide following stand-off

A 31-year-old Bay Shore man died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound around 8 p.m. Dec. 14 at Northern Michigan Hospital.

The man , Jason Frances Helveston, shot himself following a two hour stand-off with law enforcement officials at his Bay Shore home.

Charlevoix County Sheriff responded to the man's home after his wife called to report the man had barricaded himself in his home with several high powered rifles, threatening to shoot himself.

The immediately surrounding area was evacuated as Sheriff George Lasater and Detective Sgt. Michael Wheat tried to calm the man down and talked with him through a broken window. Lasater said the man was drinking and had a gun.

During the conversation with Lasater and Wheat, Helveston placed the gun to his abdomen and shot himself.

He was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey by Life Link Ambulance, where he later died in surgery.

High school band member joins Traverse City orchestra

By B.J. HETLER
Staff Writer

A Charlevoix High School sophomore who plays the flute in the school band is now a member of the Traverse City Youth Orchestra and she credits the encouragement of a friend.

Marcy Bennett was recruited by her friend and fellow musician, Laura Potter, who began with the Traverse City Youth Orchestra in January 1998, when the orchestra was first organized. Potter plays the violin and is also a sophomore at Charlevoix High School. She has played the violin for more than seven years.

"At first they (the orchestra) had only the strings," Potter said. "But when they added the winds, I wanted her to join the orchestra so we could be in it together."

Bennett said the audition was stressful, but the orchestra's director, Dave Holland, was very understanding.

"He understands how you're nervous," Bennett said. "I was a little nervous, but I played a piece I'd played many times before." She has played for flute for approximately five years.

The audition was held in November. Applicants were required to play a solo, sight-read and play the scales.

Bennett and Potter both say they practice about an hour every day. Their interest in music began at an early age.

"My mom played the flute," Bennett said. "When I was little I would go over to the cabinet where she kept it every day and ask if we could get it out."

Both students love playing. "Playing relaxes me," Bennett said.

Potter says playing is a comfort to her.

"If I'm in a bad mood, I go up and play the violin," Potter said. "I get encouraged to try other things. It feels good to play."

The 80-member Traverse City Youth Orchestra begins rehearsals in January every Saturday. It will perform throughout the spring.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By PASTOR LOWELL ANDERSON
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Jesus is in competition with Christmas. The oft quoted phrase, "Jesus is the reason for the season" is evidence that Jesus is in competition with Christmas, that has come to be the reason for the season other than Jesus Christ.

Christmas competition number one. Christmas is a festival of lights, as in most other religions. the Hindu celebrate a holiday associated with lights called "Divali." The Jewish religion celebrates Chanukah, which is also a festival of lights. It seems that Christmas is fast becoming just a tie to enjoy lights. We do it in many ways, on trees, houses, shops, city squares — some even use luminaries (brown paper sacks with a candle inside lining a driveway or sidewalk.) But is that the meaning of Christmas — the beauty of lighted decorations?

Christmas competition number two. Christmas is an opportunity to express love through the giving of gifts. For many people there would be no Christmas if there was no exchange of gifts. But, if we get this idea from the Three Wise Men who brought their gifts to the newborn Christ-child, why is it we give gifts to each other and not to Him? Also, why do we do this only at Christmas? Isn't gift-giving and self-giving a regular feature of all loving relationships? And why all the attention to toys? Is the meaning of Christmas, dolls, trucks, ice skates, video games and the like?

Christmas competition number three. Christmas is marked by family gatherings and lots of food. Family members who sometimes don't have much time for each other all year long suddenly feel a need to gather at the parent's home or the home of another family member. But if family is the reason for the season, then what about those who are alienated from their families, or whose families are far away or no longer living? Closely related to Christmas is a celebration of children — but what if you have none or have bad memories of your own?

Christmas competition number four. For some, Christmas is nothing more than their way of celebrating the winter solstice — a celebration of the turn of the season. Patterned after the old Roman holiday, Saturnalia, it provides a break for rest, recreation and celebration during the darkest days of the year.

But none of the things that stand in competition to the real reason for the season can satisfy the deep spiritual longings of the human heart. Lights, gifts, family, winter — none of them represent the true meaning of Christmas. There is only one reason — Jesus is the reason for the season.

Interestingly, the fourth Gospel in the New Testament, the Gospel of John, does not record for us the events that surround Jesus' birth like the other Gospels. John doesn't make any reference to the visit of angels, wisemen, shepherds, the baby in the manager. John probes the deep meaning and purpose of Christ's coming when he says, "The Word became flesh and lived for a while among us. We have seen His glory, the glory of the one and only Son, who came from the Father, full of grace and truth." (John 1:14) But John also writes this sad commentary on the people of that time, "He was in the world, and though the world was made through Him, the world did not recognize Him. He came to His own, but His own did not receive Him." (John 1:10 and 1:11) Sadly, many people today are like some of the people who were present that first Christmas — the true meaning escaped their attention and understanding.

Fortunately, John gives us this good news, "Yet to all who received Him, to those who believed in His name, He gave the right to become children of God." (John 1:12) Those who truly know that Jesus is the reason for the season are those who have received Him and have become children of God.

School officials speak out on Marion site

Some community members are not in agreement with the site selected for the new high school, and want the board to consider alternative sites.

But Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent John Sturock and school board president Allen Telgenhof, along with the other board members, stand firm with the decision made.

An $18.8 million bond issue election on October 11 voted in renovations of the elementary school, renovations of the current high school for grades five through eight, and the building of a new high school on a new site.

A site selection committee composed of three board members and Sturock researched nine sites and evaluated five of them according to set criteria for the new high school. The site selection committee chose 74-acres of land on Marion Center Road, between Clark and Veenstra roads as the best site.

To address the concerns of those community members in disagreement with the chosen site, Sturock and Telgenhof met with the Charlevoix Courier on Friday, Dec. 17. Highlights of that conversation appear below in a question-and-answer format.

There is a petition drive right now, if it gets a significant number of signatures will that carry any weight with the Charlevoix School Board?

School Board President Allen Telgenhoff: I guess I'll answer that. First, all I can do is give you my opinion. All I can give you is my sense of the board. Obviously, I have heard from all the board members and I have a decent idea where they stand. I think that the petition that is being circulated, as it is worded, doesn't help the board at all in the decision making process. When I met with that committee, what I had indicated to them about what they are doing is still true, which is they are against what we are doing, they are against the site we have selected. What this petition is asking is, "are you against that site and for another site?" That doesn't help us at all. There may be 10 sites out there that you could put a school on and there may be 10 percent of the people in Charlevoix for each one of these sites.

Would it help if they named one particular site and named that site on the petition?

Telgenhoff: Sure and frankly if they did that they would lose much of their support. You could hear it from the comments of the board meeting (Dec. 13), you have a group of people that don't want urban sprawl, you have a group of people who are concerned about safety, you have a large group of people who don't want to pay more in taxes —and that was discussed Monday night which was not even part of this discussion because the taxes have been approved. So we as board members if they bring back 2,000 signatures on this petition, it won't help me at all. If they brought back a petition saying, "Site A is better and here is why it is better" and that was signed by a number of people and the people were then educated —which is what the (citizen's) committee says it is for — then maybe that would have some relevance for us.

Why was the Marion Center Road site picked?

Charlevoix Superintendent John Sturock: We went through an extensive process that went back to just before this time last year. As we went through this process the board selected a steering committee to look at those issues because what came out of a March 3rd forum were a lot of issues and many people said yes we prefer an in-town site. But if you read more into that report of that March 3 forum they also said they want a long term solution. The board then took that information and charged the steering committee with three things; we need to take a look at the long term, we need to look at the costs, we need to look at renovating the schools, build a middle school or build a new high school and move the middle school to the existing high school. The steering committee began work and took it very seriously. We met four or five hours every night. When we first started out I thought there was no way we could come to a consensus. But, it became apparent that the issue that was going to solve our problems was the high school and (the steering committee) reached a 100 percent consensus on it. The property issue came up in that committee. I said that is not the function of that committee, we can't have 26 people out there negotiating for property. So what they decided to do was to come up with a set of criteria to filter any property we have through that criteria and said if the board would do that then they would be happy. We looked in town, we looked out of town, we advertised in the paper, we advertised in the bulletin, if you have property that you would consider selling to the school please contact me. I had people do that. We even looked at some of the very pieces (the citizen's committee is) talking about.

Telgenhoff: As silly as it may sound we also drove around in our cars and just looked. Where can we find a site big enough, in town, to put this school. In the early stages we had a realtor helping us approaching people saying would you be willing to sell your property to the school. It wasn't that we were waiting for people to come to us, we went to them.

We've gotten off track, what I want to know is what are the benefits to Marion Center Road?

Telgenhoff: When we finally got to that criteria, the first thing that these other sites and all the sites that I have heard this committee bring up doesn't address the long-range plans for the school district and that is something that was on the criteria. We needed enough land, you've heard this constant struggle the school board has had here with property. Property is not getting any cheaper and it is not getting any closer to town and so the facilities committee charged our site selection committee with keeping that in mind — long range planning. Maybe you can stick a school on 20 acres, but maybe that is not wise long range so that was one factor, when you weigh it against these properties they are talking about now that weighs heavily in a 74-acre-site.

What do you plan to do with a 74 acre site? Put a middle school on it and a high school?

Telgenhoff: We don't plan to do anything with it, I guess that is the short answer. That is going to happen hopefully when my grandson is president of the school boards. That is something that I think this board shouldn't be concerned with now.

There is going to be 30 acres out there that future board can do with what they see fit. I've heard this conspiracy theory that eventually we will move all the schools out of town, well that is just pure foolishness.

Sturock: What a site like Marion Center does is it provides flexibility. The other part is we were trying to solve a place that would provide for our athletic fields. Right now our kids after school have to go to Shanahan Fields or baseball diamonds. If our practice fields are somewhere else our kids after school are all over this town. We would like to see kids after school walk out and be able to take part in their athletic practices right by the school. The (Marion Center Road property) facilitates that very nicely.

Telgenhoff: Another obvious one is the price of the property, I'm not ashamed to say that. We met with the (citizen's) committee the other day and they told us price shouldn't have been the consideration. Price needs to be the consideration when it's not my money its not (Sturock's) money it's the taxpayers money and we felt we needed to be responsible with the money. Frankly, some of the properties we were talking about wouldn't fit within the $1.6 million budget.

Will this property fit in the budget?

Telgenhoff: Absolutely.

You've got a former Road Commissioner saying (Marion Center) is a dangerous road, that

'Tis the season for traditions and wishes

By GINGER WINTER
Special to the Courier

It's that time of the year when cherished holiday traditions mark the season of giving.

Below, a small parade of Charlevoix residents and visitors from all ages and professions share their personal holiday customs. They also share a special wish for Charlevoix, their families, or for themselves in the new millennium.

Barbara and Bruce MacArthur, Charlevoix benefactors

Family traditions: For 44 years, Barbara MacArthur has written a 'round robin' letter for friends at Christmas time. Called "MacArthur's Yearly Catch-all," the newsletter also contains her hope for world peace.

Wish for Charlevoix in the new millennium: "We wish Charlevoix to retain its image as a small, beautiful and friendly little town where people come to, so they can escape the confusion, clutter and congestion of many big cities and instead enjoy nature and serenity. To this end, we wish that Charlevoix will have green space in and around the city. Wouldn't it be nice to be able to stroll through some woods on a snowy evening?"

Joanne Curtis, financial advisor at T.G. Bickersteth and Associates and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful president

Family traditions: Curtis likes to bake and cook traditional family recipes. A holiday favorite is beef stroganoff. "I make everything from scratch because that's what comes from the heart."

Wish for Charlevoix in the new millennium: "It's really difficult to narrow to one wish, but I'd say mutual respect among all people."

Bill Jackson, Charlevoix Area Hospital president

Family traditions: Jackson says he enjoys quiet family gatherings. "We meet in Chesaning and stay at a bed and breakfast and open gifts with my wife's family."

Wish for Charlevoix in the new millennium: "Continued good health and prosperity for the community."

Steve Bennett, Northwest Academy administrator and Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau president

Family traditions: Besides decorating their home, the MacDougal House bed and breakfast with all the white lights, Bennett and his family trek through the woods and over the snow to get their tree at a farm near Ellsworth. They also donate items to deserving families and sponsor various charity dinners.

Wish for Charlevoix in the new millennium: "That Charlevoix maintains its uniqueness with the charm and caring and personal atmosphere."

Tim Parker, Harbor Industries director of manufacturing resources

Family traditions: The Parkers spend Christmas Eve at home in Grand Haven. Christmas dinners are spent at his wife's parent's home, also in Grand Haven.

Wish for Charlevoix in the new millennium: "To continue to be one of the premier vacation and summertime locations and to develop a solid industrial community while keeping the town quaint." To that he adds, "and for Harbor Industries to continue to have an active role in the community."

Jeannine Wallace, Shop of the Gulls owner

Family traditions: Wallace reminisced about her family tradition to have two trees — one at each end of her home. "After stockings we opened presents under the first tree, then we'd have our brunch in our pajamas and then opened presents under the second tree. We'd always play the same music, a stupid record the kids adored. We still play a tape of that music now."

Wish for Charlevoix in the new millennium: "My wish for Charlevoix is to retain its charm as a small resort community and still stay Charlevoix the Beautiful."

W.W. Bill Price, retired manufacturer and named Outstanding Citizen of 1999

Family traditions: Price kicks in

Farmers discuss issues they face

FARMERS

next door in a different township cannot because of more restrictive township ordinances, one farmer has an economic advantage over the other."

But townships say not allowing them to restrict farming operations isn't saving the family farm, but instead paving the way for farm factories or intensive livestock operations.

"Let's say a hog hotel starts up in your neighborhood," Michigan Townships Association Executive Director John M. LaRose said in a statement.

"Instead of cornfields and a few farm animals, you've got thousands of animals in a confined space upwind from you. If the odor doesn't drive you out, think about what such an operation might do to the quality of your well water. Your neighborhood. Your property values.

"Family farms strive to be good neighbors and are not the concern. The concern is with the growing number of intensive livestock operations locating in Michigan. Today, there are estimated to be 125 such operations in our state," LaRose said.

The Michigan Townships Association states that supporters of the bill say it is needed to relieve the state's agriculture industry from burdensome local laws that threaten the profitability of farms. But the association says that local ordinances are not driving farm profits down, but rather increased competition from foreign markets and large scale farming operations are forcing family farms to scramble for profits.

Locally, Norwood Township drafted an ordinance to prevent intensive farming. But county planning director, Larry Sullivan, and others claim it is overly restrictive.

Ardeth Wieland who farms with her husband, Tom, says the Norwood Township ordinance goes too far.

"The way it's now written, it would limit any livestock operation," Wieland said.

Other policies that farmers dealt with at the conference included the bovine tuberculosis in deer, a ban on deer baiting, biotechnology, and farmland preservation.

carries a lot of weight. Maybe you should address that.

Sturock: I think one of the things that will happen is we can apply during the day flashing signs that reduce the speed out there. I think that will be very helpful not only for students, but during the day it will slow down traffic. I think that will reduce some of the concerns there.

We also certainly want to work with the Road Commission on how we can enhance the road to provide more safety for our students.

the holiday season when he gathers his family for Thanksgiving. "I do the turkey and everybody else pitches in and does something. Each one has a duty. We gather around the table and have our grace and mention what we're thankful for."

His celebratory nature isn't limited to Christmas time. "Our traditions are mostly of visits all through the year, especially to sail and enjoy Charlevoix in the summer."

Wish for Charlevoix in the new millennium: "I just hope that this (Y2K computer) glitch works out nicely and that Charlevoix can progress slowly like it has and be something we can be proud of."

Lene Mikkelsen, 17, exchange student from Gjellerup, Denmark

Holiday traditions: "(Dec. 25) is the holy day with the family meetings and dinner. It's a day off to have a good time."

Millennium wish: "I just want to pass U.S. History. I also want people to think of me as a regular person."

Jakob Stegemann, 16, exchange student from Bavaria, Germany

Holiday traditions: "It's mainly the same, but we don't decorate with too many bulbs. We do a personal dinner with 11 people all together." Stegemann says decorations are not "as overwhelming" as they are here in the U.S. and "not as much stuff on the Christmas tree."

Millennium wish: "I wish that all humankind should become more thoughtful and put more thinking behind their actions."

Tomek Barczynski, 17, exchange student from Pozanan, Poland

Holiday traditions: "We get our presents on the twenty-fourth and have (family) meetings on the twenty-fifth. We eat carp for the Christmas dinner. Like a turkey here on Thanksgiving, we eat fish for a Polish Christmas tradition."

Millennium wish: "I want to graduate here."

Bobbi Snider, 17, on summer vacation from Melbourne, Australia

Holiday traditions: "I'm Jewish and (Christmas) is not as big. I was really excited to be here for a white Christmas. It's really hot in Australia. It's summer."

Millennium wish: "I wish for people to become more harmonious and with less racism and to have a more multi-cultural world."

Rayder boys remain undefeated at home

League opener in January

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

After a 65-60 win against Alcona Friday night, the Rayders are going into the holiday break with a 3-1 record.

"(This win) sends us into the break on a positive note and it keeps us undefeated at home," said coach Keith Haske.

One of the Rayder's goals this season is to remain undefeated at home, he added. The team will be on holiday break until Jan. 4 when it begins league play at Harbor Springs.

But, this does not mean the team will refrain from dribbling a basketball over Christmas. Haske said there are many things he would like to work on with his players to prepare them for the league opener.

Harbor Springs is very good at making the outside shots and it has one of Northern Michigan's scoring leaders, he said. The player, Dave Clark, averages about 30 points a game.

"We will have to find some way to slow him down," Haske said.

Plus, since Harbor Springs will be the Rayders' first league game, Haske said he expects the level of play to increase.

> "This win sends us into the break on a positive note and keeps us undefeated at home."
> Keith Haske, Boy's varsity basketball coach

Intensity should go up now that we are playing for a league championship," he said.

Haske added the Rayders will also be working out a few problem areas during the holiday break.

"Defensively we need to play better with more consistency. We also need to do a better job of handling the ball later in the game," he said.

Haske pointed to Friday night's game as an example of this. With three minutes left and a good lead, the Rayders turned over the ball when the team should have been playing to run out the clock.

"We made some bad decisions," Haske said.

Team members will get a chance to work these out over the winter break. The Rayders will be taking part in a scrimmage Dec. 28 at Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant along with several teams from southern Michigan.

As for the work he has determined the Rayders need, Haske said his players have the right attitude to continue improving and being competitive.

"I think they have been playing together real well. These kids are working very hard," he said.

Leading point-makers at Friday night's game were: Sean Stockman with 24 points and 13 rebounds, Adam Wood with 22 points — six of those were from three-point shots — and Russell Ward with 10 points.

The Rayder junior varsity team also added another win to its season Friday night after a 84-55 victory over Alcona.

Guard Jim Shepherd was the scoring leader with 19 points.

Why Shop Locally? Because...

Local merchants can provide things you can't get in the "big cities."

1. Have they ever bought ads in your yearbooks or tickets for your school activities?
2. Have they ever opened after hours when you were in desperate need of something they sell?
3. Have they ever bought tickets for your church suppers or contributed to worthwhile community projects?
4. Have they ever put up your posters in their windows?
5. Have they always been handy and willing to service their merchandise when you needed it?
6. Have they always cheerfully & quickly exchanged merchandise or let you return merchandise for a cash refund?

YOUR LOCAL SMALL MERCHANT PROVIDES THESE EXTRAS BECAUSE HE OR SHE IS YOUR FRIEND AND NEIGHBOR AND YOU SEE THEM EVERY DAY IN YOUR COMMUNITY.

ALL THEY ASK IN RETURN IS A CHANCE FOR YOUR BUSINESS.

Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob and Katherine Wilhelm

Jacob L. Wilhelm, 93 years old, and Katherine M. Wilhelm, 8 years old, celebrated their seventieth wedding anniversary Nov. 6.

The Wilhelms were married at St. Mary's Church in Detroit in 1929. They redid their vows at their twenty-fifth, fiftieth, sixtieth and sixty-fifth wedding anniversaries.

The couple has two sons: Thomas, who lives in Mexico Beach, Fla. and James, a resident of Charlevoix. They also have 11 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm are residents of the Bortz Health Care Facility in Petoskey, where a party was held for their family and friends in their honor.

Family members attribute the Wilhelm's successful marriage to their ability to compromise and their faith.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Snowshoeing...
A sport for the entire family!

All Great Canadian traditional snowshoes are hand made by Huron Indians in Quebec, Canada. Only the finest full grain rawhide (babiche) is woven over select northern ash wood frames. Each snowshoe receives three separate coats of high grade polyurethane. Full grain rawhide is more water resistant and easily returns to its normal shape after usage. It is the lacing of choice over split leather lacing.

SCRAPBOOK

Newspaper man was Charlevoix booster

Willard A. Smith

Willard A. Smith was the editor of the first newspaper in Charlevoix, The Charlevoix Sentinel in 1869. The paper's last publication was in 1934. (Courtesy Photo)

By GEOFFREY D. REYNOLDS
Special to the Courier

The man was the best thing that ever happened to Charlevoix during the early years, and should be credited with being the town's biggest booster, was a phrase the late William Ohle of Horton Bay repeated often as we discussed the life of Willard A. Smith, newspaper man.

Born at Malone, Franklin County, NY on April 4, 1851, Willard A. Smith was orphaned by the age of seven. At the age of seven he and an older brother, traveled to Michigan, where he first entered the newspaper business at the age of fourteen, and from there never stopped. Starting at the Marshall Statesman as an apprentice he served over three years in this capacity before relocating to Flint, first taking a position with the Globe, then the Wolverine Citizen. Due to poor health he pushed on northward to Traverse City in search of purer air and a new position. Good luck came to him in better health and a position as a compositor for the Traverse Bay Eagle — later the Traverse City Eagle.

It was there that the idea for Charlevoix County's first newspaper was conceived by Smith and Eagle owner DeWitt C. Leach. An idea that would eventually be known as the Charlevoix Sentinel April 24, 1869.

After relocating to the tiny village of Charlevoix, Smith quickly took to the management of the newspaper, while editor, Major Edward H. Green, saw to the guidance of its content. Less than a year later Leach sold the thriving business to Smith, who then became its editor after the departure of Major Green in February 1871.

Without any competition, Smith was able to build the circulation of the seven county area from its north side location, then known as the Althouse Building, next to the popular Fountain City House hotel.

The present day Weathervane Terrace is positioned just north of that location. Smith remained there until 1870, when he relocated his hand pressed newspaper first to the corner of Clinton and Bridge Streets, Main Street (Park Avenue) in 1871, then its permanent location on the east side of Bridge Street, near Pine River. While the newspaper went under in 1934, this building, originally built and later moved from the Main Street location survived until 1948. It was then that it was removed to build the approach for the temporary bridge, which was used during the construction of the present day Memorial Bridge.

Besides running the newspaper and boosting the appeal of Charlevoix as a businesscenter, then later a resort destination, Smith also became very involved in the civic life of the village. First he became postmaster (1872-1884) and moved the small operation into his newspaper building. Subsequent appoints included township clerk, county clerk, treasurer, alderman, U.S. Collector of Customs (marine shipping) and president of the trustees of the village.

During this busy period of his life he also found time to meet and marry a local Antrim County girl by the name of Nancy Bagley in December 1870. Together they produced four children.

Smith continued his successful ways, even with the coming of two local competitors, Charlevoix Journal (1883-1890) and Charlevoix Courier (1908-present), until passing away during the morning of December 17, 1917, after a seven month illness. The following Wednesday, during the funeral, every business in town closed in a gesture of respect.

After his death, the newspaper continued publishing under the guidance of Smith's daughter, Florence, and her husband, Ira A. Adams, until the Great Depression forced them to close the business with the last issue going to press on April 19, 1934.

If you would like to learn more about the history of the press in Charlevoix please visit Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House Museum on Thursday nights from 5-8 p.m. at 103 State Street or contact Executive Director, Betsy Reynolds, at 231-547-0373 or P.O.Box 525, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Stay in Charlevoix this New Year's Eve

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Take a horse-drawn sleigh ride through the woods, view winter fireworks on New Year's Eve, take a millennium swim in the community pool, or join in a benefit at the Charlevoix Historical Society's gala.

Gather up friends and pile onto a horse-drawn sleigh at Cedar Valley Farms. Bells jingle as draft horses pull the sleigh through the snow.

"The ride goes through the woods on an old logging trail," Cedar Valley co-owner Vicki Wheat said. "It's about a 40-minute ride. We have a rustic sleigh, like a hay wagon, which holds about 10 to 12 passengers."

Cedar Valley Farms on Spayde Road is owned by Vicki and her husband Jerry Wheat. It is one of the few places around that offers an old-fashioned sleigh ride.

The Wheats plan sleigh rides at the farm for Friday and Saturday of New Year's Eve weekend. The farm has a fire pit in the yard with benches and a picnic table where visitors may warm themselves and drink hot chocolate. A small sledding hill is nearby for children to enjoy.

Rides are $5 per person with a $35 minimum. Call Cedar Valley Farms at 547-7352 to make reservations and for directions.

The Charlevoix Country Club invites the community to ring in a new year by viewing its fireworks display celebration. Manager Ron Braniecki said the display is scheduled for 8 p.m. on New Year's Eve.

"The fireworks will provide children, as well as adults, with a special memory of the turn of the century," Braniecki said.

Area's first snowstorm hits, officials are unfazed

> "This is nothing. This is just business as usual."
> John Martin
> Street Department Superintendent

Snow-covered vistas, slippery sidewalks and roads, biting-cold winds, people dragging around an extra 10 pounds of clothing...winter has arrived.

The area has experienced several days of northwest winds of 15 to 20 mph. Wind chill readings of 15 to 30 degrees below zero, with gusts to 40 degrees below zero have made for chilly weather. Blowing and drifting snow often reduced visibility to zero,

But if someone mentions snow storm to street department superintendent John Martin, it is quickly disputed.

"This is nothing," Martin said. "This is just business as usual."

The city has three plow trucks and a sanding unit. The department clears more than 26 miles of streets.

Ten miles of sidewalks are kept clear by the sidewalk machine, known as a "holder." The machine has a unique feature on the back that was developed by the Charlevoix Street Department.

"The V-Plow we developed here," Martin said. It keeps the sidewalks more clear by its design than just a blower, he said. "Lots of cities have copied this, and it's been in a trade magazine."

Other than a power line down on Petoskey Avenue, north of town, the winter weather held no other disruptions, reported Joe Schwartzfisher of the Charlevoix Fire Department.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater said the most of the calls his deputies responded to were usual for winter weather, such as speeding and trespassing by snowmobilers.

But when severe winter storms occur, Emergency Management of Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties, and the Michigan Committee for Severe Weather Awareness have advice for handling the storms.

The committee notes that last winter parts of Michigan experienced the worst storms in many years, with record snowfall and cold air extremes.

The Jan. 2 blizzard brought heavy snow and wind gusts as high as 65 mph to many areas. Many roads remained impassable for days and some schools were closed for up to two weeks after the storm.

Just prior to New Year's Day, bands of lake-effect snow plagued Northern Lower Michigan with white-out conditions. During the early afternoon of Dec. 31, those conditions contributed to a 100-car pile up on Interstate 75 in Crawford County. It resulted in one death and seven injuries. Due to the accident, northbound I-75 was closed for several hours.

Police prepared for any New Year's Eve glitches

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Law enforcement agencies in Charlevoix County say they are ready for whatever happens this New Year's Eve.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said they are taking all of the necessary precautions for the switch to the year 2000 at midnight Friday.

"We are doing as much as we can locally to make sure there is a continuation of services," said Halverson. While both Lasater and Halverson said they do not expect too much trouble, they added it never hurts to be prepared.

Both agencies are beefing up their patrols that night, with the sheriff's department calling in its auxiliary units. Lasater said each patrol car will have a deputy and member of the sheriff's auxiliary.

Communication between the patrol cars will be handled through the main dispatch, which is also receiving back-up from the Cheboygan dispatch in case of a computer failure in the system. Lasater stressed, the 911 system is compliant with the year 2000.

Halverson added his biggest worry is not what happens with computers when the clock strikes midnight this year, but how many drunk drivers are on the road.

While New Year's Eve traditionally causes a lot of concern for police in regards to drunk drivers, Halverson said due to there being more celebrations this year, there could be more drunk drivers on the roads.

This alone is cause to put more officers on the road, he said.

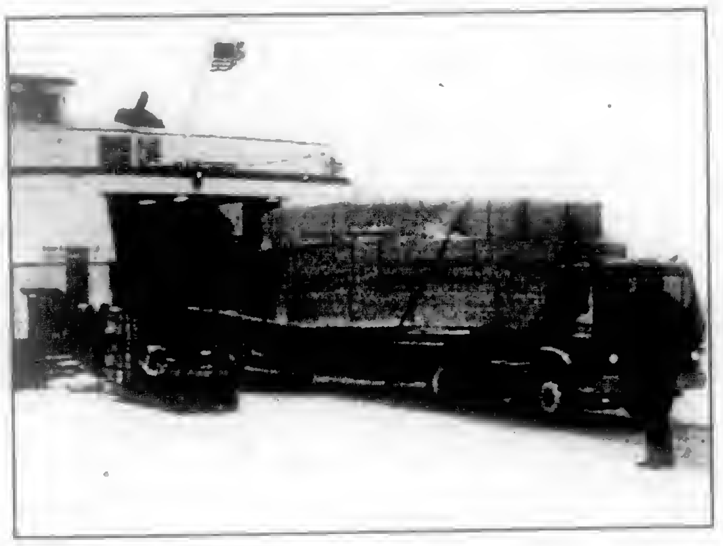
Neither snow nor cold can stop her



There are only a few more trips planned this year to Beaver Island by the Beaver Island Boat Company. According to company president Lynn DeGrow, the last run is scheduled for Jan. 2, weather permitting. Island teachers trained in reading, writing, lifesaving

By COURTNEY MOORE
Special to the Courier

Some of the teachers at Beaver Island Community School cannot only teach their classes, but they can save their student's lives in an emergency.

In addition to teaching classes, Junior High teacher Joseph Moore and High School teacher Jim Stambaugh are also members of the island's volunteer emergency medical services (EMS).

Beaver Island School Principal Kitty McNamara said the training these two have is beneficial.

"It helps the whole staff feel comfortable. If a student is hurt they know they can usually get a hold of Moore or Stambaugh," she said.

Stambaugh and his family moved to the island about 13 years ago. Upon moving to the island and becoming a teacher, he joined the Beaver Island Fire Department.

While at the fire department, Stambaugh was told in order to get his recertification the government was making it a requirement to be educated in emergency care. To get this education he had to take a medical first responder class (MFR).

An MFR can administer oxygen, place airways and use the automatic defibrillator. Most MFRs can not use an automatic defibrillator, but due to the island's location, Stambaugh was trained and can operate the device.

Moore and his family have been residents of the island for about 22 years. He is currently an Emergency Medical Technician specialist (EMT) and instructor, in addition to his teaching job.

An EMT specialist can perform basic life support procedures, advanced life support procedures, and use the automatic defibrillator. Moore also has special training in treating diabetic emergencies and serious allergic reactions.

Plus, he and four other EMS personnel are taking the island's first paramedic training course. The course is extremely extensive and calls for many hours of training. Just to be a basic EMT, participants had to have over 50 hours of clinical training. Moore has already put in 200 clinical hours for his paramedic training and still has 50 more to do at the island's hospital.

Moore's motivation for putting himself through all of this training is his desire to make a difference for island residents facing an emergency.

"I feel a need to help people in emergencies. I like to help them solve their problems. It is nice to know what to do and when to do it in an emergency," Moore said.

Currently there are four MFRs, six basic EMTs and five of those six EMTs are taking the paramedic course.

Moore and Stambaugh hope to have five paramedics on the team by March 2000. They are also trying to raise money for a Life-Pac for the paramedics.

OPINIONS

The decision has been made, leave the kitchen

EDITORIAL

There are just too many chefs in the school kitchen anymore.

The customers have ordered their food, but these chefs just can't decide how that food should be made. All the while, the customers are forced to wait.

This is kind of like the recent controversy surrounding the building of a new high school.

The taxpayers have voted in favor of paying for a new high school and the school board must make this happen, but they are being held up by a bunch of "wanna-be chefs."

The school board has done extensive research on finding a site for a new school which included a public forum attended by several people. These people were told what was on the menu through newspaper articles in this paper and an informational mailing sent out by the school district.

Now that voters have placed their order, a bunch of people want to halt this process because they do not like the property.

This group screams that the Marion Center property is too big, the cost to build a school on this site too much, it is too far from the city and it is unsafe.

First of all, we believe the property is not too big. This property provides the school district with flexibility for the future. If another school building is needed in the future, the board would already have room next to the high school.

With the rising costs of land throughout the country from inflation, the school district may actually save money in the long run buying extra land. It's like buying in bulk.

Secondly, in an interview with The Charlevoix Courier School Board President Allen Telgenhof was asked if the entire cost of building the high school —this includes sewer, water and other fees — would stay under $1.6 million. He answered, "absolutely."

Let's watch and see if he was right. If the cost goes over this amount, Telgenhof has some serious questions to answer.

Third, while the school is farther from town, it is closer to most of the students who are usually bused in. A school is for students, so it makes sense to build it near the students.

Lastly, the safety issue. The school board and the county road commission must come up with a solution to this one. Of all the concerns given by the group opposing the school site, this is the only valid concern we see.

There must be faith that this issue will be resolved. Let's be serious, do you really think school officials would want to endanger students?

Bickering over the school site is uncalled for at this point. This should have been brought up by the group before it was voted on. Now they just sound like a bunch of people mad because they didn't get their way.

It is time for some of these "chefs" to get out of the kitchen.

An honored tree through time

Roger Knutson

Now that the Christmas tree has been carried to the curb and all the dropped pine needles picked up, it's time to consider just why we go to the trouble of bringing a tree into our house every year at this time.

While the custom of acquiring a tree and decorating a Christmas tree is commonly associated with a religious holiday, most of the reasons for our words and habits can be traced back to extremely ancient times. Nearly every early culture in the world has in it some aspect of tree worship, or at least the worship of the spirits that lived in the trees. Our Christmas tree has its roots in the thoughts and understandings of northern European people who could be our great — followed by 350 greats) grandparents.

The very earliest religious or spiritual impulses of northern Europeans as much as 10,000 years ago concerned themselves with trees. Trees were the oldest, largest and most permanent parts of the environment for those long-ago people and it made sense to consider trees as sacred objects. From one of the very earliest works used by humans we derive our present words: truth, truce, tree and even Druid ash, willow, oak and of course the great giant ash Yggradsil of Norse mythology from which all life flowed, were given the reverence that something hundreds of years old deserved.

If you have ever stood in a really ancient forest — what northern Michigan used to look like or the present day old growth forests of Washington state — you need not be told just how easy it would be to worship trees and the forest that holds them. Both the cross and the menorah derive from ancient trees of like and we still commonly plant arbor vitae — literally, the tree of life — around our homes.

We bring into our houses an evergreen tree because there was something magical about a tree that stayed green when all other plants were the sere brown of winter. We put ornaments on that tree as memorials to the spirits that lived in it, so they would not resent too much our moving the tree into our house and out of its forest home.

It may be that we bring in mistletoe because it remained green even while growing on the branches of an oak or other tree that had seasonally lost all its green leaves. It was once common practice to plant a tree for each child born in order to give the child a spirit that could look after them their whole life. We now plant trees on Arbor Day and often have children help with the process.

Some of our earliest ancestors believed that trees held up the sky and knit the earth together. Many of our mightiest and most majestic cathedrals are still modeled after a forest, with its soaring trunks and closing canopy.

Next time you go for a walk in the woods, or bring a Christmas tree into your house, consider that you are repeating — in a limited way — the religious observances of some of Europe's first inhabitants as much as 10,000 years ago.

Thank you

Editor:

I just wanted to say thank you to the Charlevoix Fire Department for doing a great job on saving my house, which caught fire on Dec. 5. Also to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's officers for their quick response and to all our friends and family who have been so supportive to me and my family since our ordeal.

The fire department went above and beyond the call of duty to help our family save our belongings and make it easier on us. It's nice to know that we have the manpower and equipment to do such a great job in our town. Thank you all again.

Committee's petition drive inappropriate

Editor:

While I am an avid supporter of having the new school in, or adjoining, the city, the current actions of those opposing the Marion Center Road location leave me cold. I was offered the opportunity to help circulate a petition to recall the current school board members. This is totally inappropriate. A recall implies guilt of improper action unlawful or otherwise unethical. This school board has done a great job of research, decision-making and presentation such that, for the first time in years the voters have approved a major school project. This deserves respect and compliments, not disrespect and insults.

A petition I was urged to sign starts, "We...reject the selection..." No, I don't reject and don't have the right to reject the unanimous selection of the board. We do have the right to continue to ask that they reconsider and I would consider signing a petition to that effect if it started "We congratulate the school board on its actions and decisions that resulted in voter approval of the major school rebuilding project. However, we respectfully ask that board to reconsider their location selection in favor of one located at..."

I do feel it would be advantageous to have a close site and hope the board does reconsider, but in view of their extensive research and thoughtful deliberations, I will support them in whatever is their final decision. As mayor, I fought a losing battle to keep the Post Office in the city, but now have to admit that parking is much easier and they probably made the right decision.

Josh Barnes

(Editors note: The recall petition this writer mentions was rejected by the committee in favor of a petition simply rejecting the Charlevoix School Board's Marion Center site for a new high school.)

Student disgusted by behavior of adults

Editor:

I am writing this letter as a junior at Charlevoix High School. I, along with several other students, attended the school board meeting Dec. 13, for the simple reason that we care about the future of our school system. I was appalled at the behavior of some of our community's very prominent members and many of our "older" community members. From snickers in the audience, to people walking out accusing the board members of being a "bunch of dumb idiots," made for an almost comical evening. It is amazing that the adolescent's in our town are able to act more mature at a town meeting than many of our "adults." When students made the attempt to speak during the meeting on their opinions of where the school should be located, they were laughed at and it was said that we "are just kids, don't know what we are talking about and have a lot to learn about life." Granted, we are kids, and we do have a lot to learn in life, but we are also entitled to our opinions, being that a new school will effect our generation a lot more than it will effect theirs. And furthermore, we "kids" seem to have a much better understanding on how the United States runs. We understand that when a vote is passed, that is the "final" decision. Apparently, they are not as clear on that.

I also found it hard to believe that people that graduated in 1955 from Charlevoix are going to try and tell us just how "good of shape" our schools are in. Yes, they were in good shape in 1955; they were practically new then. The middle school building, for example, looks great from the outside but the inside is not only an embarrassment, but also a danger to the students. We are lucky a student hasn't fallen through the floor in the upstairs hallway yet.

The Charlevoix School Board spent many long hard hours working to help this community make the right choice and I think they should be praised and thanked for it, instead of ridiculed.

Trust me folks, this is 1999, Charlevoix is not getting any smaller. Chances are, 10 years from now, Marion Center Road will be just as populated as the area around our current school. Let's stop hoping that some outside force of nature is going to rip through Charlevoix and tear down the downtown area so that we can build the "perfect" school. Let's move on with the current plan that was passed by the people of this community. Stop the bitterness and let's cooperate with one another to help the children and the future of our community.

Board should consider other sites

Editor:

The Charlevoix Board of Education recently purchased a 74 acre site at the junction of Marion Center and Veenstra roads for the sum of $250,000. The Board's intention is to construct a high school for about 450 students on this site. The total cost for the acquisition and site preparation will swell to $1.6 million according to the board's own figures.

Consider the following. On this 74 acres we could locate:

•The Pontiac Silverdome and parking for 5,366 vehicles.

•The Palace of Auburn Hills and all on site parking plus 4.5 acres of wetlands.

•The Detroit Tigers new Comerica Park, five time over.

•The Silverdome, The Palace and Comerica Park, plus the current Charlevoix High School site and parking for nearly 800 cars.

This is a lot of land for 450 students. That is 6.1 students per acre to be precise. By comparison, a random sampling of four year colleges and universities from across Michigan and elsewhere averages 62.5 students per acre. Furthermore, to spend $1.6 million before a single brick is laid is not only unwise and needlessly extravagant, but short-sighted and unfair to those 450 students. Simple arithmetic reveals a cost for this site of $3,555 per student. This is money better spent on new technology or more classroom space.

To squander our resources this way, fiscal as well as natural, is obscene. There are other suitable, less costly sites available and it is time for the school board to rethink its position.

School should be in town

Editor:

I want to congratulate the school board for their efforts in producing a plan to move the educational process forward in Charlevoix. The members of the board displayed the courage to campaign for and pass a much needed bond issue to improve the school facilities for our children. I do not, however, support the board on its choice of the Marion Center Road site for the new high school. This decision has failed to gain widespread voter support and created a division in the community.

I do not believe that hundreds of thousands of dollars should be spent underground to bring sewers, water, three-phase electricity and natural gas to the Marion Center site when the infrastructure already exists at school properties located in the community. How will the money spent underground improve our children's education? Why not spend our hard earned dollars "above ground" on the very best facilities money can buy?

I believe that our new high school can be built on properties which we already own in town. Where is it written that the gymnasium, auditorium, athletic facilities and classrooms all have to be located on the same site? I believe the site selection process was driven by the preconceived notion that all of these facilities had to be located on one site. I suspect all existing school properties located in town were immediately ruled out as potential locations simply because of their size. I support a more creative solution.

When I was growing up in Charlevoix, the largest and most impressive building in town was the school. The elementary, junior high and high school were all located on the site of what is now the existing middle school. The school complex was fully integrated into the center of town. We could walk or ride our bicycles to and from school and on the way pass by the other important community institutions — the churches, the city hall, the county officers, the police and fire departments, the business community. I felt like an integral part of the whole community and I felt education was something really special because the city had decided to build important buildings right in the center of the community. I learned education is what Charlevoix is all about.

At the recent school board meeting, people argued about where the center of town is. But, we know where the center is. It is the heart of our community, where my father went to school, where I went to school and where my children went to school. You can build your high school out-of-town and people will follow you. You can create two Charlevoixs or three, but I want to live in one Charlevoix where north-side neighborhoods and south-side neighborhoods live side-by-side connected by "one bridge" of understanding.

Board should be supported

Editor:

When the school bond issue passed, I was elated. I thought, "Finally the kids of Charlevoix are going to get what they deserve."

The Board of Education ran a terrific campaign. They did their homework and communicated well with the voters. Their search committee also did an admirable job, and after doing much research came up with the best site. They are to be commended.

It should be a happy time of planning and looking to the future of the young people of the Charlevoix School District.

However, no sooner had this all happened than we started hearing dissension from the losing side. They just couldn't accept the fact that they had lost. It's as if they are little children saying, "If you don't do it my way, I won't play."

Next, two or three "anonymous" people hired Jeff Porter to be their spokesman. I have known Jeff for several years. He is a wonderful person and a great fund raiser — shown through his work for the hospital — but I didn't know he was an expert on education.

The dissenters keep talking about a site on the north side for the new high school. What is their motive for feeling so strongly about this? It seems to be a monetary issue rather than an educational one. Who will profit from the school being on the north side? Who are these "backers?" Why don't they come forward instead of hiding behind Porter and associates? Why are so many of the "pool" people interested in the location of the school suddenly?

Now the "committee" is trying to get people to sign cards. I don't care for the tactics these people are using. They are even asking people at church meetings. Again I ask, "What is their motive?"

Also, there are still a few people who want the school inside the city limits. Can't they see that there is no room? The board is planning for future growth, thank goodness. In order to expand, others also had to build outside the city limits, such as the hospital and the post office. Let's face it, our town is growing.

I feel the people of the Charlevoix School District should support the board, their decisions, and the recommendations of its research team. It's time to get on with the plans for the future and to present a united front for our young people and show them that we really do care.

Just Married

Mr. and Mrs. John Gnodtke

Tomoko Muto and John Gnodtke of East Lansing were married at 2:30 p.m. on Sept. 11 at Greencrest Manor in Battle Creek, MI. Supreme Court Justice Clifford W. Taylor performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of 50 wedding guests.

Vows were exchanged in both English and Japanese.

The bride is the daughter of Masatoshi and Kyoko Muto of Takasaki, Japan. The grooms parents are Bill and Pam Gnodtke of Charlevoix.

Escorted to a fountain under century old Japanese maples by her father, the bride wore an ivory matted satin gown. The gown's cathedral length train and shoulder caps were accented by miniature rum pink and ivory satin roses with a column of tiny rum pink satin buttons down the back. The bride's elbow-length satin-edged veil was attached to a headpiece of pearls and rum pink and ivory roses. She carried a bouquet of white lilies, light pink roses and stephanotis.

Kelly Kennedy Yokoyama was matron of honor. She wore a short lavender gown and carried a pink and white bouquet. Doug Gnodtke was the best man.

A buffet dinner followed the ceremony. Miniature cakes on antique stands decorated the center of each table, along with gifts for the guests, red and white Daruma dolls from the bride's home city and Japanese art coasters. The bride and groom changed from their wedding attire to Yukatas or informal Kimonos, thanked their parents and guests, then visited each table to cut and serve the wedding cakes.

The couple resides in East Lansing where Tomoko is studying at Lansing Community College and John is an attorney for the State of Michigan.

Public hearing set for new snowmobile ordinance

By B. J. HETLER
Staff Writer

Snowmobilers may find more travel opportunities in Charlevoix as the city considers a new snowmobile ordinance.

City council was presented a draft of the new ordinance at its meeting on Monday, Dec. 20. It set a public hearing for 8 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 3. Copies of the proposed ordinance may be obtained at City Hall.

"On behalf of the Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Snowmobile Club, we're extremely happy with what council has done," Dorian MacGillivray said. MacGillivray is marketing consultant for the Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The proposed ordinance would help boost winter business for the city's shops, restaurants and motels by providing more access for snowmobile travel.

The proposed ordinance provides for two new routes, designates areas for snowmobile parking, sets hours of operation, and regulates special events.

The first route, known as Type A, allows travel on the following streets:

- Division Street from Michigan Avenue to Mercer Avenue
- Sherman Street to Charlo Street to Carpenter Street, along the east perimeter fence of the Charlevoix Municipal Airport to U.S. 31.
- The Garfield and May streets intersection south on May Street to Eaton Street to Ferry Avenue to Stover Road.

The proposed ordinance states that a snowmobile may be operated on Type A routes only for the purpose of city ingress and egress.

The second route, Type B, allows travel on Ferry Avenue from the intersection of Eaton Street and Ferry Avenue, and Belvedere Avenue from its intersection with Ferry Avenue to Veteran's Park.

BEACONS

OF BLESSINGS

By PASTOR ALAN LEESE
Hidden Springs Community Church

Christmas time, we spend so much making it externally appealing, bells, bows, buttons, wrapping paper and lights, especially lights. We try to make it as beautiful as possible and we should, after all it is a celebration of the birthday of the Christ child.

Drive along any Northern Michigan road at night and you will see this celebration lighting up the countryside, proclaiming the holidays, that it's Christmas time.

Yet, what a stark contrast to the night Christ was born. There wasn't any bright lights on that night, there wasn't even any room at the inn. There was just a tired young Jewish mom, nine months pregnant, riding on a donkey on a forced journey to Bethlehem because the Romans needed to count how many people they had in their kingdom. Only to arrive and have to give birth in a stable — which by the way was not as pretty as we make it out today, but basically a stalled off cave, dark, cold and smelly.

This is where God chose to give birth to his son, not in a palace, not with great fanfare, in fact no one really knew except for some shepherds that God had to send some Angels to tell. Otherwise, it was a pretty uneventful night in the eyes of the world. Still, all the lights in the world put together could not shine as brightly as "The Light Of the World" born in the manager on that night.

God's ways of doing and seeing things are so different than ours. We spend so much time making the outside beautiful while God is really looking down to see if our inside is beautiful. We look over the country-side and see all the bright and shimmering lights shining on the outside while God looks down to see if the light of His son is shining on the inside, in our hearts.

This is the season for lights to shine brightly, but just think how much more this dark world would shine if we would accept God's gift and allow the Light of Christ to shine out from our hearts, then we would truly be displaying the Christmas Light.

Local celebrations for New Year's abundant

LOCAL

"The display is scheduled for early evening so that people may enjoy the fireworks as a family outing."

Public parking areas will be across from "The Greens" real estate office on Clubhouse Drive at the country club, and at the parking lot at Shanahan Field and Stroud Hall in Charlevoix township.

People who participate in the Charlevoix Community Pool's Millennium swim may watch the fireworks from the pool's parking lot.

The fireworks display will be conducted by Zambelli Internationale. It will last approximately 15 minutes.

In case of inclement weather, the display will be held on Jan. 1. Call 547-9796 for more information.

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool offers a refreshing beginning to New Year's Eve by inviting the community to a millennium swim for $1 per person.

"We're tying this into the fireworks. It's special because of the millennium, and kids will remember this all of their lives," said Bruce MacArthur, vice president of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

The hours for the swim are 5:30 - 7:30 p.m. The country club fireworks display may be viewed from the pool parking lot. Call 547-0982 for reservations.

The Charlevoix Historical Society is also getting into the celebration by presenting an opportunity to be a part of history by supporting local history. A benefit will be held on New Year's Eve for the Depot Museum, the city's only national historic site.

The train depot served it's first train in 1892. People arrived in Charlevoix from Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Grand Rapids, and other Midwestern cities. The last passenger train came through in 1962. The depot went through various owners until 1992, when the historical society bought it.

The evening's entertainment will begin at the Cinema III, with a private showing of a first-run movie, organizer Mike Bergeon said. Following the movie, supporters will enjoy hors d'oeuvres at the holiday-decorated Depot Museum. Complimentary champagne will be served at midnight.

Benefit tickets are $100 per person. Call Mike Bergeon at 547-2742 for tickets or for more information.

Hearing scheduled for Jan.

HEARING

Type B route travel is restricted to access and return to a residence, a business or a municipal parking area directly adjacent to the route or at the end of the route.

Parking would be allowed in designated areas from Nov. 1 through April 1 of each year. These areas are Veteran's Park and East Park, on snow-covered ground.

Snowmobilers would be permitted to travel between the two parks by use of the public sidewalk, and the machine operated only as fast as is necessary to maintain forward momentum.

Snowmobile operation would be prohibited on any street from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.

Police Chief Dennis Halverson worked with city attorney Jim Young in drafting the ordinance.

"I think we've come up with a workable plan," Halverson said.

The trick is to strike a balance between economics and citizens' concerns, he said.

"The biggest thing is the 11 p.m. curfew," Halverson said. "I think that strikes a balance. We'll see what happens."

Stay safe this winter with these helpful tips

SAFETY

No matter what the winter weather hazard — from extreme cold and snow to ice and wind — everyone in Michigan should be prepared for winter's dangers, the committee said.

"Now is the time to prepare for the unexpected," Darin Figurskey said. Figurskey is with the National Weather Service and a member of the committee. "There is no need to be caught by surprise no matter how winter tries to sneak up on us."

The Michigan Committee for Severe Weather Awareness has developed helpful tips for staying safe this winter.

Preparing for a winter storm:

At home:

- Keep handy a battery-powered flashlight, radio, extra canned or dried food and bottled water.
- Make sure there are extra blankets and heavy clothes available.
- Be aware of potential fire and carbon monoxide hazards if you plan to use an emergency heating source, such as a fireplace, wood stove or space heater.

In a vehicle:

- Have the following emergency supplies in your auto: Shovel, blankets, windshield scraper, container of sand, battery booster cables, tow chain or rope, flashlight, battery-operated radio, first-aid kit and high energy snacks, such as nuts and raisins.

Outside:

- Avoid over-exertion, such as shoveling heavy snow, pushing a car, or walking in deep snow. Sweating could lead to chill and hypothermia.
- Wear loose-fitting, lightweight warm clothing in layers. Wear a wool hat and mittens.
- Keep your clothes dry. Change wet socks and clothing quickly to prevent loss of body heat.

If stranded in a vehicle:

- Attach a cloth to your antenna to attract attention and then remain in the vehicle.
- Run the motor about 10 minutes each hour for heat. However, open the window slightly for fresh air and made sure that the exhaust pipe isn't blocked.
- Get attention by turning on the dome light and emergency flashers when running the engine.
- Exercise by moving arms, legs, fingers and toes to keep blood circulating and to keep warm.

If stranded outside:

- Try to stay dry and cover all exposed parts of the body.
- Prepare a wind-break or snow cave for protection from the wind. Build a fire for heat and to attract attention.
- Do not eat snow. It will lower your body temperature. Melt it first.

Winter driving tips:

- Use common sense when driving in the winter. Vehicles cannot stop as fast on icy and snowy roads.
- Watch for scattered slippery spots, especially on overpasses, bridges and underpasses.
- Keep a shovel, warm blankets, bags of sand or cat litter in the trunk.
- Stay in your vehicle in case of emergency.
- Keep the gas tank and windshield washer reservoir full.
- Make sure wiper blades and tires are in good condition.
- Clear snow and ice from windows, mirrors, hood, roof, headlights, taillights and trunk. Use low-beam headlights in snow and fog.
- When applying the brakes on either snow or ice, avoid locking the brakes. This allows you to maintain steering control of the vehicle while obtaining maximum braking efficiency. On vehicles equipped with anti-lock brakes, do not pump the brake pedal — apply steady pressure.
- Keep telephone numbers in your car for local tow service and roadside assistance.
- Always wear your safety belt.

The National Weather Service weather forecasts have been expanded out to seven days. This provides people with weather guidance extending from weekend to weekend. Forecasts may be accessed on the Internet at crh.noaa.gov/apx/forecast.htm.

Rainbow Shoppe to stay in downtown for next 5 years

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Rainbow Shoppe is staying in its present location.

The thrift shop located on VanPelt was facing the possibility of having to move from its present location due to the pending sale of the building. This situation was recently solved when the building was bought by a Walled Lake man, who agreed to rent out space to The Rainbow Shoppe for another five years.

"We asked for our angel and we found our angel," said The Rainbow Shoppe's Rita Orlowski.

"I don't know what will happen in five years."

Orlowski said the new owner, Bill Decker, is planning on fixing up the building, especially the outside of the store.

"I think it is just great. We feel as though we are very good tenants and have always been with the original owner," she added.

Orlowski was nervous over the sale of the building, because it could have meant the shop would have to move out of downtown Charlevoix.

If this would have happened, she said the shop would not get as much business and would not be able to help as many people.

The Rainbow Shoppe, a non-profit organization, has been in business for 16 years and has been in its present location for about 14 years.

Since its birth, the store has given about $500,000 to various other non-profit organizations throughout Charlevoix.

"Our goal is to give another half-million," Orlowski said.

Pool hosts several activities to help you keep your figure this winter

Registration for winter swim programs at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool for January programs is going on now on a first come, first serve basis.

•Swim team: The swim teams will begin the new millennium with their first two away swim meets on Jan. 22 in Gaylord and Feb. 19 in Harbor Springs. Swimmers practice two or three days a week depending on their age. The Blue group — 8 and 9-year-olds — meet Monday through Wednesday from 4:15 to 5 p.m. The fee is $45 for a six week session. The Gold groups — 10 through 13-year-olds and Silver groups — 14 to 17-year-olds — meet from 4 to 5 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The fee is $60 for a six week session. A six week session begins Jan. 3 and there will be a parent meeting at the pool on Jan. 4 from 7 to 8 p.m. Swimmers must be able to swim 25 yards to join the Silver team.

•Swimming lessons: Learn to swim classes will be offered again this winter. These classes are Red Cross certified and meet once each week for six weeks. They will meet from 9:15 to 11:30 a.m. on Saturday mornings at a cost of $36. Classes are 45 minutes. Levels range from infant/toddler to advanced. Adult classes are available for beginners as well as advanced students. Sessions begin Feb. 5 and April 8.

•Aqua exercise: Eight Aqua Exercise classes are offered each week. Classes are from 8 to 9 a.m. Monday through Saturday and from 5 to 6 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. The fee is $5 per time for non-pass holders and $3 for Charlevoix Area Community Pool pass holders. Individuals can purchase a six week pass for $50 or $30. An arthritic class will also be offered from 9 to 10 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. An Arthritic Foundation certified instructor will be leading this class.

•Public swim times: Open swim is from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday; 3 to 4 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday; 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday and 1 to 4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. On Your Own for adults is from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday. On Your Own swimmers will be sharing the pool with rehab patients from the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Lap swims are 6 to 8 a.m. Monday through Friday; 5 to 6 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and 12 p.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday. Additional open times are offered as pool space is available. The fee for adults is $3, senior citizens $2.50, children ages 4 through 18 are $2 and children 3 and under swim for free.

Rayders suffer loss due to low turnout Dec. 22

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

> "If we could fill more weight classes, I think we would be more competitive."
> Gary Probert, Rayder wrestling coach

Due, in part, to several open weight divisions on the team, Rayder's grapplers lost 21-57 Dec. 22 to Mancelona at home.

"They got a lot of those points by us just not having the kids...," said Coach Gary Probert.

"If we could fill more weight classes, I think we would be much more competitive."

The Rayders had 8 grapplers taking part in regular matches, and one in an exhibition match. This left at least six divisions open, giving Mancelona immediate wins and the respective points in those open spots.

While his team did lose, Probert said he was very proud of the effort and skill his wrestlers showed.

He was especially happy with the performance of new team member John Belfry who wrestled in the 130 pound weight division. Although Belfry was pinned by Mancelona's Justin Mehlberg in 2 minutes and 55 seconds, Probert pointed out he had only a few days of practice before the competition.

Belfry is the Rayder's only senior this year.

The following are the results of Dec. 22:

•In the 119 pound weight division, Charlevoix's Josh Chamberlain defeated Mancelona's Mike Clark by a pin in 3 minutes and 47 seconds.

•In the 125 pound division, Charlevoix's Nate Holmes lost by a pin to Tom Fleet in 1 minute and 14 seconds.

•In the 140 pound division, Charlevoix's Jerry Zeitler beat Brad Harp by pinning him in 3 minutes and 10 seconds.

•At 152 pounds, Charlevoix's Chris Lahr beat Paul Pickering in a 9-2 decision.

•At 160 pounds, Charlevoix's Ryan Novotny lost by a pin to Jessy Dallaway in 3 minutes and 48 seconds.

•At 171 pounds, Charlevoix's Bo Moore pinned Fred Martel in 1 minute and 27 seconds.

•At 189 pounds, Charlevoix's Chris Loper lost by a 8-10 decision in an overtime match with Troy Randall.

•In an exhibition match, Charlevoix's Will Potter lost by a pin to Jake Boetcher in 4 minutes and 53 seconds.

SCRAPBOOK

In the 1940s, Charlevoix residents were entertained by the musical trio Charlevoices, who were known for their tear-jerking rendition of "The Charlevoix Song." (Courtesy photo)

Try a new song when the ball drops this New Year's

Edith Gilbert

Ring in the new year with a song about Charlevoix this Friday.

For many years "The Charlevoix Song" was sung to the tune of the old Irish Ballad, "A Little Bit of Heaven." It was sung by the popular trio known as "Charlevoices," composed of Alice Bellinger, Mildred Webster and Esther Hawley.

Their rendition of this song reportedly could make grown men cry. It may be fitting to sing this tune once again on New Year's Eve in memory of the past tradition and as we welcome the year 2000.

"'Tis a little bit of heaven
Mixed with land and lake and sky.

It nestles in the valleys
With Lake Michigan Close by.

And when the angels found it
Oh, it looked so sweet and fair

They said, Suppose we leave it for it looks so peaceful there.

So, they sprinkled it with birches
Just to make the pine trees grow

O'er all the land you'll find them
No matter where you go.

Then, they dotted it with blue lakes
While the angels sang for joy,

And when they had it finished
Sure, they called it 'Charlevoix.'"

This photo of Charlevoix's harbor was taken in 1971, showing the beauty the area possessed — and still does — as is sung about in "The Charlevoix Song." (Archive photo)
